INTRODUCTION.

THE NOTITIA CESTRIENSIS of Bishop Gastrell has been pronounced by one of the most accomplished Historians of the present day, "the noblest document extant on the subject of the Ecclesiastical antiquities of the Diocese," and every portion of the work is intrinsically valuable both to the Clergy and Laity, as an accurate historical record of a vast and important Diocese. The rights of Patrons and the endowments of Churches, the foundation of Schools and the origin of Charities, the privileges of individuals and the customs of Parishes, though subjects of large extent, are all stated with such minuteness and truth, as to render the facts recorded important historical information, which might elsewhere be searched for in vain.

The entire authenticity of the statements is indisputable. They are a full and distinct exponent of the state of the Diocese of Chester as it existed in the very stirring and remarkable age in which the work was compiled.

In the revolution of more than one hundred and thirty years extensive changes have taken place in the Diocese, and various new laws and opinions, new regulations and habits of thought have been introduced, while others, of a nature and tendency perhaps more than equivocal, are still struggling for developement.

The Diocese will, however, sustain no damage by a comparison of its Ecclesiastical condition in the time of Bishop Gastrell and in our own day, although truth demands the willing admission that more practical good has been achieved for the Diocese during the last twenty years, than in the entire century which elapsed after Gastrell's death.

The extreme destitution of a large proportion of the Livings (or rather "Leavings," as they have been called) at the commencement of the eighteenth century, and the consequent non-residence of the higher, and the almost inevitable inefficiency of the lower Clergy, were evils of general and fearful magnitude, which are now considerably ameliorated; whilst the large and judicious extension of the means of grace and of popular education in all their efficiency and purity, have already tended to overcome some of the most formidable of our public maladies, and have proved, if proof were needed, that our security and happiness as a nation depend much more upon our religious and moral elevation, than upon the success of our arms, the triumphs of our fleets, or the boundless extent of our territory.

And these blessings have been in no inconsiderable degree secured to us in consequence of the old land-marks of the country having been strengthened and not subverted. But such observations more properly belong to a Life of the learned and pious Prelate, who laboured with untiring energy to carry out the principles here adverted to, and whose Historical Notices of the Cheshire portion of his Diocese are now printed for the first time.

A Life, and a selection from a portion of his private Correspondence, have been already, in some measure, prepared for the press, which the CHETHAM SOCIETY design to print with the Lancashire part of the Notitia, and it will, therefore, be unnecessary in this place to allude further to the subject. It is hoped that this notice of an intended Life of Bishop Gastrell may lead to the discovery of other Letters or general information illustrative of his Lordship's character, the communication of which will be very acceptable to the Editor.

It is always a pleasing and grateful duty to acknowledge literary obligations, which have been termed, not improperly, "the humanity of letters;" and, in the first place, my personal thanks, as well as the best acknowledgments of the CHETHAM SOCIETY, are due to the REV. HENRY RAIKES, M.A. Chancellor of Chester, for his obliging and very liberal permission to transcribe those portions of the Notitia which fall within the scope of the publications of the Society.

Nor can I omit to express my obligations to the same excellent individual for an unrestricted permission to examine at intervals, during a course of years, the antient muniments in the Registry at Chester, and also to the Gentlemen of the Court for the facilities which they afforded me, with so much alacrity, during my investigation of their Records.

There are few literary individuals resident in the Country, who have not regretted their unavoidable absence from public Libraries. I have often found occasion to do so in compiling the discursive and varied Notes in this volume. It is, therefore, with deep feelings of gratitude and veneration that I dutifully acknowledge the liberality of His Grace the LORD ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, in kindly permitting me to consult various manuscripts in the noble library at Lambeth, which have elucidated and enriched the following pages.

To my valued friend JAMES DEARDEN Esq. F.S.A., I am indebted for a careful collation of the transcript with the original MS. of the Notitia, a work of some labour, and requiring, and in this instance obtaining, both quickness of observation and minute accuracy, to ensure a genuine and literal text.

To MR. LAWTON of York, the intelligent and laborious Author of a work on the Antiquities of the Diocese of York, somewhat similar to the Notitia, and to more than fifty of the Cheshire Clergy, for useful communications and scattered references, my best acknowledgments are due.

In this catalogue of benefactors it would be an unpardonable omission not to mention the name of GEORGE ORMEROD Esq. D.C.L. &c. as in almost every page I have found materials for illustration in his invaluable and unrivalled History of the County. I would gladly have followed that accurate and diligent Historian in acknowledging the most minute contribution, had I not been afraid of encumbering my pages by a repetition of the same authority. Where references are required for the establishment of any statement, or the further elucidation of a subject, I have little hesitation in directing the inquirer to the learned volumes of MR. ORMEROD, whose extensive, acute, and comprehensive researches have left little for subsequent writers to discover.

“It only remains,” to adopt the language of the Venerable Archdeacon CHURTON, in his Preface to the Life of Dean Nowell, “to beseech, if I might, the Reader’s favourable indulgence towards the Author, who has arranged the materials and laid them together;—and whatever faults or imperfections may be found in the volume which is now, not without solicitude, sent into the world, it may tend, I hope, to propitiate or to disarm the severity of criticism, when it is known, that the whole was written and revised, not in retirement, which the Muses love, nor in the shades of Academic bowers, but amidst the constant and arduous, though pleasing duties, of a populous parish.”

The certified value of the Livings, as given by Bishop Gastrell, was the result of an order of the Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne (pursuant to the directions of their Charter) dated 22d February, 1704. The Bishops of the several Dioceses made the Returns before the 20th of November in that year, which being regularly entered in a book, were presented to the Queen in December, 1707.

First Fruits, called also Primitiæ and Annates, were the first year's profits of spiritual preferments according to a rate or valor made under the direction of Pope Innocent IV. by Walter, Bishop of Norwich, 38 Hen. III. and afterwards advanced in value by commission from Pope Nicholas III. in 1292, 20 Edw. I. Blackstone's Commentaries, vol. i. p. 284, which valuation of Pope Nicholas is still preserved in the Exchequer. 3 Inst. 154. This Papal usurpation over the Clergy was long resisted and did not become universal until the beginning of the 14th century. By the 26th Hen. VIII. c. 3, this revenue was annexed to the Crown, and a new valuation of Benefices was made by which the Clergy have ever since been rated. In 1703-4, Queen Anne piously restored this property to the Church for the purpose of augmenting small Livings.

levied this tribute in 1229 he had obliged Henry III. in an Archbishop, and sent over a Nuntio to solicit for this grant in order that his Holiness might carry on his war against the Emperor. The King was silent on the demand, the temporal Barons gave a positive denial, and through fear the Bishops assented. So rigorously was the tax collected that the Clergy were compelled to pawn and sell the Church Plate and take up money at interest of the Italian merchants, and thus the kingdom was miserably exhausted of its treasure; there being none but Ralph Earl of Chester who had the courage to oppose the encroachment. Collyer's Ecclesiastical History. This tax is still paid to the Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne, according to the Valor Beneficiorum 26 Hen. VIII. commonly called the King's Book, and published by the Record Commissioners. Bishop Gastrell gives the value of each Living in the margin, from that record.

² Weston appears to have been meant by Bishop Gastrell, as that Manor was conveyed to the Bishops of Chester, and a rent only in Aston.

At the Dissolution, the Surveyors of the Abbey Estates reported that the "Rents and fermes of the Manor of Abbotts Cotton, that is to saye beyinge in the p'yshe of Crystelton and in the hamletts of Crystelton, amounted to xii^{li} xvj^s viii^d; and in the Co. of Derby, Rents and fermes in the bailiwick of Weston, that is to saye, Weston, xlviij^{li} iiii^s vi^d, Aston, xvi^{li} iij^s iij^d ob. IN the 38 y. of H. 8, Bishop Bird surrenders all his Temporaltyes to the King, in exchange for some Parsonages and Advowsons. p. 43. Surrender of Temp.

IN the Record of First Fruits and Tenths before this surrender the clear value of y^e Bishoprick, after all deductions made, is £269. 04s. 06d. p. 8. Ancient Value.

This Bishoprick pays Tenths for five Rect. appr. besides the Bishoprick, viz.

The Bp. was obliged to pay Tenths for Wallezey, Weverham, Backford, Boweden, and Castleton, when first granted, viz. 38 H. 8, but 29 Eliz. he was discharged, and y^e payment laid upon the farmers. p. 91.

Childwall appears to have been granted by Queen Elizabeth anno 3, who also confirmed a Pension of £26 12s. 2d. from the Earl of Chester. — Ormerod's Hist. Cheshire, vol. i. p. 74.

THIS Diocese contains all Cheshire and Lancashire, that part of Yorkshire which was formerly called Richmondshire,² wth some other parishes in that county, part of Cumberland next to Lancashire, part of Westmoreland, belonging to the Barony of Kendale, and some Parishes in Flintsh. and Denbighsh. Wales.

The Bishop's See at Litchfield was soon after the Conquest removed hither by Peter, then Bishop. Afterwards it was translated to Coventry, and from thence to y^e ancient seat again.—Camd. Britannia.

² The Archdeaconry of Richmond, which comprizes the Deaneries of Boroughbridge, Catterick, Richmond, and part of Lonsdale in the county of York, was separated from the Diocese of Chester by the Act of William IV. and constituted part of the Diocese of Ripon by an order of Council dated October 5th, 1836.

These Letters appear to have escaped the researches of Ormerod and other learned antiquaries. The MSS. so frequently referred to by Bishop Gastrell as "MS. St." "MS. His son classed his antiquarian collections under nine heads, a copy of which is preserved in Harl. MSS. 1948, 42. His Will is dated June 17th, 1580, and being short and characteristic, and not having been printed, may not improperly obtain a place here: "I Robert Rogers Archdeacon of Chester and P'son of Goosworth co. I give to Elizabeth Rogers my wife, whose name was, before I married her, Elizabeth Dean, freely and wth as good a heart as ev^r God gave them to me, and I am ryght hearty sorry that I have noe more to give her. My trust in her is, that she will see my Chyldren and heyres brought up in y^e feare of God." The rest wanted: Bibl. Harl. 2037, p. 320. It is not improbable that he was one of the ten children of John Rogers, who was the first Protestant martyr in 1555, and a native of Lancashire. Bale, Descr. Brit. Cent. viii. 83. Dr. Ormerod styles him a local antiquary of much research and good judgment. See ECCLESTON, Note, for an account of his family; and also CHESTER'S TRIUMPH, edited by the Rev. Thomas Corser M. A., for the Chetham Society, Introd. p. ix.

² There were four antiquaries of the name of Randal Holme in lineal succession, and their collections, consisting of about two hundred and fifty-seven volumes, are among the Harl. MSS. purchased for the Earl of Oxford after the death of the last Randal Holme in 1707. The second and third Randal were the principal collectors, although the last has brought down his Notes to 1704. Ormerod gives a Pedigree of the family, from which it appears that they descended from a respectable Cheshire house of good antiquity, latterly much reduced in circumstances.—Vide BEBINGTON, Note. Gastrell always writes the name Hulm.

AN.

1. 1541. John Bird, D.D. of Oxford, Bp. of Bangor, and before of Ossory. Deprived by Q. Mary, An. 1554. Mr. G. Cotes succeeded.¹—S^r P. L. 160. Died at Chester, An. 1556.—*Rogers.*²

¹ An. 1551 George Grey D.D. master of St. John's Coll. Camb., is said to be Bp. of Chester, in Parker's View of Camb. written an. 1622 in latin, and published by Mr. Hearn in his Leland's Collectanea. But this is said to be a mistake for B. of Chichester, by Mr. Willis.—Gastrell's Note. George Day S. T. P. (not Grey) Fell. of King's Coll. Camb. 1528, and Vice Chanc. of the Univ. 1537, was elected Bishop of Chichester April 24th, 1543, deprived Oct. 10th, 1551, restored in 1553, and died Aug. 2d, 1556.—Reg. Cranmer, a. c. Rymer, vol. xiv. p. 758. Godwin, as quoted by Le Neve, p. 58.

² John Bird D. D. descended from an ancient family in Cheshire, educated as a Carmelite Friar at Oxford, and distinguished there by his learning and zeal. In 1516 he became Provincial of the Order of Carmelites throughout England, which office Godwin erroneously states he held at the Dissolution of the Monasteries. Antony à Wood insinuates that Bird did not advocate the King's supremacy until he found that the Pope's power was waning, when Henry the Eighth appointed him one of his Chaplains and thus confirmed his hitherto wavering opinions. He was soon after consecrated Bishop of Ossory, from which he was translated in 1539 to Bangor and thence to Chester in 1541. On Queen Mary's accession he accommodated himself to the changes which were introduced, but could not preserve his See, of which Le Neve says he was deprived on the 1st of March, 1553, in consequence of his being married.

Wood states that the Bishop after his deprivation lived in obscurity at Chester, and dying there in 1556 was buried in the Cathedral, (Athen. Oxon. vol. i. p. 81 fol. 1692) in which he disagrees with Le Neve, who has recorded that he is buried at Dunmow in Essex, and that historian believes he died there. (Fasti. Eccl. Ang. p. 341. fol. 1716.) Bishop Bird was a learned man, and published several short theological tracts in Latin and English. Posterity however would have thought more favourably of him had he not alienated some of the revenues of his See, and made leases injurious to his successors.

2. 1556. George Cotes, Preb. of Chester, Magd. Coll. Oxon., after Master of Baliol Coll. Oxon.¹
3. 1557. Cuthbert Scot, Master of Christ's Coll. Camb.²
4. 1561. Will. Downham, of Magd. Coll. Oxon., upon y^e deprivation of Scot.³

1556.

¹ George Cotes was B.A. (not B.D. as printed in Ormerod's History of Cheshire) in 1522, when he was elected Probationer Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford. He afterwards became a Fellow of Magdalen College in the same University; M. A. 1526, Proctor 1531, and elected Master of Balliol in 1539. He was also Rector of Cotgrave near Nottingham, and became Prebendary of Chester in 1544, and on the 1st of April, 1554, was consecrated Bishop of Chester at the Church of St. Saviour, Southwark.

He did not long survive his last appointment, as he died at Chester in the year 1555, very shortly after he had condemned George Marsh to the fires of martyrdom.

² Cuthbert Scot S. T. P. He was educated at Christ's College in Cambridge, and was appointed Master of his College in 1553, became Vice Chancellor of the University in 1555, and had the temporalities of the See of Chester delivered to him in 1556. He was an active and zealous Romanist, and was implicated in the burning of Bucer's bones at Cambridge.

He was concerned in most of the political movements of his day, and being disaffected towards Queen Elizabeth and opposed to the reformed religion was imprisoned in the Fleet in London, from which he escaped, and died at Louvain about the year 1560. — Rymer's Fædera, vol 15, p. 434, 444.

³ William Downham D. D. was born in Norfolk, elected Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, in 1544, and appointed Chaplain to the Lady Elizabeth who, when Queen, nominated him to a Canonry in Westminster in 1560, and on the 4th May, 1561, he was consecrated Bishop of Chester. He was created B.D. and D.D. in 1566, having both degrees in Divinity given him by the University, and a Dispensation granted for all Exercises, he being required only to preach before the University. He died in November, 1577, aged 72, and was buried in the Cathedral of Chester, with a monumental inscription, preserved by Webb, but the monument itself has long since perished.

Bishop Downham was very rigid in enforcing conformity, and many of his Clergy were summoned before him, subjected to his censures, and in some instances deprived, for their deviations from the rubrics and usages of the Church. He returned a very accurate account of the state of his Diocese to the Lords of the Privy Council in 1563, which is now amongst the Harleian MSS. and a copy of it is also preserved in the Registry at Chester.

His sons were eminent theologians and had their merit suitably rewarded. George Downham became Bishop of Derry, and John Downham B. D. a learned writer, had various preferments. The Bishop's daughter married Mr. Roger Bradshaw of Aspull, afterwards of Pennington, in the county of Lancaster.

5. 1579. Will. Chaderton, Fellow of Christ's Coll., afterwards Master of Queen's, Camb. and Marg. Div. Professour, transl. to Lincoln.¹
6. 1595. Hugh Billot or Bellot, Bp. of Bangor, Fellow of St. John's Coll. Camb. Died at Birie in Wales, buried at Wrexham. — Rogers.²

In 1579 he was nominated to the See of Chester, being consecrated on the 8th Nov. in the Church of St. Gregory, near St. Paul's, London, the See having been some time vacant; and in the same year he accepted the Wardenship of Manchester in commendam. Here he chiefly resided, and, from a letter to him from the Earl of Huntingdon, seems to have been very partial to his native town. — Peck's Desid. Curiosa, vol. i. l. iii. p. 28.

He was a member of the Ecclesiastical Commission for the North; and it must be admitted that he used considerable severity towards the Papists, fines and imprisonment being amongst the strongest arguments he employed to induce that turbulent and seditious body to acknowledge the Queen's Supremacy. One of the Priests executed at Lancaster in 1584 as a traitor and rebel, complained of Chadderton as "a Calvinist, and a false and cruel Bishop," charges which lose much of their severity when proceeding from the friend of Campian and Persons.

Antony à Wood says that the Bishop showed more respect to a Cloak than a Cassock, and there is no doubt that he was a successful preacher and a zealous Puritan; although by a reference to the Act Books of the Bishop of Chester it will be found that he was strict in enforcing the use of clerical vestments, and both suspended and deprived some of his Clergy for their disregard of the Rubric. On the 5th of April, 1595, he was translated to Lincoln, when he resigned the Wardenship of Manchester. He died at Southoe in Huntingdonshire, April 11th, 1608.

He left issue one daughter Joan, the first wife of Sir Richard Brooke, of Norton Abbey, "but these after parted and lived asunder."

² Hugh Bellot D. D. second son of Thomas Bellot of Moreton Hall in the County of Chester Esq. Le Neve says he was brought up in Queen's College Cambridge, though Leycester gives him to St. John's. He was Proctor in 1570, and afterwards Rector of Tydd near Wisbeach, and Vicar of Gresford near Wrexham, both in Episcopal patronage.

7. 1596. Richard Vaughan, Bishop of Bangor, Fellow of St. John's, Camb. Transl. to London.¹

He was consecrated Bishop of Bangor January 25th, 1585, and translated to Chester June 25th, 1595. He was Bishop of Chester about seven months, and was buried at Wrexham in Denbighshire in 1596, aged 54, where a monument was erected to his memory by his brother, Cuthbert Bellot, Prebendary of Chester.

¹ Richard Vaughan D.D. a native of Caernarvonshire, educated at St. John's College in Cambridge, and one of the Queen's Chaplains. He was B.D. in October 1588, when he was collated by Bishop Aylmer to the Archdeaconry of Middlesex. He was also a Canon of Wells. He succeeded Bellot in the See of Bangor, being consecrated November 22d, 1595, and was also his successor at Chester, being translated thither, according to Lee, May 16th, 1596, which is probably the correct date, although the generality of his biographers state that he did not become Bishop of Chester until 1597, which might be the date of his consecration. He was translated to London December 24th, 1604, and dying of apoplexy on the 30th March, 1607, was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral. Wood says he was accounted an excellent preacher and a pious liver.

His daughter Elizabeth married Thomas Mallory B.D. Dean of Chester, and had plentiful issue. His niece married the celebrated critic Dr. William Watts, Archdeacon of Wells, the friend of Vossius and Spelman.

It appears from the Bishop's Registers that, like some of his predecessors, he was much concerned to repress the spirit of insubordination and impatience of Episcopal restraint which he found existing among his Clergy. Failing in his attempts to act as the spiritual adviser and comforter of his clerical brethren, and to uproot their antipathy to certain ancient and decent Ecclesiastical forms, he frequently cited them to appear before him in the Parish Church of Aldford, in which village he then resided, and publicly vindicated in their presence the polity of the Church. A formidable combination of Clergy, Laity, and strong prejudices was not, however, easily overcome, and the exclusively sectarian spirit which animated these good but mistaken men could not be subdued; instead of a kind and grateful feeling being excited towards the Bishop, who was really conciliatory and forbearing in his first proceedings, and sought to avoid rather than provoke controversy, he was regarded by them as their spiritual enemy, and one who sought to fetter their independence and destroy their liberty. On the 3d of October, 1604, a large body of Lancashire dissentients appeared before the Bishop at Aldford. They were the "ringleaders" of nonconformity in South Lancashire; and from their zeal, piety, and laborious discharge of their ministerial functions in populous Parishes, merited, and apparently received, kind and impartial treatment; but their minds were warped by inveterate prejudices, and they endured their self-imposed trials with the fortitude of confessors and the spirit of martyrs. Amongst these ancient and pertinacious worthies were Richard Midgley, sen. (then deprived of the vicarage of Rochdale, though a preacher in the Diocese;) Joseph Midgley, his son, Vicar of Rochdale, (afterwards deprived;) William Barnes; Ellis Saunderson, Vicar of Bolton; James Gosnall; Thomas Hunt, Minister of Oldham, (the tutor of Sir George Radcliffe the friend and Secretary of the Earl of Strafford;) Richard Rothwell, (a convert of the elder Midgley, and in 1619 Chaplain of the Earl of Devonshire at Hardwicke;) James Ashworth; and Edward Walsh, Vicar of Blackburn, (who resigned his Living from scruples as to the use of the Surplice, and lived and died in retirement at Walshfold, near Over Darwen.)

8. 1604. George Lloyd, Bishop of Man, Fellow of Magd. Coll. Camb. Parson of Bangor and of Thornton, where he died; buried at Chester. Rogers.¹

These were all publicly admonished by the Bishop, and required to conform to the Liturgy and Ceremonies of the Church, and also to subscribe, ex animo, to the three articles in the 36th Canon. They were all cited to appear again at the same place on the 28th of November next following, but the only one who complied with the order was Rothwell. They appear to have been "Revolters after Subscription," and such as were contemplated in the 38th Canon.

In those days, when roads were proverbially bad and public conveyances unknown, a journey to Aldford must have been attended with serious inconvenience, especially on a gloomy and boisterous November-day. It may however tend to mitigate our sympathy with these courageous men to know, on unquestionable authority, that at this time "they were very factious and insolent." — Burnet's Hist. of his Own Times, vol. i. p. 20.

¹ George Lloyd D.D. son of Meredith Lloyd of the county of Caernarvon, was a Fellow of Magdalen College in Cambridge, and Rector of Halsall near Ormskirk. He was consecrated Bishop of Sodor and Man in 1599, and was translated to Chester January 14th, 1604–5. He departed this life at Thornton in the Moors, near Chester, of which parish he was Rector, on the 1st August, 1615, aged 55 years, and was privately buried in the Choir of the Cathedral of Chester. Mr. Thomas Shute, his Lordship's Domestic Chaplain, according to the custom of the time, preached his funeral sermon in the Cathedral the Sunday following his death.

Gerard Massie (called George by Le Neve) B.D. son of William Massie of Grafton Hall in Cheshire, was nominated to the Bishoprick on the death of Lloyd; but died before consecration. He was Rector of Wigan in Lancashire, and dying in London January 16th, 1615–16, was buried in the Savoy Church. — Ormerod's Cheshire, vol. ii. p. 387. He was of Brasenose College, Oxford, and Junior Proctor April 22d, 1601. — Wood's Fasti Oxon. p. 784.

² Thomas Moreton S. T. P. son of Richard Moreton of York, mercer, born in that city March 20th, 1564, and educated there and at Halifax. He distinguished himself by his extensive classical and theological attainments at Cambridge, and was elected a Fellow of St. John's College. He became B.D. in 1598, and was presented to the Rectory of Long Marston near Tadcaster. In 1602 he rendered himself conspicuous by his fearless attendance on the sick during the prevalence of the Plague in York, and becoming Chaplain to Lord Evers accompanied that nobleman in 1603 in his embassy to the Emperor of Germany. On his return he was appointed Domestic Chaplain to the Earl of Rutland, and wrote the first part of the Apologia Catholica, in consequence of the merit of which Archbishop Toby Mathews collated him to a prebendal stall at York. In 1608 he graduated D.D. and was appointed Chaplain to James I. from whom he received the Deanery of Gloucester, and in the following year succeeded to the Deanery of Winchester and the Rectory of Aylesford near Maidstone. He was a great benefactor to Winchester Cathedral.

He was elected Bishop of Chester May 22d, 1616, and was consecrated at Lambeth July 7th. With this See he held the Rectory of Stockport, and diligently applied himself to reconcile popish recusants and scrupulous nonconformists to the Church, and his success was noticed in the Royal Declaration in 1618. He was translated to Lichfield and Coventry March 6th, 1618, and advanced to Durham, June 29th, 1632.

He died at the house of Sir Henry Yelverton, Bart. at Easton Mauduit in Northamptonshire, September 23d, 1659, aged 95 years, unmarried, and was buried in the Parish Church there, with a long epitaph recounting his preferments and sufferings. He endured, with much resignation, hardships, confiscation, and imprisonment, and has long had justice done to his memory as a good scholar, a sound Churchman, and a loyal subject. His very interesting Life was written by his Chaplain, John Barwick D.D. Dean of St. Paul's, and published in London, 4to, 1660. Clarendon mentions Bishop Moreton as being one of the "less formal and more popular prelates."—Vol. i. b. iii. p. 409.

¹ John Bridgeman D.D. son of Edward Bridgeman of Exeter Esq. sheriff of Devon in 1578. He was educated at Cambridge, and elected Fellow of Magdalen College, of which he was afterwards chosen Master, and appointed Chaplain to James I. In 1615 he was presented by the King to the Rectory of Wigan, then worth £80. 13s. 4d. per annum, and next in value to Winwick, the best Living in the county. He was also Prebendary of Lichfield and Peterborough.

He was consecrated Bishop of Chester 9th May, 1619, at Lambeth, the revenues of the See amounting at that time to £420 per annum. In 1621 he became Rector of Bangor-Iscoed in Flintshire. He held his See until Episcopacy was suspended under the Commonwealth, and on the 15th December, 1650, his Palace, with all the furniture, was sold by the Republicans for £1059. He died at his son's house at Moreton, and was buried at Kinnersley Church in Shropshire about the year 1658. In 1719 his grandson erected a monument to his memory.

11. 1660. Brian Walton, of Peter-house Camb. Died at London.¹
12. 1661. Hen. Ferne, Master of Trinity Coll. Camb. Died at London before he took possession.²

Bishop Bridgeman was a pious and useful member of the Church, and discharged the duties of his sacred function in a consistent and exemplary manner. He maintained annually at his own expense hopeful young men at the Universities, and preferred some to ecclesiastical honours who afterwards assisted in depriving him of his mitre.

He bought an estate, built a house, and consecrated a domestic chapel at Great Lever near Bolton, in 1634, but does not appear to have resided much at it. His third son Henry Bridgeman, Bishop of Man, married Katherine daughter of Robert Lever of Lever, gentleman, and had one daughter, Elizabeth, the wife of Thomas Greenhalgh of Brandlesome Hall Esq.

The Bishop of Chester was also father of Sir Orlando Bridgeman, created a Baronet June 7th, 1660, who was successively Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Lord Keeper of the Great Seal. He was the direct ancestor of the present Earl of Bradford.

¹ Brian Walton D.D. a native of Cleveland in the North Riding of Yorkshire, born in the year 1600, admitted of Magdalen College, Cambridge, as a Sizer, and removed thence to St. Peter's College in 1616. He graduated M.A. in 1623, and D.D. in 1639, being then a Prebendary of St. Paul's and Chaplain to Charles I. His persecutions and losses during the Great Rebellion having driven him into retirement, he projected his great work the Polyglot Bible, an imperishable monument of his learning and industry, which was first printed at London in six folio volumes in 1657. On presenting this work to Charles II. at the Restoration, he was made Chaplain to the King, and consecrated Bishop of Chester in Westminster Abbey, on the 2d of December, 1660. A. à Wood gives a minute and graphic description of the enthusiastic reception which the Bishop met with from the Clergy and Gentry of Cheshire when he went to take possession of the long desecrated See. The joy of the people on the national resuscitation of Episcopacy was unbounded, and evinced itself by the most public and decided manifestations.—Wood's Athen. vol. ii. p. 731. He enjoyed his new situation for a short time only, and dying at his house in Aldersgate Street, London, on the 29th of November, 1661, aged 62, was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral.]

² Henry Ferne D.D. eighth son of Sir John Ferne Knt. (himself a literary man,) was born at York, educated at Uppingham in the county of Rutland, admitted of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, in 1618, but removed to Trinity College, Cambridge, where he was elected Fellow, and proceeded B.D. He afterwards became Chaplain to his fellow citizen, Dr. Moreton Bishop of Durham, and was presented by his College to the Vicarage of Kirkby-Malzeard near Ripon. In 1642 he was Chaplain to Charles I. and D.D. being at that time Rector of Medbourn near Leicester. He was one of the King's Commissioners, along with Hammond, Sheldon and others, to treat at Uxbridge in matters relating to the Church. — Clarendon, vol. v. p. 516. He was a personal favourite of the King, and suffered much for the Royal Cause; but at the Restoration a succession of dignities and rewards was conferred upon him. He was Master of Trinity College August 3d, 1660, Vice Chancellor the same year, installed Dean of Ely March 12th, 1660–1, Archdeacon of Leicester, which office he resigned in 1661, Prolocutor of the Convocation May 8th, 1661, and Vice Chancellor a second time, the November following. He was consecrated Bishop of Chester February 9th, 1661–2, and died five weeks afterwards, on March 16th, and was buried with great honour, March 25th, 1662, aged 59 years, having never been at Chester. A. à Wood styles him a learned person. In 1642 he published his “Case of Conscience, touching Rebellion,” being the first printed vindication of the Royal Cause. — Bentham’s Ely, p. 235. Wood’s Athen. Oxon. Ormerod’s Cheshire.

¹ George Hall D.D. son of the pious and admirable Joseph Hall, Bishop of Norwich, was entered of Exeter College, Oxford, in 1628, being then aged 16 years, elected Fellow of his College in 1632, collated to a Prebend in Exeter Cathedral in 1639, and installed Archdeacon of Cornwall October 8th, 1641. He was presented by his College to the Vicarage of Menherriot near Liskeard, but was deprived of his benefice, and prevented keeping a school for his subsistence, during the Usurpation. At the Restoration he became Chaplain to the King, proceeded D.D. was appointed Canon of Windsor, and collated by Archbishop Juxon to the Archdeaconry of Canterbury in 1660, which latter dignity he held in commendam with the See of Chester, of which he was consecrated Bishop May 11th, 1662. About the same time he was presented to the Rectory of Wigan by Sir Orlando Bridgeman, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas. His death was occasioned by a wound he received from a knife which happened to be in his pocket as he accidentally fell from a terrace in the Rectory garden at Wigan, on the 23d of August, 1668, aged 55 years. He was buried in the Rector’s Chancel within Wigan Church, where a marble monument was erected to his memory, on which he is styled “Ecclesiæ Dei servus inutilis, sed cordatus ;” but being considered by the Non-conformists as unduly harsh in his enforcement of the penal statutes against them, he was, according to their interpretation, “Dei servus inutilis.” He gave by will his golden cup and his estate in Cornwall to the Rector and Fellows of Exeter College for the benefit of that society. He published several Sermons, and a Treatise against Popery, with the singular title of “The Triumphs of Rome over Despised Protestantism,” London, 1655.” He left no issue by his wife Gertrude, sister of Sir Amos Meredith, of Ashley in Cheshire.

² John Wilkins D.D. son of Walter Wilkins, citizen and goldsmith, of Oxford, and his wife, a daughter of Dr. John Dod, of Shocklach in Cheshire, commonly called the Decalogist. He was born in 1614, and in 1627 was entered of New Inn, Oxford, but removed to Magdalen Hall, where he graduated. On the breaking out of the Rebellion he took the Covenant, and in 1648 was created B.D. and made Warden of Wadham College by the Presbyterian Committee for the Reformation of the University. He afterwards subscribed to the Engagement, and complied with the various changes of the times, though apparently steadily attached to the Monarchy. About 1656 he married Robina, sister of Oliver Cromwell, by whom he had no issue, and in 1659 he was appointed Master of Trinity College, Cambridge. On the Restoration he took the required oaths and was appointed Dean of Ripon, afterwards Dean of Exeter, and also Preacher to the Honourable Society of Gray's Inn. Through the influence of George Duke of Buckingham he obtained the Bishoprick of Chester, and was consecrated November 15th, 1668, holding with it the Rectory of Wigan. He died at the house of Dr. Tillotson, who had married his daughter in law, on the 19th of November, 1672, and was buried in the Church of St. Lawrence Jewry, in London. He was one of the founders of the Royal Society to which he bequeathed four hundred pounds, and a pious, learned and scientific man, being greatly esteemed by Tillotson, Burnet, and the latitudinarian divines. Calamy says "many ministers were brought in by Bishop Wilkins's soft interpretation of the terms of conformity," vol. i. p. 346. Vide also Life of Adam Martindale, p. 196, in confirmation of this statement. "He was no great read man," says Aubrey, "but one of much and deepe thinkeing, and of a working head, and a prudent man as well as ingeniose. He was a lustie, strong growne, well sett, broad shouldered person, cheerful and hospitable. He was extremely well beloved in his Diocese." — Lives of Eminent Men, vol. ii. p. 503, 8vo. 1813.

¹ John Pearson D.D. F.R.S. born at Snoring (or Creake) in Norfolk, February 12th, 1612, educated at Eton, admitted of King's College, Cambridge, B.A. 1635, M.A. 1639, and shortly afterwards Prebendary of Sarum. In 1640 he was appointed Chaplain to Lord Finch, who presented him to the Rectory of Torrington in Devonshire. During the Civil War he was Chaplain to Lord Goring, and afterwards in the same capacity in the family of Sir Robert Cook in London. In 1650 he was minister of St. Clement's in Eastcheap, London, at which Church he preached his incomparable Lectures on the Creed, and afterwards published them, as he states in the Dedication to his Parishioners, at their request.

At the Restoration he was nominated one of the King's Chaplains, installed Prebendary of Ely September 22d, 1660; on the 26th of the same month and year appointed Archdeacon of Surrey, and admitted Master of Trinity College on the 14th April 1662. Elected F.R.S. 1667.

This great and learned man was consecrated Bishop of Chester February 9, 1672-3, and held the Rectory of Wigan in commendam.

He died July 16th, 1686, and was buried in his own Cathedral without any memorial. Burnet says, he was in all respects the greatest Divine of the age: a man of great learning, strong reason, and of a clear judgment. He was a judicious and grave preacher, more instructive than affective, and a man of a spotless life and of an excellent temper. He was not active in his diocese, but too remiss and easy in his episcopal function; and was a much better Divine than a Bishop. He was a speaking instance of what a great man may fall to; for his memory went from him so entirely that he became a child some years before he died.—Hist. Own Times, vol. iii. p. 109–10.

His Diary from August 1686 to October 1687 has been edited by Mr. Hunter for the Camden Society, and will increase the unfavourable estimate which posterity has formed of the vacillating principles of this unhappy Prelate, although there still appears to be insufficient evidence to conclude, with Mr. Ormerod, that the Bishop on his death-bed expressed his faith in equivocal terms, leaving it doubtful whether he died in the communion of the Protestant or Popish Church; for even Burnet, who says he was "one of the worst of men," adds, "bad as he was, he never made that step even in the most desperate state of his affairs;" and A. à Wood rescues him from a similar charge.—Wood's Ath. vol. ii. p. 629; Newcourt's ¹ Nicholas Stratford D.D. born at Hempstead in the county of Herts in 1633, and admitted scholar of Trinity College, Oxford, June 17th, 1650, proceeded B.A. 1653, M.A. 1656, and elected Fellow of his College in that year, B.D. 1672, and D.D. 1673. He married a daughter and co-heiress of Dr. Luddington, Archdeacon of Stow, a near relative of Archbishop Dolben. This Prelate in 1667 procured for Mr. Stratford the Wardenship of Manchester, which dignity he resigned in 1683. Whilst resident in Manchester, where he showed great forbearance towards those who differed from him on important subjects, he was appointed Dean of St. Asaph, being installed on the 9th of July, 1673, and had other valuable preferments conferred upon him, which his zeal in the pulpit, and exemplary conduct out of it, well merited.

He was consecrated Bishop of Chester at Fulham on the 15th September, 1689. He was a firm supporter of the polity and principles of the English Church, and was esteemed a learned and primitive Ecclesiastic. It is recorded of him that he never admonished or reproved others but in the spirit of meekness and conciliation, a testimony which appears sufficiently confirmed by the Christian tone which pervades his "Dissuasive against Revenge," which he addressed to the conflicting parties in Manchester on leaving that parish. He was appointed one of the Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne in the first Charter, dated 3d November 3 Anne.

He died February 12th, 1706-7, aged 74, and was buried in his own Cathedral, his whole diocese witnessing that in simplicity and godly sincerity he had had his conversation in the world. He was charitable and benevolent, humble and devout.

A fine portrait of the Bishop, now in the possession of John S. Entwisle of Foxholes Esq. was engraved by Thomson, in 1830, for Dr. Hibbert Ware's History of the Collegiate Church of Manchester.

His Lordship's only son, William Stratford L.L.D. Archdeacon of Richmond and Canon of Christ Church, dying unmarried May 7th, 1729, æt. 58, devised large estates to trustees for augmenting poor Livings in the North, in conjunction with Queen Anne's Bounty, and for other pious uses, and also bequeathed several MS. volumes of State Papers to the British Museum.

² Sir William Dawes Bart. D.D. youngest son of Sir John Dawes Bart. was born on the 12th September, 1671, near Braintree in Essex, and educated in Merchant Taylors School. In 1687 he was admitted of St. John's College, Oxford, of which he afterwards became Fellow; but, on the death of his elder brother, he removed to St. Catherine Hall, Cambridge. He was appointed Dean of Bocking by Dr. Tenison, Archbishop of Canterbury, and about 1697 was nominated Chaplain to King William III. whose favour he secured by a sermon preached on the 5th of November. The year preceding he was elected Master of St. Catherine Hall, and was also Vice Chancellor of the University.

Being disappointed of the Bishoprick of Lincoln in 1705, the Queen nominated him, without application, to that of Chester, and on the 8th of February, 1707, he was consecrated. He was very bountiful to the poor Clergy of the Diocese, and augmented several small Livings. In 1714 he was translated to York; Archbishop Sharpe, who died at Bath February 2d, 1713-14, having obtained a promise from Queen Anne that Sir William Dawes should be his successor, because his Grace thought that he would be diligent in executing the duties of his laborious office.

Archbishop Dawes and Bishop Gastrell were the only Prelates who defended Bishop Atterbury when committed to the Tower on suspicion of treason; and although the ruling powers were strongly opposed to Atterbury, it is said by Noble that had Dawes lived he would, in all probability, have been appointed to the See of Canterbury. He died however, suddenly, on the 30th of April, 1724, in his 53d year.—Noble's Contin. Grainger's Biogr. Hist. vol. ii. p. 78, 1806; and Stackhouse's Preface to Sir W. Dawes' Works, where there is a long and highly flattering character of this good Prelate.

The Archdeaconryes.

Two Arch-
deaconryes.

THE Diocese of Chester is divided into two Archdeaconryes — Chester and Richmond.

Dr Will. Knight¹ being Archdeacon of both surrendered both to K. Hen. 8.

After the erection of y^e Bishoprick the two Archdeacons were to receive 50^l p. an. each from the Bishop, but were to exercise no Jurisdiction but w^t he was pleased to grant them.² v. Char. of Foundation.

¹ William Knight L.L.D. born in London, educated at Winchester School, Fellow of New College, Oxford, in 1493, and Secretary of State to Henry VII. and Henry VIII. He was appointed Archdeacon of Chester in 1522, and Archdeacon of Richmond in 1529, and received other honours as rewards for his services as a Diplomatist. In 1541 he was consecrated Bishop of Bath and Wells, and surrendered his Archdeaconries to the King. He had received an annual income from the Archdeaconry of Chester amounting to £77. 10s. as appears by the General Ecclesiastical Survey 26 Henry VIII. but see Note p. 23, which shows that its value was afterwards diminished. He died September 29th, 1547, and was buried at Wells, having bequeathed £100. for the expenses of conveying his body thither from London, and for a Tomb. He also left £40. to New College, and £20. to Winchester College, by Will dated August 12th, 1547. Bishop Godwin says the curious stone pulpit, against the great pillar in the south nave of Wells Cathedral, was built for his Tomb. Bishop Knight also erected a stone cross in the market place of Wells. — De Præsul.

² Bishop Bird had influence enough to get the entire archidiaconal power vested in himself, subject to the payment of this stipend to a nominal Archdeacon. He reserved, however, after all, the stipend to himself, and had the office executed by a Deputy !

The modern Archdeacons have no jurisdiction whatever attached to their appointments, but the Archdeacon of Chester usually holds also the office of General Rural Dean of the Archdeaconry of Chester, which is rather of modern institution, as before Bishop Bridgeman's time there was a Rural Dean for each of the twelve Deaneries, but were united by that Bishop into one office. — Information of W. Ward Esq. Dep. Reg. to Dr. Ormerod ; but see Gastrell's statement, under the head of Rural Deans, p. 25.

These Archdeacons are installed in y^e Choir and take their turns of Preaching among the Dean and Preb. but have no Jurisdiction.

An. 1541 Grant of next turn of presenting to Archd. of Chester to Edm. Bp. of London,¹ and was confirmed By Hen. Man² Dean of Chester and y^e Chapter. v. Reg. D. & Chap.

The Archdeacons of Chester contains all Cheshire, that part of Lancashire w^{ch} lyes between the Mersey and the Ribble, and some pars [parishes] in Wales; and the other part of Lancashire, wth the districts of Yorksh. Cumb. and Westmorland, w^{ch} belong to this Diocese, are in the Archdeacons of Richmond.³

The Towns comprehended in y^e old hundreds of Attiscros and Erestan (mentioned in Domesday book) were by Stat. of 33 H. 8, cap. 13, taken from Cheshire and annexed to Flintshire, only Duddleston still continues in Cheshire, and Broxton Hundred. *Sr P. Leic. p. 189. 190.*⁴

In Domesday Book the Lands w^{ch} lye between the Ribble and the Mersey are reckoned in CESTERSIRE.⁵ Ib. 107. 432.

¹ Edmund Bonner, consecrated Bishop of London in 1540, deprived in 1549, restored by Queen Mary to his See in 1553, but again displaced in 1559, and died in 1569. See p. 23, Note 1.

² Henry Man D.D. the second Dean, consecrated Bishop of the Isle of Man in 1546, and, dying in 1556, was buried in the Church of St. Andrew Undershaft, London. He had been brought up a Monk, and was Prior of the Carthusian Monastery of Shene in Surrey at its dissolution.

³ Vide p. 4, Note 2.

Sir Peter Leycester was born at Tabley, March 3d, 1613, became a Gentleman Commoner of Brasenose College, Oxford, in 1629, and married Elizabeth, third daughter of Gilbert, Lord Gerard of Gerard's Bromley, November 6th, 1642. He was created a Baronet in 1660, (having been a sufferer during the Great Rebellion,) and died October 11th, 1678, æt. 65. See further Notices of him under Nether Tabley.

⁵ The county was called by the Saxons Cestrescyre, and the term Palatine was added because the Earls of Chester had palatine laws in the county, and all the inhabitants have been in fee or fealty to the said Earls only.—Webb's Descrip. of Chesh. The Bishop, however, was excepted, and held his lands immediately from the King, in the same manner as the Earls.—Sir P. Leycester's Hist. p. 107.

Ecclesiasticall Jurisdiction.

HE Jurisdiction under y^e Bishop is managed by a Chancellour, whose power extends to y^e whole Diocese, and a Commissary, whose power is Limited to y^e Archdeaconry of Richmond. Chancellour of Chester.

There is likewise a Generall Register whose Patent is of y^e same Extent with the Chancellour's, and a Register of Richmond who is under y^e same Limitations of the Commissary.

There are also Rurall Deans, who have a particular Jurisdiction wthin their severall districts.

The Chancellour keeps his Court in the Consistory of the Cathed. Church of Chester, and no where else but upon Visitations.

The first Patent for Chancellour in y^e old Reg. was granted to D^r David Yale¹ an. 1589 for his life. p. 253.

Another Patent was granted an. 1608 to D^r Yale and D^r Trevor, conjunctim et divisim for their joint lives and y^e longest liver. p. 255.

An. 1624 a Patent was granted in y^e same manner to D^r Yale and M^r Stafford. p. 379.

An. 1633 upon the death of D^r Stafford,² D^r Edmund Mainwaring³ was made Chancellour during his life only. p. 429.

¹ David Yale L.L.D. had a Patent from Bishop Chadderton, dated December 9th, 1587, on the death of Dr. Leche, who had been appointed Chancellor by Bishop Downham in 1562. He was educated at Cambridge, and was one of the Proctors of the University in 1575. He was collated to a Prebend at Chester in 1582, and married Frances, daughter of Dr. John Lloyd, forty years an Advocate in the Court of Arches.

² "Thomas Stafford L.L.B. upon Yale's resignation," had a Patent dated March 1st, 1624.—Ormerod, p. 87. He appears to have been the natural son, and faithful and trusty servant, of George Carew, created Earl of Totness in 1625. His MSS. chiefly relating to Religious Houses, were bought by Sir Simonds D'Ewes Bart. in 1633.

wife, daughter of Sir Edward Fitton of Gawsworth Knight; styled by Sir Peter Leycester Chancellor of Chester in 1642; but his Patent is not in the office.—Ormerod's Cheshire, p. 87. This statement of Bishop Gastrell confirms that of Leycester.

Dr. Mainwaring was father of Sir William Mainwaring, killed at the siege of Chester in 1643.

¹ Sir Timothy Baldwin Knt. L.L.D. Fellow of All Souls College, Oxon. in 1640, afterwards Principal of Hart Hall, Chancellor of the Dioceses of Hereford and Worcester, and a Master in Chancery. He was of Stoke Castle, in the county of Salop, and had a Patent from Bishop Walton November 30th, 1660: he resigned it a few months afterwards. He was living in 1673.

John Wainwright, the father, was of All Souls College, Oxon. and created L.L.D. October 19th, 1650.

Thomas Wainwright, the son, was also of the same College, and admitted L.L.D. April 26th, 1682.

³ Peregrine Gastrell Esq. L.L.B. had a Patent from his uncle, Francis, Lord Bishop of Chester, dated April 10th, 1721. He died July 23d, 1748, and was buried in St. Mary's Chapel, in Chester Cathedral.

THE first Patent for Reg. Generall in O.[ld] R.[egister] was made to George Wilmsley¹ and his assigns for 80 years anno Register of Chester.

In 1554 John Wilmsley L.L.B. Rector of Tarporley, another brother of the Chancellor, was collated to a Stall in Chester Cathedral, and became Archdeacon of Middlesex in the collation of his base brother Edmund Bonner.

In 1555 the Chancellor, along with Bishop Cotes, examined George Marsh, a husbandman and reputed heretic, then in Lancaster Castle, on his belief in the Eucharist, and there is some evidence for concluding that the Bishop was more tolerant than his Chancellor, who harshly condemned the unhappy man to the fires of martyrdom.

The religious changes which were again introduced on the accession of Elizabeth made no difference to the capacious creed of this pliant Ecclesiastic. In his Will, dated 25th January, 3d Elizabeth, with a Codicil dated February 5th, 1561, he styles himself "George Wilmsley L.L.B. of Tatttnall, and Chancellour," and amongst numerous large bequests, leaves to his son "Edmund Savage alias Wilmsley two Advowsons viz. the Advowson of the Parsonage of Astbury, worth de claro 100 marks, and the Advowson of the Archdeaconry of Chester," (which had been granted in reversion to Bonner, and thus identifies him with this family,) worth £50. by the year, "and God's blessing and mine." He names his "Cozen and Godson John Savage," and appoints Ellen his wife sole Executrix. Proved at Chester in 1562.

"Edmund Wilmeslow" succeeded to the Rectory of Tattenhall on his own presentation, in 1578, on the resignation of Ralph Wilmeslow. "Edmund Savage M.A. Rector of Tattenhall" occurs in vol. i. of the Bishop's Registers, December 1579, and died in 1582, doubtless the same individual mentioned in the Chancellor's Will. In the same Register also occurs "Thomas Savage Rector of Tattenhall, July 15th, 1593," but his name is not given in Ormerod's Catalogue of the Rectors.

Of the same family was another natural son, celebrated for his talents and misfortunes, pathetically described by Sheridan as

"Ill fated SAVAGE, at whose birth was given
No patron but the Muse, no friend but Heaven."

And in allusion to his life by Dr. Johnson,

"So pleads the tale, that gives to future times
The Son's misfortunes, and the Parent's crimes;
There shall the fame survive,
Fix'd by the hand that bids our Language live."

1544, in w^{ch} the Bp. obliges himself and successours to pay y^e Reg^r a Sal. of 4^l. 13^s. 4^d. for y^e exercise of his office during that term. In the preamble to w^{ch} patent it is said that Edw. Plankney (to whom this office was granted an. 1541) had for a large summe of money paid him by G. Wilmsley Resigned it for his use and advantage. Reg. p. 139.

An. 1553 The same Bishop (viz. Bird) Grants the Reversion of y^e Registership (after the death, resignation, or forfeiture, of Plankney) to Tho. and Geo. Savage, sons of G. Savage als Wilmsley, for their lives and the longest liver of them. p. 140.

In the same year we find one G. Wilmsley, Clark, Vic. Gen. to y^e Bp. in causis spirituall: v. Mottram Lease p. 173 who (as it appears by Tattenhall Lease. p. 179) was Chancellour, 4 Edw. 6.

An. 1662 A Patent for principall Regis. was granted to Ralph Morgyll, Jere.² Fuller and J. Tibbols² for their lives, in w^{ch} care is taken to secure the Rights of the Rurall Deans. Reg. of D. & Chap. B. 4.

² Printed Sew for Jere: and Tibbols for Tibbols, p. 91 in Ormerod's Cheshire, an easy mistake, as the hand writing of Gastrell is singularly cramped, and in some parts almost illegible. Tibboles appears to have been a relative or near connection of Bishop Walton's family. See Note under Thornton Steward Lease. He died in 1668.

¹ Walter Pope M.D. the uterine brother of Bishop Wilkins, wrote a Life of Seth Ward, Bishop of Salisbury, his brother's early friend and patron, with a brief account of Bishop Wilkins, Mr. Laurence Rooke, Dr. Isaac Barrow, Dr. Turberville, and others; 8vo, 1697. It is said to be a strangely written volume, but very curious and entertaining.—Lowndes' Bib. Man. Dr. Thomas Wood, cousin of Antony, Fellow of New College and Rector of Hardwicke, Bucks, published an anonymous pamphlet entitled "An Appendix to the Life of Bishop Seth Ward, in answer to Dr. Walter Pope's Life of Ward," (1697) in which the author had taken some unwarrantable liberties with the Oxford Antiquary.—Note in vol. ii. p. 33 of Letters written by Eminent Persons of the 17th and 18th Centuries, 8vo, 1813.

Dr. Wood severely censured the innocent pleasantries of Dr. Walter Pope in his Life of Dr. Ward. But if people will be oddities, what law is there against laughing at them? It is with more justice, perhaps, that he blames Dr. Pope for dwelling too much upon minutiæ.—Note by John Nichols F.S.A. in vol. i. p. 134 of Bp. Nicolson's Epistol. Corresp. 8vo, 1809.

Dr. Pope was also Registrar of all the Rural Deaneries in the Archdeaconry of Richmond. See p. 31.

¹ These were two of the younger sons of Bishop Cartwright, who notices this appointment in his Diary, February 3d, 1687. He had originally intended the office for his "Cousin Peter Whalley;" and afterwards bound his "ungracious son Richard, to Robert Peirce, chirurgion, for five years and gave with him £43, he to find him clothes for the future."

² The words "in the" appear to be a slip of the pen for "twelve," which was the number of Deaneries in the Archdeaconry of Chester.

³ The office of Rural Dean was not unknown to our Saxon ancestors, as it occurs

It does not appear by the Register at Litchfield that any Rural Dean ever exercised or claimed any Jurisdiction in the Diocese of Litchfield either since or before the Archdeaconry of Chester was severed from that See as is Certif^d by Rich. Rider Dep. Reg. an. 1689. v. pap.

They were likewise obliged to collect the Synodalls, Pensions, and other Dues, belonging to the Bp. as is specified in their Patents.

The first Patent we find in Reg. is dated 4 Edw. 6. in which the Deanries of Kirkdale, Lonsdale and Catherick are granted to Tho. Bland for life wth y^e power of correcting all crimes (except Simony and Heresy) and w^{thout} any reservation of Rent to the Bishop. p. 178.

in one of the laws ascribed to Edward the Confessor, and is a proof of the strong tendency to organization and subdivision which characterized the Saxons. The unmanageable extent of the Dioceses is supposed to have led to the appointment of districts to Rural Deans. The districts have been contracted or enlarged from time to time at the discretion of the Bishop, although the primitive allotment of ten [decem] Churches is supposed to have given the name of Dean to this delegate of the Bishop, and the term Rural was applied to distinguish him from the Dean of the Cathedral, or Mother Church. A little before the Reformation this useful and almost apostolic office fell into desuetude, and the Reformers appear to have adopted no means for its restoration. In the Convocation held at London April 3d, 1571, it was ordained that the Archdeacon should signify to the Bishop the names of Clergymen of learning and judgment, out of which he should select Rural Deans.—See Hunter's Hist. of South Yorks. vol. i. p. 1, and Burn's Eccl. Law, vol. i. A very learned and comprehensive dissertation on the whole subject may be seen in the speech of Dr. Atterbury to the Clergy of the Archdeaconry of Totness, in 1708, "On the antient and useful office of Dean Rural." — Atterbury's Epist. Corresp. and Remains, vol. ii. p. 234, 8vo, 1783. The office is of a temporary nature, and the jurisdiction depends on the pleasure of the Diocesan. The present Bishop of Chester has partially revived the office in his Diocese.

The Bp. granted these Deanryes by Patent, sometimes one, sometimes more, to y^e same person.

The Bp.'s monition to the Deans Rurall an. 1594. p. 198 of 2^d Leiger in y^e Regr^v.

There are many Grants of particular Deanryes to be found in the great Chapter Book (begun by Mr. Glazier¹ an 1581) between the years 1578 and 1617 but the oldest where any Rent is reserved is that of Manchester an. 1597 in w^{ch} also the Crimes of Adultery and Incest are excepted from the correction of y^e Dean Rurall. p. 272.

Bp. Bridgman in his Patents, granted an. 1624,² and afterwards limited the power of the Rurall Deans to crimina et excessus Incontinentiæ, leaving other offences to be punished by the Chancellour. p. 327.

An. 1635 Six Deanryes in Archd. of Chester, being fallen into his hand, viz. Chester, Bangor, Malpas, Frodsham, Middlewych and Namptwych, he granted them to D^r Snell³ Archd. of Chester, reserving to himself all profits arising from thence except y^e sum of 50^l w^{ch} the Archd. was to keep for y^e payment of his own An. Salary. p. 440.

And the same year he granted the Deanryes of Warrington, Leland and Blackburn to D^r Dod Archd. of Richmond⁴ in y^e like form for the payment of his salary. p. 441.

² "Also excepted the correction of these crimes" appears to have been inadvertently omitted in the text.

³ George Snell D.D. collated to the Archdeaconry of Chester in 1618, presented to the Rectory of Smeaton, in the county of York, 16—, to a moiety of Wallasey in 1619, (deprived thereof in 1645,) to a Prebend in Chester Cathedral in 1620–1, and to the Rectory of Waverton in 1632. He was a great sufferer during the Rebellion, and compounded for his estates, in 1645, by paying to the Parliament £330. He died in obscurity at Gilden Sutton in 1655.

⁴ Thomas Dod D.D. baptized at Shocklach, in the county of Chester, December 4th, 1576. He was nephew of John Dod commonly called the Decalogist. Dr. Dod

The execution of this Jurisdiction in y^e nine Deanryes before mentioned was immediately assigned over to y^e Chancellour upon condition y^t he paid to each Archdeacon 50^l p. an. Ib.

Bp. Bridgman did likewise recommend it to his successors that as he had assigned ii. Deanryes in Archd. of Chester for y^e payment of 100^l to y^e Archdeacons soe wⁿ y^e Deanryes of Copeland, Furnes, Lonsdale, Richmond, Catherick, Boroughbrigge and Kendale sh^d fall void, they would encrease the rents thereof to 36^l being the ancient income of all y^e Deanryes, and Amound. and Manchester might be bestowed at their old Rents upon Chaplains or other deserving Clergymen. p. 193.

An. 1666 Eleven Rurall Deanryes in Archd. of Chester were granted to Phil: Flanner. Reg. D. & Chap. B. 3.

An. 1686 B. Cartwright granted by Patent, confirmed by Chapter that year, to G. Waite and J. Cartwright¹ the same 11 Deanryes for their lives paying 100^l p. an. to y^e Bp. the Jurisdiction being exercised by Cartwright only, Waite acting as Register. This occasioned a controversy betw. y^e Chanc. and the R. Dean, the former pretending to a concurrent Jurisdiction in y^e Probate of Wills where the Inventory was under 40^l: But now the Jurisdiction is managed as in B. Pearson's time by the Chancellour, and the Register accounts wth y^e Bp. for y^e profits.

The Jurisdiction of y^e R. Deans in Archd. of Richmond has been for a long time managed by the Commissary, for w^{ch} he payes y^e Bp. the old Rent due from those seuerall Deanryes as is expressed in his Patent.

was presented to the Rectory of Astbury in 1607, and to a Prebend at Chester in the same year, to the Lower Medietty of the Rectory of Malpas (by James I. to whom he was Chaplain) in 1623, and held in addition the Archdeaconry of Richmond and Deanery of Ripon.

Webb notices him as having preached before the King at Nantwich, in his Majesty's progress through Cheshire, in 1617. He died and was buried at Malpas February 10th, 1647-8.

¹ "Dec. 29, 1686, I sealed a Patent of the Rural Deaneries [?] in Chester to my son John Cartwright and Thomas Waite at £100. per ann. rent."—Bishop Cartwright's Diary, edited by Mr. Hunter, F.S.A. who adds the interrogation in hooks which will be answered by Gastrell's text. The Christian name of Waite is doubtless correctly given by Cartwright, who mentions him several times, and Gastrell's initial letter is an error.

Waite was a Public Notary, a Proctor, and Cousin of Bishop Cartwright. He rendered himself very obnoxious to Bishop Gastrell by his extortions and want of principle in the discharge of his office. See Life of Gastrell.

¹ Richard Wroe, son of Richard Wroe, yeoman, of Heaton Yate in the parish of Prestwich, born there in 1641, and admitted in 1658 of Jesus College, Cambridge, B.A. 1661, and elected Fellow of his College the year following, M.A. 1665, B.D. 1672, and D.D. 1686. He found a warm patron in Mr. (afterwards Bishop) Stratford, who formed a high and just opinion of his talent and piety, and through whose influence he was elected a Fellow of Manchester College in 1675. In 1678 Bishop Pearson appointed him one of his Chaplains, and gave him a Stall in his Cathedral. In 1684 he was presented to the Wardenship of Manchester, "having by his eloquent exhortations obtained a celebrity which no head of the College had, perhaps, ever before enjoyed."—Dr. H. Ware's Hist. Coll. Ch. of Manchester. His celebrated Sermon on the death of Sir Roger Bradshaigh of Haigh, may furnish a clue to his extraordinary popularity, and is a good specimen of his style of preaching. He became Rector of West Kirkby in 1696, when he resigned the Vicarage of Garstang, to which he had been presented by Silvester Richmond in 1684, and in 1697 married his third wife, Dorothy, daughter of Roger Kenyon of Peel Esq. by whom he had a son, Roger Kenyon, who died young. Dr. Wroe died January 6th, 1717–18, æt. 76. He published three or more Sermons, now very scarce.

² Arthur Fogg of St. John's College, Cambridge, B.A. 1690, M.A. 1694, D.D. 1709, was the son of Dr. Fogg Dean of Chester, a native of Darcy-Lever in the parish of Bolton-le-Moors. The father and son held a multiplicity of preferments in the Diocese, and are both buried in the Cathedral.

An. 1598 a Patent was granted to Hum. Lloyd to be Register of all the Rurall Deanryes in the Diocese. p. 271.

An. 1665. Patent for Register to all y^e Rurall Deanryes in Archd. of Richmond. v. ant. Reg. to Commiss. of Richmond. Ever since that time the Reg. of Chester has had a grant of all y^e Rurall Deanryes in y^e Archd. of Richmond by a distinct Patent.

An. 1670 Patent granted to D^r Pope¹ (who was made Reg. Gen^l an. 1668) of all y^e Rurall D^s in Archd. of Richmond, confirmed by Chap. that year.

An. M^r G. Smith Reg. of Chester resigned his Patent, and Bp. kept these Deanryes in hand.

SEVERAL Patents for y^e office of Apparitour to distinct Deanryes may be seen in Reg. p. 402-403. Apparitour to R. Deanryes.

¹ In 1755 it was enacted by Parliament that these Mortuaries should cease, and that in lieu thereof, the Rectory of Waverton, after the next vacancy, should be appropriated to the Bishops of Chester for the time being.—28 Geo. II. c. 6.

Before this time the custom was for the Archdeacon (and after the erection of the Episcopal See of Chester, the Bishop, as Archdeacon) to have for a Mortuary after the death of every Priest dying in the Archdeaconry of Chester, the best horse or mare, his saddle, bridle, spurs, his best gown or cloak, his best hat, his best upper garment under his gown, his tippet, and his best signet or ring.—Cro. Car. 237; Burn's Eccl. Law, vol ii. 4to. 1763.

This custom was of great antiquity. In Saxon times there was a funeral duty to be paid which was called pecunia sepulchralis, and symbolum animæ, or the soul-shot, which was enforced by the laws of King Canute c. 14. The Mortuary was a right settled on the Church, upon the decease of a member, and not originally pro animâ defuncti, as Lyndwood thinks; nor was it in lieu of Tithes subtracted and Oblations not duly made.—Bishop Stillingfleet's Duties and Rights of the Paroch. Clergy. p. 245–6, 8vo, 1698.

Mortuaries were limited by Stat. 21 Henry VIII. c. 6, and this Act was made applicable to the Archdeaconry of Richmond by 26 Henry VIII. c. 15, where mortuaries had not been accustomed to be paid, but a share of the personal property called a pension or portion was received by the Clergy, which right or demand was abolished by this last mentioned Act.

In a MS. Journal in my possession, of William Stout, a Quaker, who died at Lancaster about the year 1744, there are several interesting notices of political and electioneering struggles between 1680 and 1740. The following refer to Sir Thomas Lowther:—

1722. "Upon the 26th of this mo. S^r Tho^s Lowther of Houlker and William Heysam of London was [were] elected Members of Parliament for Lancaster without opposition. . . . But the new Parliament not proving to the liking of the disaffected, they entered into a new conspiracy, to be executed when the King was gone to Hanover," &c. [Commonly called Atterbury's Plot.]
1734. "Great contests this year and much money spent upon the Election of a new Parliament. The Election for this Boro' [Lancaster] was on the 2^d of 3^d mo. this year. The Candedats were S^r Thomas Lowther, Robert Fenwick, Allen Harrison, and Captain Hamilton. They poled three days, by which Lowther had 615, Fenwick 525, Harrison 445, and Hamilton 352 votes; upon which Lowther and Fenwick were declared duly elected who had most of the Gentry and substantiall Freemen, being they were neighbours born and of good Estates. It was computed it might cost them all £5000. and particularly Harrison £2000. Hamilton came in his second and hung most of his charge on Harrison."
1741. "On the 24th 2^d mo. the King dissolved the Parliament, and the next day the Writts were made out for electing a new Parliament, and in the 3^d mo. the elections were most over. That for Lancaster was upon the 11th day, when Sir Thomas Lowther and Robert Fenwick Esq. were elected without opposition, or much expense, only treating the Freemen to the expense of about £100."

¹ Nicholas Hyde, Vicar of Mottram, was succeeded in 1575 by John Hide, on the presentation of Downham, Bishop of Chester. ¹ For some account of the Bretland Family see Note under Deanery of Macclesfield, Mottram. In 1689 the lives named in the Lease were those of Reginald Bretland Esq. George Booth of Chester Esq. and Martha Booth his wife. George Booth was eldest son of Sir John Booth, a younger son of Sir George, the first Baronet. Like Serjeant Bretland he was a Lawyer, and published a translation of Diodorus Siculus. He died in 1719, aged 84.

He became Rector of West Kirkby in 1730, and died at Chester in 1761.—For some further particulars of Mr. Mapletoft see Life of Bishop Gastrell.

In a letter dated Christ Church, Oxford, January 1st, 1719, Bishop Gastrell writes to his Secretary:—"The enclosed is just come to hand about Mottram. I have nothing farther to say upon it, but y^t if Mr. Bretland let it for £140 per ann. I may let it at the same rate to the same Tenants." And on the 12th January his Lordship writes:—"I am sorry to receive so bad an account of Mottram. I don't doubt but you have taken all the care you can to inform yourself, but y^e bargain of y^e Taxes surprizes me. £10 p. ann. at 4^{sh} in the pound makes it 100^l p. ann. clear. The estate of Sir Roger was then under sequestration, and this demise was granted by the Committee at Goldsmith's Hall, for the maintenance of the Ministers of "Raskell and Thuske," by which the learned committee of—I will not say Rascals—probably meant Raskelf and Thirsk.—*Parl. the 18th Nov. 1657, Mary, daughter of the Protector Cromwell, as Wilkins, Bishop of Chester, had married his sister, though not living when this Lease was made. Lord Belasyse, however, was opposed to the Usurper's views, and the latter, to use the strong language of Clarendon, "grew to hate him perfectly." He died December 31st, 1700.

"Lady Bellasis" was probably his Lordship's widow, who ob. March 14th, 1712, by whom he had no issue, and of whom Burnet writes, "she was a wise and worthy woman, more likely to have maintained the post (of Protector) than either of her brothers, according to a saying that went of her, that those who wore breeches deserved petticoats better; but if those in petticoats had been in breeches, they would have held faster."

In Captain Makay's Memoirs, published in 1713, Sir Thomas Frankland is described as "a gentleman of a very sweet, easy, affable disposition; of good sense, extremely zealous for the Constitution of his country, yet does not seem over forward; keeps an exact unity amongst the officers under him, and encourages them in their duty, through a peculiar familiarity, by which he obliges them, and keeps up the dignity of being master. He is a handsome man, middle stature, towards forty years old." He was Post Master General and in high favour with William III. and Queen Anne.

(See Burnet's remarks on Pearson's mental imbecility, p. 14, note.) In 1690 he became Rector of Northenden. He married Penelope, daughter of Robert Hyde of Hyde and Norbury Esq. and to this circumstance he was probably indebted for the Archdeaconry of Chester in 1707. His wife's kinswoman, Queen Anne, during a vacancy of the See, took the disposal of this Archdeaconry from the Lord Chancellor Cowper, and presented it to Dr. Thane. He died intestate in 1727, æt. 73 and administration of his effects was granted at Chester July 18th in that year.

² This lease was made to William Massey of Puddington Esq. William his son and heir, and William, son and heir of William Stanley of Hooton Esq. In 1641 William, then Sir William Massey Knt. was living and æt. 80, and William his son æt. 40. The other life had dropped. The Parsonage was sequestered by the Parliament for the delinquency of the said Sir William, he being a Papist and maintaining his sons in arms.—Parl. Inq. vol. iii. c. Sir William ob. 1649, aged 69, and William his son, being born in 1609, was at the taking of the Inquisition aged about 32, so that the Parliamentary chronology is fearfully inaccurate.—Vide Ped. Ormerod's Chesh. vol. ii. p. 309. William Massey Esq. the last heir male of the family, left his estates by will, dated Feb. 6th, 1715–16, to Thomas Stanley of Hooton Esq.

¹ Sir Thomas Holcroft of Vale Royal, Knight, was second son of John Holcroft of Holcroft in the county of Lancaster Esq. and his wife daughter and sole heiress of William Massey of Rixton. He was an active and unprincipled agent in the suppression of the religious houses, shared largely in their spoils, and his race became extinct in the third generation. He was knighted by Henry VIII.

¹ Sir Thomas Aston of Aston in the county of Chester, Sheriff of Cheshire in 1601, knighted in 1603, and died in 1613, leaving by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Arthur Manwaring of Ightfield in the county of Salop Knt. a son and heir, John Aston Esq. who was Sewer to Queen Anne, wife of James I. The Gastrell family subsequently became connected by marriage with the Astons.

² The family of Hignett or Higden were of Rowton near Chester for two centuries. The direct male line became exhausted about the latter end of the last century. Probably of this family was Jonathan Hignett of Allington in the county of Denbigh, Gent. (the Lessee) who purchased the residue of the term of this Lease of Edward Bridgeman of Sonkie in the county of Lancaster Esq. to whom it had been granted for the lives of Henry Bridgeman Esq. The Cathedrall Church of Chester.¹

Foundation.

A. 1541 this Cath. Church was erected, together with y^e Bishoprick, by H. 8. by y^e name and title of y^e Cathedrall Church of Christ and the Blessed Virgin Mary in Chester, consisting of a Dean and Six Prebendaryes, who make y^e body Corporate. v. Char. of Erection, p. 1 of Bridgman's Leiger.

The scite of y^e Monastery of St. Werburgh, with all the ancient privileges, libertyes, and customs belong : to it (excepting what was given to y^e Bp.) were granted to y^e Dean and Chapter. Ib.

¹ The Cathedral has been well and accurately described in a few words, by Pennant in his first Tour in Scotland, in 1769. It is an ancient structure, of a rough external aspect, being built of a red friable stone, which has mouldered with the lapse of years ; but the beauty of the Choir and the Chapter House attracts the notice of every traveller.

At the present time extensive alterations, which really merit the praise of successful and judicious improvements, are taking place in the Cathedral. The elongation of the Choir by taking in the Lady Chapel, the removal of an unsightly screen, the restoration of the ancient level of the Choir, the admission of well carved oak Stalls, the introduction of two windows of unrivalled stained glass, and of some other ecclesiastical proprieties, are all subjects of congratulation, not, perhaps, to those who admire a "gaudy religion," or who seek merely to produce show and effect in God's House, but to those who wish to see it in its proper character, as a work of faith and an object of pious veneration, and who painfully feel that, in an age of luxury and refinement, the opulent are living in houses of cedar, whilst the ark of the Lord dwelleth within curtains.

The Dean and Chapter, in these costly reparations, have been guided by the spirit

The King, by Charter, was to nominate the Dean and Prebendaries, but y^e disposition of y^e Prebends was afterwards granted to the Bp. by Q. Mary.¹

The first Dean was Tho. Clerk, the last Abbot, who, with y^e consent of his Convent, surrendered all y^e Estate and Right Belonging to y^e Monast. of St. Werburgh to the King.

The six first Preb. were Will. Walle, Nich. Bucksye, Tho. Newton, Joh. Huett, Tho. Radford, Rog. Smith. It.

THE first Charter of Dotation is of y^e same date with that of Dotation. erection, viz. 33 H. 8. v.[ide] Charter, p. 9.

But the word Cestriens being not there added to the Title, Eccles. Cath. X^{ti} et Beatae Mariæ Virginis, this Charter was made void by y^e Earl of Leicester, in Q. Eliz's. reign, and he obtained y^e Lands thereby granted to y^e D. and Chapter in Fee Farm. But the Queen an. R. 22 granted them a new Charter.² p. 19.

which animated ancient Founders and Benefactors. Religious feeling and correct taste are visible, as well as an accurate acquaintance with the history of the sacred structure in all its architectural details. There appears to be a laudable desire to preserve its primeval character, and at the same time to maintain its Cathedral features.

Any attempt to describe the various portions of this time-honoured structure would be incompatible with the nature and design of these Notes.

¹ For this grant the Queen obtained what was probably more than an equivalent. See p. 3.

² Confirming, or pretending to confirm, her father's Foundation, and desiring that the same "may be honourably endowed for the praise and honour of Almighty God, and that He may be worshipped in the same daily, according to her father's original intention, that the holy Gospel of Christ may be preached constantly and purely, that for the increase of Christian faith and piety the youth of the kingdom may be constantly instructed there in good learning, that hospitality may be exercised by the Dean and Prebends aforesaid, and the poor be there continually relieved," of her special grace the Queen granted certain Rents, Tithes, Lands, &c. part of the possessions of the dissolved Abbey of St. Werburgh. Dated Westminster, December 22d, 22 Eliz.

The Earl of Leicester became connected with the Cathedral lands in the following manner. Sir Richard Cotton, Comptroller of the household to Edward VI.

An. 25 Eliz. 1582, the Queen not only secured to y^e Church the yearly rent already Reserved upon the severall conveyances pretended to be made to y^e Fee Farmers, but also secured 150^l p. an. more Rent out of y^e Lands and Possessions then enjoyed by them, and ordered y^t it should be distributed in this manner, viz. annually, having procured the imprisonment of his honest opponents, Dean Cliffe and two of the Prebendaries of Chester in the Fleet prison, induced them, by intimidation, to convey almost the whole of their estates to him, reserving only a yearly rent of £603. 18s. 10d. to the Chapter. The two succeeding Deans endeavoured to set aside this bargain, as extorted by compulsion, and at length the Chapter having discovered that the original grant to their predecessors by Henry VIII. was null, in consequence of the accidental omission of the word Cestrie in the description of the grantees, made this circumstance known in a petition to the Queen, wherein they prayed that as, in consequence of this flaw, the right was vested in the Crown, she would regrant these estates, [which had been illegally obtained by Sir Richard Cotton,] to them, according to her royal father's intention. In the mean time Sir Richard, perfectly aware of the illegality of his proceedings, had sold the estates for small prices to the Fee Farmers. The purchasers, finding that they were likely to lose their cause, engaged the court favourite, Robert, Earl of Leicester, (who was Chancellor of the University of Oxford,) in their interest, by giving him six years' rent of the lands; the Earl, in consequence, procured the law proceedings to be stopped, and a Commission to be issued for hearing the matter before himself and other Lords of the Privy Council. The result was, that both parties surrendered all the estates in question to the Queen, who, in the year 1579, granted them to the several Fee Farmers, subject to certain rents payable to the Dean and Chapter, which form the principal part of their present endowment.—*Harl. ¹ This was a remnant, wisely preserved, of the old Conventual system, which always provided for the maintenance of poor Scholars, at the expence of the house, in one of the Universities. In 1478 and in 1521 the annual exhibition paid to the poor Scholar sent to the University from Whalley Abbey was £5.—See Whitaker's Hist. of Whalley, p. 99, third ed.

In the reign of Henry VIII. the necessity of supporting indigent youths at College was a frequent topic in the writings of the Reformers.

Becon, Chaplain to Archbishop Cranmer, says — “It were very expedient to remember the poor Scholars of the Universities of Cambridge and Oxford, for if they be not maintained, all learning and virtue will decay, and a very barbary shall brast in among us, and at the last, bring this our realm to destruction. We see daily many good wits compelled, from lack of exhibition, to forsake the Universities and to become serving men.” — Becon's Sick Man's Salve, p. 118, pub. by Parker Soc. 1844.

⁴ "King's Vale Royal," so often referred to by Bishop Gastrell, is a Collection of Treatises on the Antiquities of Cheshire, published by Daniel King in 1656.

The writers were William Smith, Rouge Dragon Poursuivant in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; William Webb M.A. whose Itinerary was written in 1621, and Samuel Lee, whose Chronicon Cestrense was especially composed for insertion in the Vale Royal. There are short biographical sketches of the respective authors in Ormerod's Hist. Chesh. and the whole of their publications have been reprinted and embodied in that learned and valuable work. Ant. à Wood says, "This Dan. King, who was a pitiful pretender to Antiquities, was a most ignorant silly fellow (as Sir Will. Dugdale hath informed me by letters) an errant Knave, and not able to write one line of true English. Afterwards he married a light Huswife, who stealing that money from him which for many years before he had been scraping together by his proggng and necessitous tricks and shifts, died heart broken for his loss, near York House, in the Strand, about 1664."—*Ath. Dr. Fuller estimated King's merit, as an antiquary, more highly than the Oxford historian, and has embalmed his name in prose and rhyme, both in Latin and English.

¹ The Abbey of St. Werburgh was surrendered, with all its lands, January 20th, 31st Henry VIII. under the Convent Seal. The Earl of Derby was at this time the Seneschal, and John [or Thomas] Clarke, the last Abbot, who had been elected about the year 1537, became the first Dean of the new Cathedral in 1541. His Will, dated the 14th of September, in the latter year, was proved at Chester, in which he ordered his body to be buried in the Cathedral. The ancient ecclesiastical method of deposing Abbots was to deprive them of the stole and ring, but in the sixteenth century a more summary and less symbolical method was devised by the Laity, which proved equally effectual.

At the Dissolution in 1547 the College consisted of a Dean and seven Prebendaries, this number agreeing with that of the houses belonging to the Church at the Domesday Survey. There were also four Vicars, (one of whom is called a Prebendary in the Pension Roll) a Clerk, and Sexton. Ormerod's Chesh.

The number of Vicars given in the Text appears to be erroneous.

He was successively Rector of Gotham in the county of Notts, and Vicar of Leek in the county of Stafford, held a Prebend in Lichfield Cathedral, the Archdeaconries of Stafford and Derby, and the Deanery of St. John's, in Chester, which he surrendered in 1547, to ingratiate himself with Royalty, and was appointed to this Deanery in 1558. He died in 1567, æt 66.

The foundation took place in 1153 according to the Monasticon, but in 1158 according to an indorsement on the foundation Charter. Randal Blundeville translated the monks to Dieulacres in Staffordshire, and after his return from the Holy Land built them a convent there about the year 1220.

At the Dissolution, the Manor of Pulton was sold to Mr. Manley, a tenant of the Convent, whose descendant sold it, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, to Richard Grosvenor of Eaton Esq. ancestor of the present most noble owner.

² Richard de Aldford in the reign of Henry III. gave the Manor of Byley to God, St. Mary, and the Monks of Pulton, which grant Randal de Blundeville confirmed. 14th Hen. ¹ Hamon de Masci, third Baron of Dunham Massey, founded this Priory about the year 1250, for sixteen Monks of the Benedictine Order.

In 27th Edward III. the Abbot claimed the right of ferrying passengers from Birkenhead to Liverpool, and of building houses for their accommodation, and making suitable charges for their provision. The charge of the ferry was twopence for a horseman and a farthing for one on foot, but on the Liverpool market day (videlicet die Sabbati) for a man a halfpenny, and for a man and what he may carry, a penny. This charge was objected to as exorbitant.

At the Dissolution, the site and lands of the Priory passed to Ralph, third son of William Worsley of Worsley Esq. in whose collateral descendant, F. R. Price Esq. they are now vested.

² John Scot (so called because a Scot by birth) was the last Earl of Chester and Huntingdon, and died June 7th, 1237, without issue male, having married Helen, daughter of Lewellin, Prince of Wales, by whom he was poisoned, according to the testimony of several ancient chroniclers.

¹ The date of the Confirmation of Randle Gernons, Earl of Chester, as given by Ormerod, is 1130, which is the earliest ascertained date in reference to the Abbey, which was founded, probably, early in the twelfth century.

The arms of the Abbey were those of the founder, Hugh de Maubank, viz. quarterly, or and gules, a bendlet sable, debruised by a crosier in pale, or, the head turned sinister wise.

Gregory de Northbury, first Abbot of Whalley, addressed several letters to the Abbot of Savigné, in right of his paramount authority over Combermere, complaining of H. the Abbot, "quod nimis gravitèr eum taxavit."—Whitaker's Hist. Whalley, pp. 134, 135, 3d ed.

This valuation varies from that in the Augmentation Office, which is £275. 17s. 11½d.

In the 34th Henry VIII. the site of the Monastery, with its Church, bell-tower, lake of Combermere, cemetery, and certain lands, were granted to George Cotton Esq. and Mary his wife, by the King's letters patent, in whose descendant, the Right Honourable Sir Stapleton Stapleton Cotton, created Viscount Combermere in 1826, they are now vested.

It was founded before the year 1330, as in that year Sir John de Hanlowe presented a Master to the Hospital. It passed to the Crown in the reign of Henry VIII. on the attainder of Lord Lovell, whose ancestor had endowed it.

In 1556 William Hill, the last incumbent, was living on a pension of £5. per annum.

Church of Mobberley belonged to it, in Maxfield D.[eanery]

By half of the Church of Mobberley seems to be included half of y^e Manour, liberty being given in y^e Grant to keep Courts there. The Priory I suppose continued not long, it being proved y^t Patrick had no other Estate in half of Mobberley but for his life.

¹ There does not appear to be any reasonable evidence for supposing that a Priory existed here. The ancient Chapel here referred to stood on the south side of the Church, and was probably erected for the use of the Parish shortly after the Norman conquest, in lieu of the Saxon one, which appears to have perished. It is unquestionably the most curious specimen of Norman church architecture remaining in Cheshire.

In 1745 it was appropriated as a family mausoleum by the Merediths of Henbury.

² By a charter s. d. William, son of Ralph de Mobberley, granted the second moiety of the Church, with its appendant courts, &c. and is supposed to have been brother of Austin and Patrick, who witness his charter.

Sir Gilbert Barton, a Lord of Mobberley, confirmed to the Priory Patrick's donations, added the Tithes of Mobberley Mill, granted his entire demesne of Mobberley to the Canons of St. Mary's Priory at Roucester, and annexed the Advowson of Mobberley Priory to the Priory of Roucester. The date of the latter transaction is supposed to be between the years 1228 and 1240. Thus it appears that the statement in the text is incorrect, and that the existence of Mobberley Priory, as an independent foundation, did not terminate in consequence of the Founder only having a life interest in the moiety of the Manor.

RUNCORN Parish, transl. from Runcorn an. 1133. William the Son of Nigellus who came over wth Hugh E.[arl] of Chester, at y^e Conquest, founded a Priory of Canons Regular at Runcorn, ¹ This was probably a Cell to Combermere, and not a distinct religious foundation. Nothing is known of any Priory here.

² This Priory was constituted an Abbey before the year 1354.

The Abbey was dissolved 28th Henry VIII. Edward, Earl of Derby, being the chief Seneschal of the house; the act was violently resisted by the Abbot, who was, in consequence, committed to prison by Sir Piers Dutton, a miserable minion of the Court, and at that time Sheriff of Cheshire. Henry VIII. being informed of the opposition of the Abbot and Canons to the rapacious designs of the Court, wrote to the Sheriff, "yo' shall emediate ypon the r'ght hearof, without any manor further delaye, cause them to be hanged as most arrante traytores in such sondrey places as ye shall thinke requisite, for the terrible example of all others hereafter." It seems doubtful, however, whether any part of this arbitrary and sanguinary order was carried into effect. A variety of interesting letters relating to this Abbey are given in Ormerod's Cheshire, vol. i. pp. 502-3, and these, with many others, on the "Suppression of Monasteries," have been edited by Thomas Wright Esq. for the Camden Society, 1843.

In referring to the latter publication I cannot but deprecate the unjust calumnies which are once more brought forward against the inmates of the Religious Houses, in a short but caustic Preface. Neither do "the depravities of the system" and "the worst crimes laid to the charge of the Monks," appear to be substantiated, on any allowable evidence, in the Letters themselves. As fair and honest testimony the Letters of the Visitors are worthless, being the productions of interested and mercenary partizans, who were sent to scrutinize the characters of individuals already condemned, in order that their possessions might be seized and their houses demolished. Every sound Anglican Churchman will hail the Reformation as a blessing; but, to adopt the humane and sensible language of Thomas Hearne, the Antiquary, in his admirable Letter to Browne Willis, on the Dissolution and Destruction of Monasteries, "What Burnet" [and I would add, Wright] "hath offered against them appears to me to be spite and malice. His proofs are weak and groundless. And I do not doubt, but that if every Monk's character were strictly and impartially examined, there is not one of them but what would appear more innocent and virtuous than any one of the Visitors, and it may be than any one of their other accusers." And in speaking of Henry the Eighth's share in the destruction, Hearne designates it "an instance of sacrilege, and a blemish, that will never be wiped off, and therefore my Lord Herbert might well conclude his History with a wish that

Connected with this important subject every reader may consult with advantage, a series of Essays on "The Dark Ages," 2d edition, Rivingtons, by the Rev. S. R. Maitland, F.R.S. and F.S.A. Librarian to His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury. These Essays, written in an attractive and popular style, have thrown a flood of light upon the state of Religion and Literature in the Middle Ages, and the author, one of the most accurate and acute critics, and penetrating scholars, of the day, has rendered an important service to the cause of Truth by his valuable publication.

In 1545 Richard Brooke Esq. purchased the Manor of Norton and the site of the Abbey.

In 1556 there were only three surviving Canons of the Abbey, who received small pensions from the Crown.

¹ The Chronicler of Vale Royal gives a most vivid and marvellous colouring to this event, which is here described so naturally and soberly by Gastrell.

The Prince, we are told, was on his return from the Holy Land. His vow was instantaneously accepted by the Virgin, the vessel righted itself, and was miraculously brought safe into port; the sailors disembarked, and the Prince landed last, on which the charm ceased, the vessel divided, and every fragment of the wreck vanished under the waters!

The ancient names of the site were Quettenne Halewes — and Munechene Wro, which the Chronicler translates, sanctorum frumentum, and, monochorum silva, asserting that the exact site of the Abbey was foretold in these names.

A Deed of Surrender of the Abbey appears to have been scandalously forged by Sir Thomas Holcroft, of Holcroft, in the county of Lancaster, the subsequent grantee; and John Harwood, the last Abbot, strongly and eloquently remonstrated

His simple, earnest, and touching appeals to Cromwell, in behalf of his Abbey, will find their way to every heart that is capable of sympathising with the oppressed, and of denouncing the oppressors.

The doom of the house was sealed, and its possessions were rapidly disposed of, Holcroft purchasing the site of the Abbey and other Lands for £450. 10s. 6d. which, after continuing in his family for two generations, were sold in 1616, to Mary, widow of Sir Hugh Cholmondeley of Cholmondeley, called by King James, who visited her here in the year following, "the Bold Ladie of Cheshire," in whose descendant, the Lord Delamere, the Estate is now vested.

¹ Burscough, two miles from Ormskirk, was a Priory of Canons Regular, founded by Robert Fitz Henry, and dedicated to God and St Nicholas.

Edward I. Anno Reg. 14, 1286, granted the Prior and Convent a Market every Thursday, within their Manor of Ormskirk, and a Fair once a year on the 29th August. At the Dissolution the revenues were valued, as above, by Dugdale, and at £129. 1s. 0d. per ann. by Speed. The house consisted of a Prior, five monks, and forty dependents.

The site and demesne of the Priory were granted 1st Edw. VI. to Sir William Paget K.G. Principal Secretary of State, who was, nevertheless, about the year 1551 divested of the ensigns of the Garter on pretence of defect in blood and arms for three descents. — Shaw's Hist. of Staffords. p. 4, Longdon. His Portrait still remains at Beaudesert, the seat of his most noble descendant, Henry William, Marquess of Anglesey K.G.

There are now no remains of Burscough Priory except two pillars which supported the great centre Arch of the Church, which was formerly the burial place of the Derby family.

It was afterwards confirmed to God and S^t Mary, and to the Monks serving God in Penvercham, as the Charter calls it, by Hugh de Bussell, Grandson of the Founder, who made it a Cell to Evesham. The Church of Huntingdon and various lands were given to it by Richard de Fossard, in the reign of William Rufus. Speed valued its possessions at the Dissolution at £114. 16s. 9d.

⁴ Hugh Lupus granted the Township of Irby as "the Manor of Erby in Wirhale," in his Charter to the Abbey of St. Werburgh in 1093. The Manor passed at the Dissolution to Sir Richard Cotton, and was afterwards bought by Edward Glegg of Grange Esq.

This was one of the four principal Manor houses of the Abbot, and was of sufficient magnitude to receive the Abbot and his Monks for the purpose of holding their Courts.

¹ Henry Bradshaw was a Monk and Annalist of St. Werburgh's Abbey, and died in 1508 or 1513. He wrote a treatise "De Antiquitate et Magnificentiâ Urbis Cestriæ," as well as a Life of St. Werburgh, in English verse. The latter was written before the year 1500, and first printed by Pynson in 1521, in 4to. and is consequently a work of great rarity; "not more than two or threc copies being known to exist." ¹ This Chantry Chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, was probably built about the time of the extinction of the local Earls, in the 13th Century. Its dimensions are rather more than nineteen feet by sixteen, and the height upwards of sixteen feet. The roof is vaulted and groined — the groins springing from short slender pillars with sculptured capitals. The last officiating Priest at the Dissolution was Peter Trafford, living in 1556.

This Chapel is chiefly memorable in later times as being the place in which King James II. attended his Roman Catholic devotions when on a visit to Bishop Cartwright, who records in his Diary, 30th Aug. 1687, — "After that, he (the King) had Mass in the presence chamber, where he eat: from thence I attended him into the Choir, where he healed 450 people. The King commanded me to enquire out a Chapel in the City, where it might be best spared, and give notice of it to my Lord Sunderland. 31st I sent for Captain Feilding, the Recorder, and others, to find out a convenient place, by his Majesty's command, in the Castle or elsewhere, for the Roman Catholics' devotions." pp. 75, 76. The King afterwards went to the Castle, and in the following year lost his Crown. The whole proceeding was in strict accordance with the advice given by Cartwright, in a Sermon preached "in the Collegiate Church of Ripon, February 6th, 1685-6, upon the Anniversary Solemnity of the Happy Inauguration of our Dread Sovereign Lord, King James II." in which, amongst other liberal things, he said, "let the King see that we envy none of his Perswasion any Expressions or Marks of his Royal Favour, which he thinks fit to confer upon them, and that our Eye is not Evil, because he is Good." A more dishonest sermon was perhaps never delivered, and some of the most arbitrary and unconstitutional principles are maintained in it with a hardihood and zeal which must have stunned the good Churchmen of Ripon. In 1769, Pennant, in his first Tour, speaks of the Castle as being in a state of decay.

These Schools were liberally supported by Bishop Gastrell.

At the Dissolution of the College in 1548, Hugh Cholmeley, Sir William Brereton, and other Commissioners of the King, considered the body of the Church, and one bell, sufficient for the use of the parishioners, and that the whole chancel, the two aisles, having upon them thirty-eight fother of lead, and four bells, might be taken for the benefit of the King—a greedy act, and disgraceful to all the parties implicated in the sacrilege.

This is the Cell to which tradition reports Earl Harold to have retired after the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

In 1770 two skeletons were discovered here in coffin-shaped cavities, scooped out of the rock. — Lysons' Magn. Brit. vol. ii.

The word Anchorite implied a Solitary who was, after a solemn ceremonial, inclosed in a Cell called a Destina or Anchorage, situated in Churches, Church-yards, over Church Porches, and at Town-gates. Anchorites never left these Cells, whilst hermits roamed at large. They taught day schools and were mechanics. — Fosbroke's Encyclop. of Antiq.

⁴ Charles, twelfth Earl of Shrewsbury, godson to Charles II. born in 1660, and died in 1717-18. Being thoroughly convinced of the errors of the Church of Rome, through the powerful arguments of Doctor, afterwards Archbishop, Tillotson, he became a zealous and consistent member of the English Church, and often said, that "all Englishmen ought to travel, to value the more their happy Constitution, for the more they saw of the foppery of the Roman Religion, and the oppression in Despotie governments, the more they would support their own easy and happy government in Church and State." In 1694 he was created Marquess of Alton and Duke of Shrewsbury, but died s. p., when these Titles expired. His biographer states that "he was one of the finest gentlemen of the age he lived in, very handsome in his person, of an admirable address, a charming way of speaking, the kindest master to his servants, and the justest to his creditors that was ever known. He was, also, a nobleman of great gallantry when young." He had the misfortune, however, not to be thought steady to any political party; being Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Lord High Treasurer of Great Britain, and Lord Chamberlain, at the death of Queen Anne, and yet appointed Lord Chamberlain of the Household of George I. with whom he became, and continued, a favourite.

he had fifteen children. According to the inscription on his monument at Little Gadsden in the county of Bucks, where he was buried, “he was endowed with incomparable parts, both natural and acquired,—he was a profound scholar, an able statesman, and a good Christian ; he was a dutiful son to his Mother, the Church of England, in her persecution as well as in her great splendour ; a loyal subject of his sovereign in those worst of times, when it was accounted Treason not to be a Traytor.” In Aubrey’s Lives he is said to have been “an indefatigable ringer.” — Vol. 2. p. 340.

⁷ “John Willaston, Capell.” presented in 1404 by the Abbot of St. Werburgh. It does not appear how he vacated the Living nor when his successor was appointed. The date in the text is erroneous, though the same as in Ormerod. Mrs. Barton, the widow of Colonel Barton, and niece of Sir Isaac Newton, was a distinguished beauty in her day, and a warm friend of Sir Thomas Hanmer, who appears to have had a disposable power over these benefactions. ⁴ At the Dissolution the Surveyors of the Abbey Estates reported that the Parsonage of St. Oswald's with a Tithe Barn in Boughton, with all the Tithe Corn, Hay, Lamb, Wool, and other commodities, were of the annual value of £72. 12s. 6d. and that the said Parsonage was lately in the Abbot's hands to the use of his house, but was then let to William Sneyd and William Holcrofte, by Indenture dated the 6th September 1540.

In 1649 the Parliamentary Commissioners reported that there was one Vicarage house standing near the Common Hall, then in the occupation of Mrs. Bridge, wife of the late Vicar. It consisted of one hall, one butterie, six little chambers, a stable and hay-loft out of repair, and one garden being about two poles, with a little yard before the house. Valued altogether at £4. per ann.

The Tithes of the town of Saughton and of Churton Heath belonged to the Vicarage and were worth £20. per ann. Vol. iii. c. Lamb. MSS.

⁷ Simon Ripley, the twenty-third Abbot, was elected about the year 1485. He rebuilt the nave, tower, and south transept of the Abbey, and considerably improved the great Manor House at Saighton, the embattled tower of which, built by him in 1489, is still remaining. He died at Warwick August 30th, 1492, and was buried in the Collegiate Church there.

BRUERA,¹ situate in a village called Church in Heath, 3 m.[iles] from Chester, 1 m.[ile] from Aldford, the next Church. Bruera an old French word for Heath ground.

Certif. 41^l. 10^s. 00^d viz. Tyths of Newbald, Church in Heath, ¹ Dedicated to St. Mary. Registers begin in 1657.

The ground on which this Chapel is built is now reputed part of the Township of Saughton, and the Township of Church in Heath, which contains only one farm of 120 acres, does suit and service at Saughton Court. Though vulgarly called "Churton Heath," the name in old deeds is Church en Heath, being a literal translation of the name of the adjoining Chapel, Capella in Brueram.

² It is styled a Parochial Chapel having a regularly defined ecclesiastical district, liberty of baptism and sepulture, the right of levying a rate for the support of the fabric and other purposes, and differing in no respect from the Mother Church except in being without an ancient endowment of Tithes.

Parochial Chapelries arose out of an increase of population placed at an inconvenient distance from the Parish Church, and are nothing more than smaller parishes within the greater, without the name of a parish.

If the Lord of a Manor erected a new church, and obtained a right of sepulture, he might subtract one third of his tithes from the Mother Church and bestow them upon his own clerk. Before the time of Henry III. a check was put to the practice of endowing new parishes, owing to the vigorous and selfish opposition of the higher parochial Clergy, and these secondary foundations were henceforth called Parochial Chapels. — Whitaker's Whalley p. 59.

⁶ The Manor of Lea was granted to David de Calveleg, (about the 22d Edward III.) father of the celebrated Sir Hugh de Calveley, in whose male descendant it continued until the death of Sir Hugh Calveley, Sheriff of Cheshire, s.p. in 1648. The lady here mentioned was probably Mary, the second wife of Sir Hugh Calveley, and daughter of Sir Gilbert Hoghton of Hoghton Tower, in the county of Lancaster, Knt. M.P. She died in 1705.

⁷ This refers to the Chapel of Bruera, and not to that of Lea Hall.

Boughton within the Liberty of the City of Chester The vicar of St Oswald was obliged to keep a Chaplain or Curate at his own charge to assist him, who was to officiate 4 dayes in y^e week at y^e Altar of St Oswald, and 3 dayes at Boiton.¹ This was ordered by [the] B.[ishop] of Cov.[entry] 9. An. 33. H. 3. Abbot Roger gave this Chap.[el] to y^e Convent to encrease their commons, and to augment y^e number of Monks to 40. Pres.[entation] B.[ook] D.[ean and] Ch.[apter] p. 52.

This town was given to [the] Ab.[bey] of St Werb.[urgh] by Hugh Lupus.

In Little Boughton was anciently erected an Hospitall of Lepers, ded.[icated] to St Giles by some of y^e Earls of Chester.² They had divers privileges and some lands, but 'tis not known w^t became of y^m. MS. St.

Here was anciently an Hospitall, called The Hospitall of St Giles de Spittle-Boughton, "extra Barras orientale, ex fundatione Com: Cestr." soe called in [the] Charter of K.[ing] Char.[les] 1. an.[no] R. 5. to exempt the Brothers and Sisters of this Hospitall from murage³ and other City taxes. MS. Hulm. 77 A. 16. f. 200.

¹ This cannot relate to the Chapel of the Hospital of St. Giles, in the adjacent extra-parochial township of Spital-Boughton, which was unconnected with St. Oswald's, and had an independent foundation; and it is obvious that there must have been an ancient Chapel of Ease in this township, as well as in Church en Heath, and in Wervin.

² This Hospital was founded by Earl Randle Blundeville, who gave to the Abbey of St. Werburgh a rent charge of x^s, out of which the Monks were to give xx^d to the Lepers of Boughton, and with the residue to provide a feast for one hundred poor men, within the Abbey of Chester, on his father's birth-day, reversing the customary commemoration obit, and apparently disregarding it. He succeeded his father, Earl Hugh Cyveliock, in 1181, and died at Wallingford on the 28th of October, 1232. The Hospital had various privileges and claims, which were confirmed by Hugh Cyveliock and Edward III.

The site is still used as a church-yard, and will always be regarded with feelings of reverence, as containing the ashes of the martyr, George Marsh, who was cruelly burnt at a stake adjacent in 1555.

² Sir Thomas Smith, Alderman and Mayor of Chester, bought the Manor of Hough and other considerable estates in Cheshire, and died in 1538, being one of the very few instances which that county affords of a person raised by trade, seating himself in manerial property, and instantly forming connections with the leading families of the county. BARROW,¹ about 120¹ p.[er] an.[num].

E.[arl] Rivers lately Patron, now L^d Barrimore, who married his Daughter,² 1722.

Patron of y^e Parish Church, Free Chappell, or Chan-try of Barrow,⁴ an.[no] 1521, S^r John Savage. Inst.[itution] B.[ook] 1. p. 27. 28.

¹ Dedicated to St. Bartholomew. Value in 1834, £263. Registers begin in 1572.

² At the Domesday Survey, Barrow was the property of William Fitz Nigell, the second Baron of Halton.

In the reign of Edward I. Hugh le Despenser, Earl of Winchester, obtained the Manor of Little Barrow, but on his attainder, Edward III. gave all his Estates to Roger Swynerton, confirming to him the Manors of Great and Little Barrow.

Maud, daughter and heiress of Sir Robert Swynerton, brought these estates, and the Advowson of the church, to her husband, Sir John Savage of Clifton, before the 7th of Henry IV.

After the death of Richard Savage, fourth Earl Rivers, in 1712, the Manor and Advowson became vested in Lady Penelope Barry, daughter of James Earl of Barrymore, by his wife, the Lady Elizabeth Savage, daughter and sole heiress of the before mentioned Earl Rivers.

Lady Penelope married Major-General James Cholmondeley, third son of George, second Earl of Cholmondeley, and on her decease, in 1784, these and other estates passed to her husband's representative, the Marquess of Cholmondeley.

In 1671 Dr. Henry Bridgeman, Rector, (from 1639 to 1682) whilst Dean of Chester and Bishop of Sodor and Man, added a Chancel to the Church. In 1744 a new tower was built in a style incongruous with the rest of the fabric. For this purpose a brief was obtained.

² This grant was made anterior to 1093, and was extended by Letitia de Malpas, daughter of Robert, who gave to the same Abbey Christleton itself ; but the grant appears to have been resumed, as Philip Burnell and Isabel his wife, in right of their Manor of Christleton, confirm to the Monks of St. Werburgh a fountain in Christleton from whence water was carried by pipes to the Abbey cloisters, the place being contiguous to the suburbs of Chester.

At the Dissolution, the Church, which had never been appropriated, passed, by chicanery, from the Dean and Chapter to the Cottons ; but before 1598 it became the property of the Mostyns of Mostyn in the county of Flint. In 1843 the patronage was vested in Lady Champneys. A brief was obtained in 1733 for the purpose of

The Boydells continued here until the death of Robert Boydell, 8th Henry IV. s.p. when Margaret and Isabella were found his sisters and co-heiresses.

³ Geoffrey de Muschamp, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry gave the Monks license to appropriate this Church, on their endowing a Vicarage, but the license fortunately was not rendered available.

² The following curious and racy epistle, which displays considerable independence of tone, was addressed by the Rev. Thomas Aubrey, B.A. Rector of Eccleston from 1704 to 1758, to the "unknown clergyman" who was collecting the information contained in the Notitia Parochialis.

"Rev. Sir. You desire an account of my Parish, in this advertisement, to the several queries laid down there. The Parish is Eccleston in Cheshire, a Rectory in the gift of the R^t Hon. the Earl of Abingdon, the value of it is above £30 p. ann. There are no part of the Tythes Impropriated, but there is one S^r Rich^d Grosvenor in the Parish, who by a pretended composition (I doe call it soe, because he hath nothing to show for it) claims all the White Tythes of his own Demesne, which is very considerable, for 10s. tho' y^e thing is worth above 12 pounds per ann. This said 10s. has been refused these 30 years, and y^e tythe in kind demanded. The White Tythes are Hay, Lambs, Wool, and Piggs, and other small things w^{ch} belong to a Vicarage. This Composition is supposed to be made above these 40 years wth this gentleman's ancestors, by one of my predecessors. In all things else this Parish is like other Parishes. You may make what use you think fit of this acct, and communicate either all or part of it to the publick. 1705."—Vol. ii. p. 208 Lamb. MSS.

By Will dated 1748, Mr. Aubrey bequeathed £20. to the poor.

³ Eccleston is placed in Domesday at the head of the list of the Baron of Kinderton's estates, and the Manor and Advowson had descended with the Barony for nearly seven centuries, when they were sold in 1758 by George Venables Vernon Esq. to Sir Richard Grosvenor of Eaton Bart. from whom they have descended to the present Marquess of Westminster.

The Church was rebuilt by Robert, first Marquess of Westminster, (who died at Eaton on the 17th, and was buried at Eccleston on the 25th February, 1845, æt. 77) after the designs of Mr. Porden of Chester.

The ancient monuments were unfortunately removed with the old Church, and the various members of the noble family of Grosvenor, who were interred here, have been commemorated in a modern inscription on white marble.

Guillem Sutton, or Golden Sutton. The Church was part of the endowment of the College of St. John in Chester, and at the Dissolution became the property of the Hardwares, who sold the Rectory to Serjeant, afterwards Judge, Warburton, 42d Elizabeth, for £100. Elizabeth, sole heiress of the Judge, married Sir Thomas Stanley of Alderley Knt. (not Bart. as stated in Ormerod,) whose descendant, the present Lord Stanley of Alderley, sold the same in 1810 to the Rev. Rowland E. Warburton of Norley, afterwards of Arley Park, reserving the nomination of the Curate.

² The Manor was the property of the secular Canons of St. Werburgh at the time of the Domesday Survey.

In the 22d Richard II. the Abbot of St. Werburgh had licence to fortify or embattle his Manor House of Inise. The ruins and moat still remain. At the Dissolution this Manor passed to Sir Richard Cotton, whose son sold it to the Cholmondeleys, and having continued in the Vale Royal branch of that noble family until 1724, it was purchased by Sir George Wynne of Leeswood Bart. from Charles Cholmondeley Esq. who left £200 in the hands of the purchaser for the augmentation of the Curacy. Margaret, sole heiress of Sir G. Wynne, married Richard H. Waring of the Inner Temple Esq. whose kinsman, Major J. Scott Waring, about the year 1800 sold the Manor, Parish, Tithes, and Advowson, to Robert Peel, (created a Baronet in 1800) and Edmund Yates of Bury in the county of Lancaster Esquires, for £80,000. Mr. Yates afterwards gave his partner in the purchase £50,000 for his share, and became possessed of the entire parish.

y^e hands of some Laymen, and from M^r Marbury of Meir (as D^r Fogg³ hath heard) Bp. Bridgman purchased y^m, in whose heirs the Right now is,⁴ an.[no] 1717. D^r Fogg's Account.

³ Lawrence Fogg D.D. was born and educated at Darcy Lever, in the parish of Bolton-le-Moors, and afterwards admitted of St. John's College, Cambridge. In 1662 he resigned the Rectory of Hawarden in Flintshire, but afterwards conforming, was presented, in 1672, by the Dean and Chapter of Chester, to the Vicarage of St. Oswald's, and in the year following to a Stall in the Cathedral. He had the Vicarage of Plemondstall from the Lord Keeper Bridgeman, (having resigned St. Oswald's,) and became Dean of Chester in 1692. He died February 27th, 1718, æt. 88, and left, by Will, a Legacy to the Poor. He wrote "Treatises on the Christian Religion," and other theological works.

Dr. Calamy erroneously calls him Mr. Rowland Fogg of Harding Castle in Flintshire, son of Mr. Robert Fogg, the Rector of Bangor in the same county, a Nonconformist. The Dean was among the first who restored the public use of the Liturgy in 1660, and resigned his Living owing to an apparent ambiguity in an Act of Parliament relating to Subscription. He complained that he had been misrepresented in his views by Calamy. — See vol. iii. p. 481-2. Nor does Mr. Fogg appear to have been captious in his remarks, or unreasonable in his complaints, against his old friend Calamy. Mr. Hoadly and Mr. Ollyffe considered themselves, equally with the whole body of the conforming Clergy, aggrieved and misrepresented in his tenth chapter of An Abridgment of the Life of Richard Baxter, which led them to publish their case, to which Calamy replied in a heavy and not very moderate "Defence of Moderate Nonconformity," which is now forgotten. Fogg appears to have been a candid and sober-minded man, very useful in the Church, and much esteemed by the more moderate and pious Dissenters. Matthew Henry, speaking of a Society formed in Chester, by Bishop Stratford and Dr. Fogg, for the Reformation of Manners, about the year 1698, says, — "the next Discourse was preached by the Dean, from Ephes. v. 11. It was very much to the purpose, pressing home the necessary duty of beating down sin and wickedness. I bless God for this sermon; and as I have, from my heart forgiven, so I will endeavour to forget, all that the Dean has at any time said against Dissenters, and against me in particular. Such preaching against sin, and such endeavours to suppress it, will contribute, as much as any thing, to heal differences among those who fear God." — Life of Mr. Matthew Henry, by Sir J. B. Williams, F.S.A. p. 90.

⁴ The Earl of Bradford, as heir to the Bridgeman family, is now the Patron and Impropriator.

The Church is situate on the banks of the Gow, in a singularly retired spot, surrounded by rich watered meadows, and environed with firs. It is apparently of the age of Henry VIII. The Trafford Chapel, in the East end of the North aisle of the Church, is separated by a parclose.

⁵ This was an agreement respecting the Tithes of Hoole, one of the Townships of this Parish.

⁶ Bridge Trafford was the property of a family of the local name before the reign of Edward I. who afterwards possessed the whole of the Township. The male line ended in Thomas Trafford Esq. who fell at the battle of Naseby, leaving one daughter, Alice, married to John Barnston of Churton Esq. from whom the estates have descended to his representative, the present Mr. Barnston of Churton, and Farndon. The ancient Hall of Trafford, called by Webb, "a seemly seat," is taken down, and a farm house erected on its site.

⁷ Picton hall became the property of the Hurlestons about the latter part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and they continued here until the death of Charles Hurleston Esq. in 1734, when this estate fell to the share of his niece Mary, wife of John Leche of Carden Hall Esq. in whose descendant, a minor, it is now vested.

² The Barons of Kinderton were grantees of this town previous to the Domesday Survey.

The first mediate Lords that have occurred were a family that assumed the name of the place.

This Hugh de Torperley occurs afterwards as Lord of half of Torperley, in a covenant with the Abbot of St. Werburgh, respecting the bounds of Idenshaw, the Baron of Kinderton being the Lord paramount. These grants were transferred by Hugh de Torperley, anno 1293, to Reginald de Grey, for ten marks, with the reservation of half the perquisites of the fairs and markets.

³ Reginald de Grey, Baron of Wilton and Ruthyn, was son and heir of John de Grey, Justice of Chester anno 1246, and was a powerful and steady adherent of Henry III. He ob. 1st Edward II.

⁴ Reginald de Grey of Ruthyn, his grandson, ob. 12th Richard II. Sir Edmund Grey Knt. Baron Hastings and Ruthyn, created Earl of Kent in 1465, was found by inquisition post mortem, 19th Henry VI. grandson and heir of Reginald de Grey, and succeeded to half of the Manor of Tarporley, and the Advowsons of the Church and Hermit's Chapel attached to that moiety. He was Lord Treasurer of England, and died in 1488. His descendant, Henry Grey, the twelfth Earl, was created Duke of Kent in 1710, but dying in 1740, without issue male, the Dukedom and other honours became extinct. ⁵ After a variety of descents, the Manor was bought before the year 1586, by Ralph Done of Utkinton Esq. who had also purchased the Advowson of John Starkey of Oulton Esq. 12th Elizabeth.

⁶ In Sir John Done, knighted by James the First, at Utkinton Hall, in 1617, the male line of the family terminated in 1629, when his large estates were divided between his three daughters, Jane Done, Mary, wife of John Crewe, Esq. second son of Sir John Crewe of Crewe Knt. and Eleanor, wife of Ralph Arderne of Harden Esq. The share of Mrs. Jane Done, who never married, consisted of the Manors of Utkinton, Millington, and Tarporley, with the Advowson of the latter, which she settled on her sister, Mrs. Crewe, and the heirs of her body, with remainder to the five surviving sons of her sister, Mrs. Arderne. Sir John Crewe died without issue in 1711, and his sister Elizabeth, wife of Devereux Knightley of Fawsley in the county of Northampton Esq. also died without surviving issue in 1715, when Mrs. Arderne's issue succeeded to Mrs. Jane Done's estates. These were divided into six shares, each valued at £4200. Mrs. Jane, and Mrs. Mary Done of Utkinton Hall, are called by Calamy, "two pious gentlewomen," who invited Mr. John Jones, a Welshman, to become their Chaplain, and to live in their house both at Utkinton and Harden, on his becoming "dissatisfied with the manner of the Church of England," probably in consequence of the Church of England having become dissatisfied with him, a circumstance, however, not alluded to by his biographer. John Jones died in 1671, aged 72.

² John Bruen of Bruen Stapleford Esq. was born in 1560, and died in 1625, descended from Robert le Bruen, living in 1230.

Mr. Bruen was a gentleman commoner of St. Alban's Hall, Oxford, and a man of unaffected piety and extensive charity, whose private virtues alone have obtained for him a place in the annals of biography, and whose benevolence, integrity, and simplicity of character, all hallowed by religion, would have reflected honour on any rank, and adorned any creed. Although he was left charged with the portions of twelve brothers and sisters, and had himself nineteen children, his hospitality and charity were unbounded. He had, however, one grievous, I had almost said unpardonable, failing—he had a horror of painted glass, and finding in the Church of Tarvin and in his own ancient Chapel, “many superstitious images in the windows which, by their painted coats, darkened the light of the Church and obscured the brightness of the gospel, he caused all those painted puppets to be pulled down, and at his own cost, glazed the windows again.”!—Ormerod's Chesh. Granger says, that “though he was of Puritan principles, he was no slave to the narrow bigotry of a sect.”—Biogr. Hist. of Eng. vol. i. p. 251. Mr. Sabbath Clark, the Puritanical Vicar for nearly sixty years, preached and printed Mr. Bruen's funeral sermon at Tarvin, in 1625, and died himself, a very aged man, about 1663. His Will was proved at Chester May 13th, 1663. In Clark's “Marrow of Ecclesiastical History,” there is a small engraving of Mr. John Bruen.

Alexander de Savensby founded a Prebend in his Cathedral, which he endowed with the appropriation and advowson of the Vicarage of Tarvin.

The Stall of Tarvin was united to that of Stotfold, as one of the four Canonries on the new foundation, by Act of Parliament, in the reign of Queen Anne. In 1796 it was vested, by Act of Parliament, in the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, by which Act the Advowson of the Vicarage was separated from the Prebend, and vested in the Bishop for the time being.

Hargrave Stubbs is a hamlet in the township of Fulk Stapleford, which is part of the parish of Tarvin.

² In the time of Richard I. William, son of William de Stapleford, alienated the Manor to Philip de Orreby, Justice of Chester in the reign of King John, whose son, Fulco de Orreby of Stapleford, Justice of Chester 45th Henry III. gave the township its additional name.

³ Sir Peter de Thornton, in the fifth generation, died early in the reign of Edward III. without issue male, when the Manor and Advowson passed to Hamon Fitton of Dunham Massey, in right of his wife, Elizabeth, one of the daughters and co-heiresses of Sir Peter. In the next generation, Joan, sister of Peter Fitton, brought the estate in marriage to Richard Venables, after the 42d Edward III. Sir William Venables, eldest son of Richard, died in 1481, leaving two daughters, Douce, wife of Robert Booth Esq. and Alice, wife of Sir Edmund Trafford of Trafford, between whom this Manor was divided.

⁶ Thornton Hall, now a farm house, was originally moated, and the residence of the knightly family of Le Roter.

⁷ Dunham Hall is also a farm house of a date comparatively modern, the ancient manerial house of the Troutbecks, ancestors of the Earls of Shrewsbury, having disappeared.

¹⁰ Wimbalds Trafford Hall, was a seat of the Bruens, and afterwards of the Gerards.

Backford is not mentioned in the Domesday Survey, but there is strong presumptive evidence to conclude that it was allotted about that era to the Massies, Lords of Dunham Massey, who gave their Church here to the Benedictine Priory of Birkenhead, founded in the reign of Henry II.

² Seward gave the Chapel of Bebington, and four bovates of land and the Tithe of his Manor, amongst other donations, to the Abbey of St. Werburgh, before the year 1093. His descendant, William Lancelyn, son of Robert, confirmed this grant in the time of Henry III.

At the Dissolution, the Advowson given to the Dean and Chapter, owing to an omission in the first Charter, fell into the possession of Sir Richard Cotton, and about the early part of the seventeenth century was the property of the Stanleys of Hooton, from whom it passed to a branch of the Pooles of Poole. The Rev. The Manor of Bidston and the other component townships of the parish were anciently part of the Barony of Dunham Massey, which were given in exchange by Henry, Duke of Lancaster, who had bought them in the time of Edward III. to Roger Le Strange, Lord of Knokyn. Bidston was alienated to the Stanleys soon after the 21st Henry VI. and the Manor was sold in 1653 by the heroic and noble-minded Charlotte, Countess of Derby, and her son Charles, Earl of Derby, to William Steel Esq. who resold it in the time of Charles II. to Lord Kingston. It subsequently passed by sale to the family of Vyner of Gauthby in the county of Lincoln, the present proprietor.

At the Dissolution, the Church and Rectory were given to the Bishops of Chester, whose Lessee receives the Tithes and appoints the Curate. A Vicarage does not appear ever to have been ordained.

Bidston Hall, styled in 1621 "a goodly house," will always be regarded with interest, as the usual residence of Charles, eighth Earl of Derby, when Lathom House was a heap of ruins, Knowsley little better, and half the estates of the family sold or sequestered, whilst the Bill to effect their redemption, which justice had induced both Houses of Parliament to pass unanimously, was heartlessly rejected by the son of that King, for whom the Earl's magnanimous father had ruined his fortunes, and laid his head on the block. Under these calamities the ill-used Peer retired to Bidston, "to practice economy, and heal the wounds of a broken heart."—Ormerod's Hist. of Chesh.

The latter part of this statement is unfortunately more touching and rhetorical than true, for although Charles the eighth Earl succeeded to the entailed honours of his house, he was disinherited by his father's Will for his disobedience to his Majesty in the matter of his marriage, (having married Dorothy Helen Rupa, daughter of the Baron Rupa, a German,) and also for his joining with the Rebels,

This was originally the Mother Church, to which Eastham was filial. At the Conquest, Brombrough formed one vill with Eastham, and a Priest was then resident within the original Manor of Eastham. Two Manors were subsequently formed out of this original vill, and a new Church was erected in the new Manor of Eastham, which was given with the Mother Church of Bromborough to the Abbey of St. Werburgh, by Randle Gernons; but Eastham still continued subject to the Court of Bromborough, where the Manor House remained. Bromborough Church is a very ancient structure, probably coeval with the Conquest, and some parts of it may be fragments of the Saxon Monastery of Brimesburgh.

² At the Dissolution the Manor was given to the Dean and Chapter, but lost through the dishonesty of Sir Richard Cotton.

³ This Charter has fallen into disuse.

⁴ The Manor and Hall now belong to the Rev. James Mainwaring M.A. who is descended from the ancient family of Mainwaring of Whitmore in the county of Salop, and they from Ranulphus, Lord of Peover, at the time of the Domesday Survey.

¹ Dedicated to St. Nicholas. A Perpetual Curacy, though styled a Vicarage by Dr. Ducarel. Value in 1834, £54. Registers begin in 1538.

This Manor, from an early period, was appended to the See of Lichfield and Coventry, and enjoyed several immunities from the harsh customs of forest jurisdiction. Amongst others, the tenants of the Manor were exempt from the custom of having the feet of their dogs cut, (expeditatos), which all others who lived within the circuit of the forest were compelled to observe, until they could pass through the Master Forester's "Dog-gauge." This was a ring usually of an oval form, about an inch in height by an inch and a half in width. One of these barbarous instruments, now at Browsholme Hall, formerly used by the Parkers, Bow-Bearers of the Forest of Bowland, is engraved in Whitaker's History of Whalley.

The Manor of Burton, long held in Lease by the Congreves, was bought in 1806 of the Bishop of Lichfield, by Richard Congreve of Congreve in the county of Stafford Esq. whose residence, Burton Hall, is a modern built house.

School. Here is a School upon y^e Hill near y^e town, built by [the] Bp. of Man,⁴ an.[no] 1724, it being the place of his birth:

³ The Church was rebuilt in 1721, for which purpose a Brief was obtained in 1720, and Dr. Hough, the justly venerated and munificent Bishop of Worcester, contributed £50. The Massey Chancel, at the East end of the North aisle, was preserved in its original state.

⁴ The Bishop of Man was Thomas Wilson D.D. born here in 1663, and died in 1755, aged 93 years. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and ordained Deacon by the Bishop of Kildare in 1686, and Priest in 1689. He afterwards became Perpetual Curate of Newchurch in Winwick Parish, of which his uncle, Dr. Sherlock, was Rector, and to this circumstance he was indebted for his introduction to the noble family at Knowsley, who became his patrons. Archbishop Sharp, as Metropolitan, had represented to King William, that the See of Sodor and Man had been vacant four years, which occasioned the Earl of Derby to urge the acceptance of it by this truly primitive and conscientious man, whose humility and modesty had before led him to decline the responsible station, and who, on accepting it, said he was forced into the Bishoprick. He was admitted to a Lambeth Degree of L.L.D. and was consecrated at the Savoy Chapel, in London, January 16th, 1697, by Archbishop Sharp, assisted by Stratford, Bishop of Chester, and Moore, Bishop of Norwich. His See did not exceed £300 a year, but by self-denial and rigid economy, he contrived to maintain his station, to relieve distressed mariners, to feed the hungry, and to clothe the poor of the Island. In 1698 he married Mary, daughter of Thomas Patten of Warrington Esq. descended from the elder brother of William Patten, commonly called, from the place of his nativity, William of Wainfleet, the devout and munificent Bishop of Winchester, who founded Magdalen College, Oxford, and died in 1486.

Bishop Wilson more than once refused an English Sec. When invited to France by Cardinal Fleury, who wished to see him, as he believed the Bishop and himself were the oldest and poorest Prelates in Europe, the reply of this apostolic Bishop was so gratifying to the French Ecclesiastic, that it procured an order from the Court of France, that "no privateer should ravage the coasts of the Isle of Man, out of respect for the character of its Prelate."

All his writings are intrinsically valuable. They have stood the test of time, and are still popular and useful.

It is said that the good Bishop gave £400 to erect and endow the School at Burton, and his son, the Rev. Dr. Wilson, Prebendary of Westminster and Rector of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, increased the endowment with the sum of £200.

Acres of Common are enclosed and emproved at y^e charg of [the] Bp. for maintenance of a Master.

² About 1152, Eastham and Bromborough were given by Earl Randle Gernons to St. Werburgh's Abbey, as distinct Manors with distinct Churches. That a new Church had been built at Eastham since the Norman survey, as a dependant foundation, is obvious from the words of the confirmation by Pope Honorius; "Eccl'ia de Brombro' cum capella de Estham." (Vide BROMBRO'.) The Tithes of the Parish were conferred on the same Abbey by Hugh Lupus and his Countess in 1093. "Ordinatio porcionis Vicarii de Eastham per Symon de Baylden Official. R." (i. e. After the Dissolution, this Manor was extorted from the Dean and Chapter by Sir Richard Cotton, and became eventually the property of the Stanleys of Hooton, and is now vested in Sir William Thomas Stanley Bart. the representative of this ancient family, which appears, from Sir Peter Leicester's statement, in 1669, to have disputed the right of the Dean and Chapter of Chester to the Advowson of the Vicarage: it was, however, confirmed to that Ecclesiastical Corporation.

The North aisle of the Church terminates in a Chancel appropriated to the Stanleys.

³ Hooton Hall is a large stone house, from the designs of Wyatt. The old Hall was a very large quadrangular timber building. One side was occupied by a strong stone tower, embattled and machicolated, from which rose a slender turret of extraordinary height. Sir William Stanley had a licence for erecting this tower 2d Henry VII. This very interesting and picturesque specimen of the domestic architecture of the middle ages, engravings of which are given in Lysons' Magn. Britan. and also in Ormerod's Cheshire, was taken down in 1778.

⁴ Poole Hall was built in the reign of Henry VIII. by Sir Thomas Poole, descended from Robert de la Poole, living early in the thirteenth century.

The first local lord noticed in the Cheshire Collections is Patrick de Haselwall, Sheriff in the 5th Edward I. 1277, whose grandson Ralph, who presented to the Church in 1314, left two coheiresses, Eliza, wife of Robert de Calveley, and Eustasia, wife of William de Egerton, remarried to John de Barnston, between which daughters this Manor was divided.

Katharine, daughter of Robert de Calveley, married Arthur Davenport, and presented jointly with her husband to this Church in 1369 and 1394, presenting again as a widow in 1405. From this Arthur Davenport the moiety of the Manor and Advowson has descended to his representative, Edward Davenport of Capesthorpe and Calveley Esq.

The Egerton share derived from Eustasia de Haslewall, was sold by Sir Ralph Egerton of Wryne Hill, in the 4th Elizabeth, to Thomas Browne. In 1699 the moiety of the Manor and Advowson was purchased by William Whitmore of Thurstaston, Esq. and was allotted in 1816 to James Okell Esq. of Vron in the county of Flint, in right of his wife. The Monks of St. Werburgh held one third of this Manor at the Norman Invasion, which they exchanged about the time of Henry I. with William, second Baron of Halton, for his moiety of Raby, and thus became possessed of the whole. Shortly afterwards the Manor and Church of Neston passed to Robert de Montalt, Steward of the Earldom, whose widow, Leucha, held the Church as part of her Dower in the time of Henry II. From the Nevilles, Stanleys and Whitmores, the Manor became, and is now, vested in the Mostyn family.

² The several items of income appear to be given with much minuteness of detail by the Parliamentary Inquisitors in 1649, and they conclude by stating that "one Mr. Marchden (not mentioned in Ormerod's Catalogue of Vicars) is Minister there, and was presented by the Committee of Plundered Ministers." ⁴ The appropriation of the Church was confirmed by Richard Peche, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry ante 1182, and ratified by Popes Honorius II. and Clement III.

Shotwick Church, according to Ormerod, was appropriated by Abbot Walter, 24th Henry III. to supply the increase of the kitchen expenses in consequence of six monks having been added to the number.

"The Rectory was granted by Lease of the Dean and Chapter, dated 30 Nov. 6 Jac. to Mr. Henry Wilkinson for three lives, viz. Anne, wife of George Lloyd, Bishop of Chester, and David and John, sons of the said Bishop, paying £3. 0. 2 per ann. for the Corn Tythe. ⁴ Shotwick Hall was the seat of the Hockenhulls, who obtained the Manor by marriage with the heiress of Shotwick in the time of Edward I. and remained here down to the middle of the last century, when the estate was mortgaged and afterwards sold. A female of this ancient and once wealthy manerial family, in whom the line terminated, is said to have been indebted to Parish relief for her subsistence. This house stood near the Church, where its site is still visible.

Thurstaston alias Thurstanston, was granted to Robert de Rodelent, the Norman Baron, at the Conquest; and he being murdered by a body of marauding Welshmen, in a dastardly manner, (as related by Sir Peter Leycester), July 3rd, 1088, and dying without legitimate issue, his estates were subdivided among numerous proprietors.

² "In the year 1649, the Rectory of Thurstanston consisted of the Tythes of Corn, Hay, Wool, Lamb, Hemp, Flax, &c. within the township of Thurstanston, and also of the Manor House and Demesne of Ireby, work xl^l. per ann. One Mr. Brian Lassells, a blinde man, is Minister there, who was presented by the Bishop of Lincoln, and some other Lords, and was instituted and inducted about xxx Dec. 1641."—Parl. Surv. vol. iii. c. 1649. Lamb MSS.

Whether this Rector was naturally or spiritually blind is not stated by these Parliamentary Inquisitors, but the probable inference seems to be, that the latter, in their opinion, was the case, as Calamy mentions (vol. i. p. 343) that a Mr. Watts shortly afterwards held the Living, and no account is preserved of the manner in which it was vacated by Mr. Lascelles. The Bishop of Lincoln, at this time, was Dr. Thomas Winniffe, who had no connection whatever with this benefice, and had only been consecrated a few weeks before the date given for Mr. Lascelles' induction, which, however, is incorrect, as he was collated to the Rectory on the 28th of October. Who the "some other Lords" were, remains lost in obscurity, but there is obviously an indirect sneer at the rank of the Bishop, which could hardly fail to tell unfavourably for the "blinde man" with the ruling powers. It is not improbable that these "other Lords" were the Dean and Canons of Chester, the true Patrons, who had presented Mr Lascelles to the Living.

³ Matthew de Ruelent, probably an illegitimate descendant, gave the Church of Turstaniston to the Abbey of St. Werburgh, in the time of Randle Meschines, Earl of Chester, when his brother Simon was made a Monk of that Abbey. His donation was confirmed by his son William de Thurstanton, who resigned his right in the Chapel to the Abbey for ever, in the time of Henry II.

⁴ From this family the manor passed in marriage to Patrick de Haselwal, in the time of Edward I. whose grand-daughter, Agnes, married William de Whitmore. The Whitmores continued at this place, in the male line, until the death of John Whitmore Esq. in 1751, when the manors and estates were divided amongst the six daughters and coheirresses of Joseph Whitmore Esq.

At the Dissolution, the Patronage of the Rectory was given to the Dean and Chapter, who are the Patrons.

This Church is called Kirkby-Walley, or Wallezey, in [the] Survey of [the] D.[ean] and Chap's. Lands, an.[no] 1649.

There were formerly two Churches here,⁴ one called Walley's Kirk, situated in y^e present Church yard, y^e foundations of w^{ch} are Kirkby. This is the uniform designation in the Lichfield Episcopal Registers to 1487, when it is written Wallesey. In the time of Henry VI. a moiety of the Manor was held by Sir Thomas Stanley and Henry Litherland, and in 1688 the Earl of Derby possessed the whole of it. By several alienations it has passed to the family of Vyner of Gautby in the county of Lincoln.

² A Mediety of the Church was appropriated by the Priory of Birkenhead, and at the Dissolution, was annexed to the See of Chester, as part of the endowment.

A Chaplain was maintained here by the Priory, and Lees-Kirk, mentioned in Robinson's account given above, would doubtless be the Chapel at which he officiated.

³ The other Mediety was given to St. Werburgh's Abbey, by William, son of Richard de Waleya, and continued an appurtenant until the Dissolution, when this Advowson, and the appropriation of the other moiety were granted to the new See of Chester.

⁴ This Mediety will obviously be Walley's Kirk, alluded to in Robinson's yet visible : and Lee's Kirk, near a narrow Land still called Kirkway ; but wⁿ one became Ruinous and y^e other wanted a Priest, they were both taken down, and y^e present Church was built in their stead. Walley gave these Lands, called the Nar crook hey, and meadow adjoining, and the Tum crook hey, to y^e High Altar, and to y^e Priest for ever, for a burying-place in y^e Chancell belong:[ing] to this Church. This deed of gift was in the Parish Chest, and read by H. Robinson, Schoolmaster,⁵ from whom I received this Information, an.[no] 1718. Rect's. Account.

statement, which is correct in the general fact, though he appears to have been ignorant of the origin of the two Churches.

Mr. Robinson, who was Schoolmaster here, wrote a History of the Parish, still remaining in the Church chest.

⁵ After the word "Schoolmaster" in Ormerod, who transcribes this account, is an omission of the words from whom, and a substitution of "when," which hardly does justice to the antiquarian pedagogue.

Ducarel's account of this Benefice is unusually brief. He merely states that "Walzey Rectory is an Impropriation ; one moiety belonging to the Bishop of Chester ; the other moiety the Rector has."—Rep. of Endowm. Lamb. Libr.

Thomas Glover was presented to the Rectory by Charles I. through lapse, on the 13th August, 1631, and being deprived on account of his episcopacy and loyalty, his wife had a fifth part of the income of the Benefice, allowed by an ordinance of the Parliament. This miserable sum was frequently rendered less, and sometimes altogether withheld from the suffering and destitute wives and children of the plundered ministers who, without much figure, may be said to have been "cast into the place of dragons." It was in the contemplation of such acts of tyranny, oppression, and extortion as these, that the magnanimous Earl of Strafford said, ³ Robert de Rodelent granted the Church of West Kirkby, shortly after the Conquest, with other Churches and lands, to the Abbey of Utica, not Retria, in Normandy, where his ancestors were buried.

This grant was confirmed in 1081, by King William, when the Abbey is called St. Ebrulf's.

⁴ In 1287, the Abbot and Convent of St. Ebrulf resigned their rights to the Monks of St. Werburgh, and shortly afterwards, this Church fell into the possession of the Earls of Chester, and being annexed in the reign of Stephen to the Manor of Caldey, was given to the Abbey of Basingwerk.

⁵ The Abbots of Basingwerk and St. Werburgh, in the time of Henry the Third, had a warm contest respecting the Advowson of this Church, the former claiming in right of the Manor of Caldey, and the latter by purchase, and the exercise of patronage. The determination was in favour of the latter, who appear to have given a palfrey and nine marks for the Advowson, about the time that Randle Blundeville dispossessed the Monks of Basingwerk of Caldey, this Advowson, and other estates.—*Lysons' Magn. This statement is not correct. All the objections of the Abbot and Convent of Basingwerk were overruled, and the claim of the Abbey of St. Werburgh established by a legal decision.—Ormerod's Chesh.

¹ Dedicated to the Holy Cross. Value in 1834, £827. Registers begin in 1572.

Woodchurch is supposed to have been identical with the Church of Landican. The former is not, like the latter, mentioned in the Norman Survey, but occurs in 1093, as "Wude-Church," in the great Charter of St. Werburgh. In the 19th Edward II. Randle Praers and Joanna his wife obtained, inter alia, the Manor of Landican, and the Advowsons of Bartomlegh and Woodchurch to them and their heirs. From the Praers' family, these Advowsons, Manor, and other property, passed to Robert Fulleshurst of Crue Esq. by marriage with Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Thomas Praers of Bartomlegh. Fulleshurst died 13th Richard II. His descendant, Sir Thomas Fulleshurst Knt. 3rd and 4th Philip and Mary, sold the Manor to Richard Wilbraham of Woodhey Esq. the Advowson having been alienated 31st Henry VIII. to William Sneyd of Keele Esq. who soon afterwards sold it to the family of Adams. The present Rector and Patron, the Rev. Joshua King, is the descendant and representative of this family.

⁸ Richard Sherlock, D.D. was born at Oxton, in this Parish, and educated at Trinity College, Dublin. In 1646 the Degree of B.D. was conferred upon him by the University of Oxford, in consideration of some excellent Sermons which he had preached. Being deprived of his preferments by the Parliament, he was appointed about 1652, Chaplain to Sir Robert Bindloss of Borwick Hall, near Lancaster; and in 1660 he was created D.D. by the University of Dublin, and appointed by his Patron, Charles, Earl of Derby, (whose Chaplain he was,) Rector of Winwick. Antony à Wood says "he was a person of a most pious life, exemplary conversation, of great charity, hospitality, and so zealous a man for the Church of England, that he was accounted, by precise persons, Popishly affected, and a Papist in masquerade." He died and was buried at Winwick, June 25th, 1689, aged 76. He was a very voluminous writer, and a catalogue of his publications is given by Wood. He gave these sums to Oxton in the year 1670. He was uncle of Dr. Thomas Wilson, the Apostolic Bishop of Man.

¹ Dedicated to St. John the Baptist. Value in 1834, £330. Registers begin in 1639, imperfect until 1740.

About the time of King Stephen, Aldford was formed into a vill, and had Lords of its name, the successors of Bigot, the Norman proprietor, probably by female descent.

Between the 10th of King John and the 13th of Henry III. Richard de Aldford was succeeded in his Castle and fee of Aldford, by his near kinsman, Sir John Arderne, of the Alvanley family, who, in a confirmation of his fee by Randle, Earl of Chester, had the privilege of "free duel in his Court, and Ordeal by fire and by water." In the reign of Edward IV. the Manor and Advowson had passed by marriage to the Stanleys, afterwards of Alderley. On the attainder and execution of Sir William Stanley of Holt, they were purchased from the Crown by Sir William Brereton, himself attainted, and beheaded in 1546. In the time of Philip and Mary, they were sold to Sir Edward Fitton, and passed by the will of Sir Edward Fitton of Gawsorth Bart. the last heir male of the family, (who died in 1643,) to Charles, Lord Gerard of Brandon, afterwards Earl of Macclesfield, whose niece, Lady Mohun, jointly with her third husband, Charles Mordaunt Esq. sold the Manor and Advowson to Sir Richard Grosvenor of Eaton, Bart. in whose most noble descendant, the Marquess of Westminster, they are now vested.

In the Memorials of the Great Civil War, by Henry Cary, there is a Letter from General Massie to the Countess of Stamford, dated Leeds, September 10th, 1651, in which he speaks of his wound, got before the defeat at Worcester, and his consequent inability either to ride or travel. — Vol. ii. 8vo, 1842. MALPAS,¹ 2 Rectorys, one Church; Higher Mediety, prima portio, 200¹ p.[er] an.[num.] Lower Mediety, altera portio, 180¹ p.[er] an.[num.]

Patron of the first mediety, L^d Chomley and M^{rs} Drake, by turns.

¹ Dedicated to St. Oswald. Value in 1834, Higher mediety, £1000, Lower mediety £910. Registers begin in 1561.

Malpas was the property and seat of Robert Fitz Hugh, one of the eight Barons of Hugh Lupus' Parliament, and probably his bastard son. He had a Castle here, of which the Keep remains near the Church. At Domesday it was distinguished by a British name, Depenbech, (not Depenbock,) which, like Malpas signifies either the badness of the roads, or the difficulty of the pass. In the reign of Richard I. the Barony of Malpas was held in moieties, by Robert Patric and David le Clerk, in right of the coheirss of Robert Fitz Hugh. Patric's descendant carried one moiety in marriage to Richard de Sutton. On the death of William de Malpas, son of David le Clerk, his illegitimate son, David, possessed himself of the other moiety, which was inherited by the posterity of his two daughters, to the exclusion of the lawful heirs. Beatrice, one of these daughters, brought a fourth part of the Barony in marriage to the Suttons, who possessed the Castle and site of the Barony, and having purchased large estates of the Hortons, whose maternal ancestor, Urian St. Pierre, married the other daughter of David de Malpas, nearly the whole appears to have been vested in the Sutton family, in the time of Henry VII. The Breretons of Brereton, however, claimed a moiety of the Barony by descent from one of the daughters, and eventually sole heiress, of David de Malpas, the last heir male of the family, who died 1362. They had frequent law suits with the illegitimate descendants, and from time to time recovered parts of the Barony; so that in the time of Henry VIII. they held three-fourths of it, which were sold soon after the Restoration, by William Lord Brereton to Sir William Drake of Shardloes Park, near Amersham, in the county of Bucks Knt. ancestor of the present owner, Sir Thomas Tyrwhitt Drake Bart. The other share was passed over by fine, 28th Henry VIII. by Sir John Dudley Knt. and Jane his wife, to Rowland Hill, citizen and mercer of London, and from their kinsman, Sir Richard Corbet of Stoke-upon-Trent, it was purchased by Sir Randolph Brereton of Shocklach, 14th Elizabeth. This fourth share of the Barony of Malpas was conveyed by marriage

¹ Dedicated to St. Chadd. Value in 1834, £144. No return of Registers.

In Webb's Itinerary, written in 1621, this is called Chadwick Chapel, and is probably of very ancient date, as "the Chapel field" and the "Chapel meadow" are mentioned in a deed dated 1349. The present Chapel was built in 1689, principally by a benefaction under the will of Mr. John Dod, mercer and citizen of London.

In 1778, Susanna, daughter and heiress of Thomas Churton of Whitechurch Gent. claimed this Chapel as an appurtenant of the Manor of Tussingham, but afterwards relinquished the claim, and the Rectors of Malpas now nominate the Curate.

It is a Chapel of Ease to Malpas, being built for the convenience of the township, and not having, originally, liberty of baptism or burial.

¹ Whitewell Chapel, in Iseoyd, is in the county of Flint, and five miles distant from Malpas.

¹ Domestick Chapels were originally oratories, or places for private prayer, not consecrated, (Lyndwood's Provinc. f. 78.) furnished with an altar, and near the bedchamber, (Froissart ii. 157.) to which, after the Reformation, succeeded the closet.

² Robert Cholmondeley, eldest son and heir of Sir Hugh Cholmondeley of Cholmondeley Knt. was born in 1584, created a Baronet in 1611, Viscount Cholmondeley of Kells in Ireland, 1628, Baron Cholmondeley of Wich Malbank in Cheshire, 1645, and Earl of Leinster in Ireland, 1646; he died in 1659. He was a zealous loyalist, and a brave and gallant soldier.

This Chapel has again been fitted up for divine service, by the present Marquess of Cholmondeley.

Mainwaring of Smallwood Esq. (of the Carincham family,) and thus became brother-in-law of Elias Ashmole, the Herald. He died in 1714, and his wife in 1724-5, and both were buried at Middleton. He was author of a rare book called "Transubstantiation discussed by a Popish Priest and Henry Newcome, Rector of Middleton, Lancashire." 4to. 1705.

Matthew Henry constantly attended the Reformation Lectures (see p. 136, Note 3) in St. Peter's Church in Chester, and his Diary notices the "good discourses he heard from Mr. Henry Newcome of Tatnall," and others. And yet Mr. Newcome, about the year 1700, "dishonoured himself by becoming a railer, and after hearing his accusations and invectives, Mr. Henry, in imitation of Michael, when contending with the Devil, made the following solemn appeal: 'The Lord be judge between us.'"—Sir J. B. Williams' Life of Matthew Henry. The origin of this "railing" is not stated; but surely Matthew Henry and Michael the Archangel, as well as Henry Newcome and the Devil, ought not to have been thus placed in juxtaposition, as such an allocation has very much the appearance of profaneness, and would seem to imply a deficiency of charity and an arrogance of temper unworthy of Matthew Henry.

Rector of Wigan, and Bishop of Chester elect, (descended from the Graftons who were seated here in the time of Edward III.) to Peter Warburton Esq. Justice of the King's Bench, who built the present house, and died September 7th, 1621, according to his funeral certificate, but before the 20th Jac. according to his post mortem inquisition. His daughter and heiress was the wife of Sir Thomas Stanley of Alderley.

³ The number of Quakers must have decreased rapidly in this Parish, as Calamy mentions that Mr. Edward Burghall, the Vicar from 1646 to 1662, was much molested by them, and that on the day he preached his farewell sermon, some of them came into the Church and gave him disturbance; and yet, half a century afterwards, there are only "about ten members" found in the place.—Vol. i. p. 324. 8vo. 1802.

⁵ At the Dissolution, the Rectory and Advowson of the Vicarage were granted by Henry VIII. to Richard Wilbraham of Woodhey, whose descendant, Grace, eldest daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Wilbraham Bart. married in 1680, Lionel, second Earl of Dysart, in whose representative they are now vested.

his descendants to the family of Wettenhall, in the time of Edward III. which terminated in six coheiresses. Elena and Margery, wives of Henry de Arderne and Geoffry de Bromhale, divided the Nantwich estates, the first having the Manor of Acton with the Demesne of Dorfold. These were alienated in the 28th Henry VI. by Robert Arden Esq. to Sir John Bromley, whose descendant sold the same to Sir Roger Wilbraham, Master of the Court of Requests, before the 44th Elizabeth. This branch of the Wilbraham family continued at Dorfold Hall until 1754, when the Manor of Acton and other Manors were sold to James Tomkinson Esq.

⁷ The Church at the Domesday Survey was an appendant of the Barony of Wich Malbank, and was granted by Robert, second Earl of Chester, to Combermere Abbey, and confirmed by Earl Randle in 1130.

Richard Peche, Bishop of Lichfield, granted a Licence for the appropriation of the Rectory after 1161, and before 1183; and a Vicarage was ordained by Roger de Molend, Bishop of Lichfield, in 1265.—Ormerod. *Ordinatio Vicariæ de Acton dat. apud La Lee s. d. Webb, in his Itinerary, written in 1621, has the following interesting passage:—"Hereunto lyeth the demesne and Hall of Woodhay, which, as it was the first place where my feet had some rest after the variable courses of my youth, so I could here long dwell upon the remembrances of that ever worthy honoured owner of it and of me his unworthy servant, Thomas Wilbraham esq. if even here my ink were not forced to give place to the tears that fall from my eyes. But what need I think upon the commending of him, the world takes knowledge of his worth. The God whom he served is the God of his seed; the blessing of Heaven is upon his house, and so I hope and pray it may long continue." Thomas Wilbraham Esq. died in 1610, and was succeeded by his son Richard, who was created a Baronet in 1621. The house has been entirely destroyed, but the Chapel and stables still remain in a very flat and lonely part of the county.

The share of the first passed to the Masseys of Hough, and, being alienated to the Smyths, was sold by them about the beginning of the eighteenth century to William Mascie Esq. of Lymme.

After various intermediate descents, the share of Wrenbury became vested in the Masseys of Tatton. Sir Geoffry Massey of Tatton Knt. left a bastard son, John, in 1457, from whom the Masseys of Audlem, and Denfield descended, they inheriting part of the former Manor by settlement. The whole Manor is now vested in Mascie Taylor of Audlem and Chester Esq. great grandson of William Mascie of Lymme, above mentioned.

The Vernons were the Lords paramount of Baddiley (Bedelei in Domesday) in the 16th Edward I. and the mesne Lords were the family of Praers of Barthomley, whose descendant and coheiress, Joan Praers, about the time of Richard II. married William Mainwaring of Peover, and conveyed a moiety of the Manor to this family, which subsequently obtained the other moiety.

After the Dissolution of Combermere Abbey, the Advowson and Manor were reunited, and the former was retained by the Mainwarings after the latter was alienated.

The Advowson has been lately purchased by John Tollemache Esq. M.P.

Webb, in 1621, speaks of "Baddiley with a little Church and an ancient seat that belongs to Sir Randal Mainwaring Knight." The Church was built entirely of English oak, and presented a most unique specimen of a timber ecclesiastical edifice until certain alterations were made in 1811.

Baddiley Hall, a residence of the Mainwaring family, of wood and plaster, has been lately taken down.

In the Introduction to the Diary of the Hon. Henry Sidney, (afterwards Earl of Romney, who died in 1704,) are some Letters from Mrs. Grace Worthley, a person highly connected with ancient Cheshire families, who, unfortunately for herself, upon the death of her husband, fell in Sidney's way, and lived disreputably with him for twenty years. At length, deserted and in distress, having in vain applied to Sidney, she threw herself at the feet of both King Charles and James, and published her case and her injuries to the world. The following extract from a letter dated July 6th, 1694, alludes to so many Cheshire families, that it may not be uninteresting to give it a place here. It is addressed to Mr. Sidney, and in a milder spirit than many others; for in one addressed to her cousin, Lord Brandon, she speaks of spending her precious youth dismally with Sidney, and of being now abused and despised by him; and adds, with fearful vehemence, "I cannot manage a sword, a pistol I can — I shall pistol him and be hanged for him."

"How I wish I were to accompany King William in his progress into Cheshire, that I might once before I die make a visit to the good old wooden house at Stoak; within three miles of Nantwich, where I was born and bred; and, if your Lordship does attend on the King in his progress, let me beg of you to make a step to Stoak, 'tis but fourteen miles from West Chester, and I hear the King goes to Chester. You will find my cousin, Edward Mynshull, will give you a very generous entertainment, and so will my cousin, Sir Thomas Mainwaring of Badelly; and Stanley of Houghton, and Chelmley of Vale Royal, and forty more of my relatives there, if you please to do them the honour of visiting their innocent, clownish habitations; and when you have viewed Stoak Hall, where I was born, (for so it is vulgarly

Gaysworth, too, will be able to entertain you — that was my great grandfather's: but my Lord Macclesfield complains that the old house is ready to fall upon his head. I love Gaysworth because my mother was born there. I remember you told me you had been at Brewerton (Brereton) Green. I like Stoak as well — you will find my Lady Brewerton and her daughters at the good old house on Brewerton Green — the young ladies live there like Nuns. I wish Queen Mary would make them courtiers, and I wish your Lordship would incline to do what is reasonable by me, that I might go into Cheshire and there end my days. I should enjoy more happiness in one month in Cheshire, than I have done in all the twenty-five years I have mis-spent in London.

"If my Lord, you will be so kind as to make a visit to Stoak, pray ask my cousin Ned Mynshull whether the heir of Pool be likely to outlive me or not, for if he were dead the estate comes to me, and though it be but £400 a-year, yet it will be acceptable to me, if it be but to pay her debts, who is sincerely yours till death. — G. Dean Swift peevishly described the Earl of Romney as "an old, vicious, illiterate rake, without any sense of truth or honour;" (Appendix to the Life of Swift p. 50.) to the accuracy of which description Mrs. Grace Worthley would, doubtless, have cordially assented.

family under the Barons of Wich-Malbank, and were conveyed by Elizabeth, sole daughter and heiress of Thomas Praers, after the 23d of Edward III. to Sir Robert Fulleshurst, or Foulhurst, of Crewe. In this family that Manor and Advowson continued united, until they were sold by Robert, Thomas, and George Fulleshurst of Crewe and Barthomley, to Sir Christopher Hatton Knt. 21st Elizabeth.

³ Barthomley subsequently passed by sale to Sir Randolph Crewe, Chief Justice of the King's Bench in 1623, from which office he was removed for his opposition to the levying of ship money.

Lord Crewe is the present owner of the Manor, and Patron of the Living.

The Church was attacked in 1643 by a troop of Lord Byron's soldiers, some of the Republicans having taken refuge in it. The rushes, mats, and forms were burnt, and it is said that twelve individuals miserably perished.

⁴ Walter Offley was instituted to the Rectory in 1704, and died in 1721. The following letter contains his account of the Living:—"8ber 7th, 1705. I beg to state that no part of the Tythes of Barthomley are impropriated, but all are gathered in kind except Hay, for which there is a modus. A right wing was joined to the Church (equal to, if not larger than it) by S^r Randal Crewe, formerly L^d Chief Justice of England, and applied now only to the use of that family. As to the foundation of the Church, I can find it no where upon record; but in the old glass in one of the windows, I find these words, 'Orate pro bono statu Thomæ Fulleshurst, anno dom. 1534.' The house is of timber and plaster, finished with gables and bay windows, and was originally moated.

² The Vernons, Lords of Shipbrook, possessed two thirds of this Manor from the time of Edward I. which were conveyed by Muriel, daughter and finally sole heiress of George Vernon of Haslington, (one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas,) to her husband, Henry Vernon of Sudbury Esq. ancestor of the present Lord Vernon and continued in his family until the beginning of the last century. The manor is now the property of Admiral Sir John Delves Broughton of Doddington Bart.
who nominates the curate.

The Chapel was termed anciently "libera Capella," and Clerks were regularly instituted from the year 1302; why it was not regarded as a Parish Church, like Barrow, Brereton, Wistaston, &c. called originally Chapels, is involved in obscurity.
The ancient Chapel of timber and plaster was taken down some years since, by Sir Thomas Broughton Bart. and a brick building erected by him on its site, which was consecrated about the year 1809.

⁴ From mistaking this date, "an. 1689" for "an. 1302," in Gastrell, the accurate historian of Cheshire is led into a conjecture which has no foundation. He says, "this Licence probably refers to some building formerly enclosed within the moated area, mentioned as the probable situation of the antient Hall; from whence the Chapel may have been removed to its present site, when the later residence of the Vernons (with which the wooden building above mentioned corresponded in style of architecture) was erected, to the east of the village." Tradition, generally correct in leading facts, here supplies information which corroborates the statements of Gastrell. In describing the house of the Vernons, the same historian states, "that the centre of one side of the original building has been occupied by a large apartment which — may be safely supposed to have been the Hall, but local tradition asserts it to have been a Domestick Chapel."

The date anno 1302, in Gastrell, refers to Ralph de Vernon as Patron, in that year, and not to the Licence "for a meeting," which phrase in connection with a place like Haslington Hall is remarkable, but may be explained by a reference to Calamy, who says that "Mr. Joseph Cope, ejected from Sandbach in 1662, soon after the Revolution fixed in the Public Chapel at Haslington, in Bartomley Parish, by the consent of the gentleman to whom it belonged, and kept up a very considerable congregation in it as long as he lived, which was to his 83d year, dying in 1694. Dr. Egerton, the Rector of Bartomley, allowed Mr. Matthew Henry to preach his funeral sermon."

This township was granted at the Conquest to Robert Fitz Hugh, Baron of Malpas, whose daughter and coheirress, Letitia, married — Patrick. The mesne Manor was held in the time of King Stephen by Henry de Bonebury, said to have been of the house of St. Pierre, the arms of this family being borne by the Bunburys without a difference. In the reign of Richard the First the Manor was in moieties, one of which passed to Alexander de Bunbury, and the other to the St. Pierres, (called above Stō Petro,) who exercised an alternate right of presentation to the Church. From this Alexander de Bunbury, Sir William Bunbury claimed a moiety of the Manor, but failed in establishing his right. The Earl of Dysart is seized of the whole Manor, in right of his ancestors the Wilbrahams.

their ancestors, and to endow the same with the Advowson of the Rectory and two acres of land to which the Advowson was appendant, which Rectory the Master and Chaplains were directed to appropriate for the benefit of themselves and their successors. At the Dissolution, in the time of Edward VI. these possessions fell to the Crown: the College then consisted of a Warden, six Chaplains, and two Choristers. No remains of the College are now in existence.

⁶ George Spurstow of Spurstow Esq. succeeded his father in 1603, and died in 1665, having married Elizabeth-Anne, widow of Thomas Brooke of Norton Esq. His great grandson, Charles Spurstow Esq. died in 1685, having sold the Manor and estate of Spurstow to Sir John Crewe of Utkinton. Of this family was Dr. William Spurstow, (son of William Spurstow, citizen and mercer of London,) Master of Catharine Hall, Cambridge, one of the Assembly of Divines, and Vicar of Hackney. The initial letters of his name are the three last in the fictitious word SMECTYMNVS, the title of a celebrated Puritan book, in which he was jointly concerned with four others. He died in 1666. — Wood's Athen. Baxter's Life and Times, B. i. p. 334. Clarendon states that Spurstow was rude and insolent to Charles the First, and told his Majesty that he would be damned if he did not consent to abolish Episcopacy, with which, the polished historian adds, the King was not at all disturbed. — *Hist. ⁷ Beeston Castle was built by Randle de Blundeville, sixth Earl of Chester, about the year 1220. Henry, son of Alexander de Bonbury, living 33d Henry III. married Margery, daughter of William de Beeston, and had a son, David de Beeston, from whom descended, in the eleventh generation, Margaret, sole surviving daughter and heiress of Sir Hugh Beeston Knt. She married William Whitmore of Leighton Esq. by whom she had Bridget, an only daughter, wife of the Hon. Thomas Savage, second son of the first Viscount Savage. Their son, Darcie Savage of Beeston and Leighton Esq. had a daughter and heiress who conveyed the estates of the Beestons and Whitmores to Sir Thomas Mostyn of Mostyn Bart. whose descendant lately sold them to John Tollemache of Helmingham Castle Esq. M.P. for the county of Chester.

⁹ Peckforton Hall was sold by George Peckforton, Gent. about the end of the seventeenth century, to Sir John Crewe of Utkinton. It is now no longer in existence. The estate belongs to John Tollemache Esq. who is building a castellated house here on a magnificent scale.

¹¹ Tilston Hall, a house of the Wilbrahams of Woodhay, is now destroyed. Tilston Lodge is a temporary residence of John Tollemache Esq. M.P.

¹² Wardle Hall was anciently the seat of the Prestlands, afterwards sold, 44th Elizabeth, to the Wilbrahams of Woodhay, and now used as a farm house.

¹³ Ridley Hall, the seat of the Egerton family from the time of Henry VIII. who granted the estate to Sir Ralph Egerton, second son of Philip Egerton of Egerton Esq. as a reward for taking the French standard at Tournay. ² By imperceptible degrees, this Chapel, formerly in Acton, became Parochial, and, like the neighbouring one of Namptwich, is now reputed a distinct Parish Church.—Ormerod.

Mr. John Farington, the Incumbent, stated in 1705, "that it was at one time a Chapel in the great Parish of Acton adjoining, but was made a Parish by Act of Parliament, before the Reformation, (tempore Henry VIII.) being then appropriated to the Abbey of Combermere, and supplied by some of the Monks who were the Abbots' Curates, which may be the reason, perhaps, why the Ministers of the place style themselves Vicars, but only Curates, as appears from the Registers of the said Parish."—Notitia Paroch. vol. v. p. 1159.

³ Munschulf—not Munshult—is mentioned as a Chapel by Earl Randle Gernons, in his Confirmation Charter to Combermere Abbey, in the year 1130. The Rectory was appropriated to that Monastery.

⁴ At the Dissolution, it was leased to Edward Mynshull of Mynshull Esq. and subsequently became the property of that ancient family, descended from Augustin de Minshull, Lord of this place in the time of Henry I. On the death of John Minshull Esq. in 1654, the Manor and Donative of the Curacy were conveyed by marriage, with Elizabeth his sole daughter and heiress, to Thomas Cholmondeley of Vale Royal Esq. From this family they passed by sale to the Brookes, of Norton, and are now vested in H. Brooke Esq.

Survey was unequally divided between the King and Earl Edwin, whose mansion was at the neighbouring town of Acton. William Malbeding, one of Hugh Lupus' Barons, was the Norman grantee, and from him it derived its additional appellation. He was living in 1093, and his wife, Adelia, in 1130.

William Malbank, grandson of the original grantee, left three daughters and co-heiresses, amongst whom the entire Barony was divided, and shortly afterwards it was split into successive subdivisions, and new divisions of these subdivisions, until nearly the whole became reunited in the Cholmondeley family, by successive purchases, in the reigns of Elizabeth and James the First.

² Gastrell is wrong in his statement of the certified value of the Living, which does not agree with his enumeration of items, and Ormerod is also in error in making the quarterly contribution "yearly" about £8.

On the 10th of October, 1705, the Rev. John Bradshaw, Rector, (from 1695 to 1711-12,) stated the value of the Rectory to be £10 per annum, excepting Contributions. The Tithe Hay of one small Lordship, value about 40s. per annum, belonged to it. A Library was then founding, and being settled by the Clergy of the Deanery. ³ Before 1130, Acton Church, with its Chapel of Wich-Malbank, was given to Combermere Abbey, from which it is evident that Nantwich was at that time considered a dependency of Acton. It appears to have ranked amongst the lesser foundations at the great Ecclesiastical Survey, 26th Henry VIII. nor does it occur in the century following as a Parish Church. It is, however, to be observed, that in the Charter of Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury, ratifying Baldwin's confirmation of William Malbank's grant to Combermere, it is styled a Church,—"ecclesiæ de Actona, de Rametwico, de Sandona et Alstonefield."

This Hospital or Chantry is said to have been endowed by one of the Lords Lovell with the tithe proceeding from his lands.

It appears from Domesday Book that this Manor had been vested in the Bishop of Lichfield in the time of Edward the Confessor, and that it was part of the endowment of the same See at the time of the Survey, although the paramount interest of the Bishop was disputed by the sub-tenant, William, probably Malbeding, Baron of Nantwich. In the reign of Edward I. the Lords of "Wydinbury" owed suit and service to the Vernons, and the Praers family were the mesne Lords.

This Parish was part of the Barony of Nantwich, and held by William Malbendeng, the kinsman of Hugh Lupus. In the reign of Henry III. the Manor was held under the Sandfords, in whom a portion of the Barony was then vested, by the Wistanstons, who were the first mesne Lords. One moiety of the Manor was given in the 16th Henry VI. by John, son of Richard de Wistanston, to Ralph Egerton of Caldecote, who, in the 18th Henry VI. invested in trustees half the Manor with the Advowson of the Church. In the reign of Henry VIII. this moiety of the Manor was bought of the Egertons by the family of Alexander, and was conveyed by Margaret, daughter and heiress of John Alexander, in marriage, to Richard Walthall of Nantwich Esq. collateral ancestor of the present manerial proprietor of Wistanston. The other moiety, after various intermediate descents, was purchased of Sir Thomas Broughton, by Peter Walthall Esq. great uncle of James Walthall Hammond, Esq. the present owner.

² It is supposed that this parish was taken out of the adjoining one of Wibunbury, shortly after the year 1299.

John, the great Earl of Shrewsbury who died 21st Henry VI. and whose descendant, Edward Talbot Esq. sold the Manor of Marbury, 40th Elizabeth, to Sir Thomas Egerton, Keeper of the Great Seal, for £2000, and it passed down from this distinguished purchaser to his lineal descendant, the last Earl of Bridgewater.

² It does not appear when this Church was annexed to Whitchurch Parish, but in the great Ecclesiastical Taxation of Pope Nicholas in 1299, it is returned as "eccl'ia de Merbur," and valued at v^l. It is a Parochial Chapelry, but like some other ancient dependencies is sometimes termed a Parish per se, and also a Rectory.

It is rather matter of tradition than certainty that, as the annual Wake is held on Michaelmas-day, the Church was dedicated to St. Michael. — Inform. Rev.

¹ Dedicated to St. Mary. Value in 1834, £1485. Registers begin in 1572.

Astbury was surveyed in Domesday under the name of Newbold, and was frequently called, in subsequent times, Newbold-Astbury. The family of Venables of Kinderton held the Manor at the Conquest, and Sir Richard de Venables, a younger son of William de Venables, Baron of Kinderton, settled at Newbold in the time of Henry III; and his lineal descendant, William de Venables, and Werburga his wife, were living here in 1336. In the 44th Edward III. Adam de Drayton, who is supposed to have married a daughter of William de Venables, conveyed the Manor to Thomas de Hawkeston, by sale. Ellen, daughter and heiress of Sir John de Hawkeston, (one of Lord Audley's Esquires,) brought the estates of her family, in marriage, to William Egerton of Caldecote, afterwards of Wrinehill, about the reign of Henry IV. Before the year 1640 this Manor was sold by the Egertons to the Oldfields, who, in their turn, sold it to Archdale Palmer Esq. before the year 1662, from whose family it is supposed to have passed by marriage to the ancestors of the present manerial owner, Sir Philip de Malpas Grey Egerton of Egerton and Oulton Bart.

² There was a Church here at the Domesday Survey, and Gilbert de Venables gave it "to God and St. Werburgh" before 1093. Sir William, not "Richard," Venables, in 1188, confirmed to the Abbey his great grandfather's gift; but in 1259

Sir Roger Venables renewed the dispute, and recovered seisin of the Advowson about 1261. His success, the irritated Monks record, was followed by a miserable death within twelve months, and his son, Sir William Venables, again quitclaimed the Church to the Abbey. This, however, did not settle the long agitated dispute; as, in four generations afterwards, Sir Richard Venables renewed the ancient feud, and claimed a right to present to the Living, on the ground of his ancestors having exercised it. The Monks pleaded the original grant, the reversion of the judgment and the subsequent confirmation, and in the 13th Richard II. their right was finally established.

⁴ The Advowson was soon lost by the Dean and Chapter, and was confirmed, with the other Abbey possessions, to the fee farmers, 22d Elizabeth. See p. 65. 66. Note 2.

After passing through several hands, the Advowson was purchased by the Crewe family, and is now vested in Lord Crewe.

⁵ Great Moreton Hall is a spacious building of timber and plaster, finished with gables, about the time of Queen Elizabeth. It passed from the Moretons, by marriage, to the Bellots, about the time of Henry VI. and continued in that family until the death of Sir John Bellot Bart. in February 1713-14. It is now the property of the Ackers', formerly merchants of Manchester.

⁷ Somerford Park passed from the feudal family of Somerford, by marriage, in the time of Queen Elizabeth, to Sir Philip Oldfield, and about 1701 his descendant sold the lordship to the Shakerleys of Holme, who removed hither. Much of the present house was built in 1800, by Mr. Shakerley, grandfather of Sir Charles Peter Shakerley, created a Baronet in 1838.

From the Conquest to the thirteenth century, Congleton was a dependency of the fee granted to Bigot, which, about the time of King John, had its chief seat fixed at Aldford. The Manor passed from John, son of Sir Peter Arderne, Lord of Aldford and Alvanley, about the time of Edward I. to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln and Baron of Halton, and in the 15th Edward IV. Congleton was considered one of the towns which descended with the Barony of Halton. Bishop Gastrell here gives a date (10th Edward I. anno 1281, or 1282,) but the Charter among the muniments of the Corporation is without date.—Note in Lysons' Hist. Chesh.

² The Dissenting Meeting House for Presbyterians was built in 1687, and the funeral sermon of Mr George Moxon, sometime chaplain to Sir William Brereton, and afterwards Minister of St. Helen's near Warrington, was the first sermon preached in it. He died September 15th, 1687, aged 85.—Calamy, vol. i. p. 325.

The notorious Regicide, Bradshaw, was an Alderman of this borough, and practised here many years as a Barrister. He was Mayor in 1637, and made Chief Justice of Chester by the Parliament in 1647. In 1655-6 it was resolved that he should be continued High Steward of the borough, and be paid his quarterly salary for Counsel as heretofore.

¹⁰ Although it is here stated that no Parochial rights existed in Gastrell's time, Bishop Cartwright has recorded in his Diary, March 4th, 1687, that he determined the case of Congleton by a summary hearing in his study; allowed it to be a burial place, they paying their duties, as is particularly mentioned in the Licence, to the mother church of Astbury, with which both parties seemed well satisfied.

¹¹ A new Grammar School was built by the Corporation in 1814. The old one existed in the time of Queen Elizabeth.

This benefactor was William Parnell, who by will, dated 1622, left this sum to be expended in bread. In 1787 it was said to be only £5. 6s. 0d.—Charit. Returns printed in Ormerod's 3d vol.

At the Norman Survey, Brereton was one of the six dependencies of the Barony of Kinderton. Shortly after this it was granted to a family of the local name, apparently connected with the Venables family, the arms used by both being nearly similar. This Manor and Advowson continued in the male line of the Breretons until the death of Francis, fifth Lord Brereton, who died unmarried in 1722, when the estates passed to the Holtes of Aston in the county of Warwick, in right of Jane, great aunt of the last Baron Brereton, and wife of Sir Robert Holte Bart. Sir Charles Holte Bart. dying in 1782, left issue, a daughter and heiress, who married Abraham Bracebridge of Atherston in the county of Warwick Esq. who obtained an Act of Parliament in 1817 for the dismemberment and sale of the Brereton Estates.

The Manor and Hall were purchased by Mr. Howard, a Cotton Spinner of Hyde, in the parish of Stockport, who now resides at the latter.

² The Church, anciently dependent on Astbury, was made Parochial, says Ormerod, in the time of Richard the First, which statement disagrees with that of Sir Peter Leycester.

³ The house was built by the Rev. Charles Everard M.A. son of Charles Everard of Somerford Gent. He became Rector of Brereton in 1719, and married Mary, daughter of Lawrence Booth of Twemlow Esq. in 1722. He died here in 1731, æt. 49. His son, Charles Everard D.D. Prebendary of York and Sarum, succeeded to the estates of his maternal uncle, and assumed the name of Booth, in 1786.

⁴ The Advowson continued an appurtenant of the Manor from this period until it was sold by Mr. Bracebridge in December, 1817, to James Royds of Mount Falinge near Rochdale Esq. in whose family it is now vested. For some account of this Advowson see the Letters of Bishop Gastrell.

Hugh Kevelliock, Earl of Chester, granted this Manor to Robert le Grosvenor, between the years 1153 and 1160, in whose family it continued until the time of Henry VI. when it was bought, about the year 1431, by William Troutbeck Esq. by whose female descendant it was conveyed, by marriage, to the ancestor of the present Earl of Shrewsbury, the manerial Lord. The Boundaries of Little Budworth may be found in the Harl. MSS. No. 2074-50.

The Church, made dependent on Astbury in Ecton's Thesaurus, and styled a Vicarage by Dr. Ducarel, was described by Cole, the Cambridge Antiquary, in 1757, as "a neat building of red stone, having a tower at the west end, with two side aisles supported by wooden pillars." The stone tower alone remains. The Nave and Chancel have been rebuilt with stone, £1000 having been left in 1798, by the Will of Ralph Kirkham Esq. an opulent Manchester merchant, son of a tenant of the Earl of Shrewsbury, and educated at Lady Egerton's free School here.

Davenham possesses no manerial rights, but is itself parcel of the Barony of Shipbrook.

² There was a Church here anterior to the Norman Conquest, which passed along with the Manor from Osmer, the Saxon proprietor, to Richard de Vernon, and the Advowson appears to have been reguardant of the Barony of Shipbrook until the estates were divided amongst the coheirs of Warin de Vernon, in the thirteenth century. Auda, wife of William Stafford, and daughter of Warin de Vernon, is supposed to have given the Church to the Priory of Birkenhead, which was re-purchased by Sir Ralph Vernon Knt. (called Young Sir Ralph,) heir to his great great grandfather, Sir Ralph Vernon Knt. who survived to the extraordinary age of 150 years, and was naturally enough called Old Sir Ralph.

For many centuries the Advowson continued in the Vernon and Savage families but was alienated about the middle of the last century, and, passing through several owners, is now vested in James F. France Esq. brother of the Rev. Thomas France M.A. the Rector.

Bailiff of Drakelow, 48th Edward III. John Page, living in 1666, sold his estates to Sir Henry Delves of Doddington. It is now the property, by purchase, of Sir with the heiress of the Vernons to Sir John Savage of Clifton, 5th Henry VI. It was purchased in 1795 by William Harper of Liverpool Esq. of the Trustees of Thomas Highlord Ravenscroft Esq.

Whitelock, in his Memorials, mentions that in June, 1652, eleven persons were struck dead by Lightning in Lawton Church. Middlewich was retained by Hugh Lupus at the Conquest as an appurtenant of the Earldom of Chester, and continued vested in the local Earls until it merged in the Crown. It was held on lease from the Crown, for many years, by the Venables family, and in 1756 a new lease was granted to George Venables Vernon Esq. afterwards Lord Vernon. Mr. Wright is now the Lessee.

³ From 1306 to the middle of the fifteenth century, the Advowson was not vested in the Lords of Middlewich, but in the Touchet family, probably in right of their Manor of Tattenhall, under which various lands in this parish were held: or this Church might be situated originally in the township of Newton, where there was a Presbyter at Domesday Survey. ⁷ Kinderton Hall, the Norman head of this Barony, was a castellated edifice, now destroyed, and the later hall, surrounded by a moat, has been taken down. The Venables family traced their descent from Gilbert de Venables, supposed to be younger brother of Stephen, Earl of Blois, living in 1086. Peter Venables, the nineteenth in descent from Gilbert, was the last heir male of the family, and dying, in 1679, without issue male, the estates passed to his daughter Anne, wife of Montague, Lord Norreys, afterwards Earl of Abingdon. On the death of the Countess of Abingdon, in 1715, the Barony of Kinderton passed to the Vernons of Sudbury in the county of Derby, in right of Mary, only sister of the last Baron, and is now vested in Lord Vernon.

Of this ancient family is the present venerable Archbishop of York, he being the third son of the first Lord Vernon, by his third wife, and born October 10th, 1757.

⁸ Kinderton Lodge was erected to supply the place of the former hall.

⁹ Byley Grange was granted, at the Dissolution of Dieulacres Abbey, to the Shakerleys, and is now the property of Sir Charles P. Shakerley Bart.

¹¹ Croxton Hall, the seat of the Croxtons and Mainwarings, is now, with the Manor and whole Township, the property of Mr. Tomkinson of Dorford.

¹² Clive Hall, formerly the seat of the Clives, and conveyed by marriage in the time of Edward IV. to the Hulse family, is now a farm house, belonging to the University of Cambridge. Of this family was the Rev. John Hulse M.A. who is buried in Middlewich Church, the generous founder of the Hulsean Prize, and office of Christian Advocate, in the University of Cambridge, and of other brilliant Foundations. It was built by the Minshulls, and purchased from them by Mr. Richard Vernon of Middlewich, who bequeathed it to a namesake, not related to him, who was mercer to Queen Anne. After the Dissolution the Manor was granted, in 1546, by the King to Sir Thomas Holcroft of Holcroft Knt. whose descendant sold it to Edmund Pershall of London, merchant, from which family it was purchased, in the time of Charles II. by Thomas Cholmondeley Esq. and is now vested in the Lord Delamere.

³ The Impropriation of this Church was given by Randle Gernons, Earl of Chester, to the Prioress and Convent of the Blessed Virgin Mary in Chester, with whom the Advowson continued until the Dissolution. By Letters Patent, dated 38th Henry VIII. the Rectory and Vicarage were granted to the See of Chester. According to the Parliamentary Survey, in 1649, the Parsonage of Over was leased by John, Bishop of Chester, to Thomas Cholmondeley of WALL-RIALI Esq. by lease dated 10th October, 1640, for twenty-one years, at an annual rent of £8. Mr. Cholmondeley had the honour of being styled "a delinquent," and his estates were then sequestered.—Vol. iii. c. Lamb. MSS.

¹ Patron Saint unknown. Value in 1834, £75. No Return of Registers.

From a very early period the Manor was the property of the Wetenhalls, whose coheireses brought it in moieties, about the beginning of the fifteenth century, to the Manleys and Bostocks. The Breretons eventually became seized of the whole, and had a seat here. John Brereton Esq. alienated the Manor about the middle of the seventeenth century to Roger Wilbraham of Dorfold Esq. whose descendant sold this and the other estates, about 1750, to Henry Tomkinson Esq. in whose family they are now vested.

The Chapel is a modern looking building of brick, supposed to have been Domestic to the Hall, until endowed by Queen Anne's Bounty. There are no Burials, and the small chapel-yard is said to be unconsecrated. The Curate is nominated by the Vicar of Over. — Inform. Rev. W. Lockett, Incumb.

² Wetenhall Hall is now a farm house. It was built in 1630, as appears by a date over the door. It is a good specimen of the architecture of the day.

A family of the local name was settled here in the reign of King John, who held the Manor under the fee of Aldford, which, at the Conquest, belonged to Bigot. In the reign of Edward II. Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Richard de Sandbach, conveyed the Manor, in marriage, to John, son of John Legh of Booths, whose daughter and heiress, Maud, married Richard Radclyffe of Ordshall near Manchester Esq. In the time of Queen Elizabeth it was purchased of Sir John Radclyffe of Ordshall by Sir Ranulph Crewe, and is now vested in his representative, the Right Honourable Hungerford, Baron Crewe.

A Church and Presbyter were established here at the Domesday Survey, and although originally vested in the manerial lord, the Church soon reverted to Randle de Blundeville, Earl of Chester, who granted it to the Abbey of Dieulacres, and, partly by legal decisions, and partly by a purchased compromise, the Abbey was in full possession in the time of Henry III.

The Church was appropriated in the year 1256.

At the Dissolution of Dieulacres, the impropriate Rectory was vested in the Crown,

The Advowson was purchased, 3d and 4th Philip and Mary, by Richard Wilbraham of Woodhay, for his nephew, William Liversage, for £15.

After passing through various hands, it is now vested in the Rev. John Armitstead M.A. the Vicar.

⁵ Sandbach Hall is a large building of timber and plaster, with gables and bay windows, and erected about the middle of the seventeenth century. It probably occupies the site of the ancient mansion of the Sandbaches.

⁶ Bradwall Hall, with an Oratory in the Church, and manerial rights, were conveyed by Lord Vernon, in 1807, to John Latham Esq. M.D. and are now vested in his son.

Sandbach is celebrated for possessing two elaborately ornamented stone Crosses, beautifully sketched, with plans and elevations, in Lysons' Cheshire, and also still more correctly, from actual measurement, by Mr. Palmer, Architect, of Manchester, in Ormerod's History of the same County. They are attributed to Saxon artists, and are, unquestionably, amongst the finest monuments of antiquity, of this kind, in the kingdom. After having escaped the popular violence at the period of the Reformation, these beautiful relics of early piety, were wantonly defaced by the Iconoclasts of the seventeenth century, and, after remaining long neglected, the mutilated and scattered remnants were carefully collected and judiciously replaced in their original position through the taste of Mr. Ormerod, the Historian, and by the liberality of Sir J. G. Egerton of Oulton Park Bart. about the year 1816. See an interesting account of stone crosses, and an allusion to these, in vol. i. p. 383, of the Archæol. Journal, 1845.

Barnshaw cum Goostrey—the Bernulfschawe and Gostrel of Domesday—are one township. Shortly after the Conquest, Hugh Fitz Norman gave his share of “Gostrey” to the Abbey of St. Werburgh. A Manor House was built by the Abbey, about the middle of the thirteenth century, within Barnshaw, and a licence was granted to have divine service celebrated in the same for ever, “saving the indemnity of the Mother Church of Santbache, and of the Chapels of the same,” apparently the Chapels of Hulme and Gostrey.

² The latter Chapel was made Parochial in 1350, but all oblations for funerals are reserved to the Church at Sandbach. The Vicar is still the Patron, although, in 1705, Robert Johnson, then Incumbent, stated that the Inhabitants of the Chapelry claimed a coequal right of Donation with the Vicar, and that the Curacy was worth £5. 8s. 0d. per annum.—Notitia Paroch. vol. v. p. 1080. The present Chapel was built in the year 1792, near the site of the ancient Manor House.

³ There are two Halls. The old Hall, the property of Mr. Glegg of Old Withington, descended through the Baskervyles from the Kinseys, who had married the heiress of Goostrey, is now a farm house. The other belongs to Mr. Kinsey of Knutsford, also descended from the Goostreys. It is a half timbered mansion with gables, contains many family paintings, and is kept up with great neatness, though at present occupied by a tenant.

This was anciently and properly called Hulme, though now generally called Holmes Chapel. In the reign of Edward II. it belonged to a family of the local name, and was held under the Barony of Halton. It passed subsequently to the Bulkeleys and Cottons. It was afterwards the property of the Needhams of Cranage, and was purchased, in 1760, from Lord Kilmorey, their representative, in trust, for Thomas Bayley Hall of Hermitage Esq. a name deservedly memorable in the charitable annals of Manchester. See a Memoir of the Rev. John Hulse, by the Rev Richard Parkinson B.D. Canon of Manchester, p. xxi. 8vo. 1838.

Towns. The Parish consists of 2 small Villages, Swettenham⁴ and Kar-Halls. ingham,⁵ where are two Halls.

² The mesne Lords after the Conquest assumed the local name, and Peter de Swettenham was living here in the time of Henry III. Having lost the Manor and Advowson, they were again purchased from the Davenports of Davenport, on whom all the Cheshire estates of Thomas de Swettenham were settled, 24th Henry VI. The male line of Swettenham continued here until the year 1793, when on the death of Thomas Swettenham Esq. (who had assumed the name of Willis, and was Sheriff of Cheshire in 1784) the Manor and Advowson passed to a distant collateral female line of the family, now represented by Millington Eaton Swettenham Esq.

This parish appears to have been taken out of Astbury.

³ The Davenports were Patrons in their own right, and, probably also, during the minorities of the Swettenhams. Lysons states that the Manor and Advowson were conveyed to the Davenports by marriage of Joan, daughter and heiress of Thomas de Swettenham, in the sixteenth century; but that before the year 1620, the male heir of the Swettenhams had re-purchased them. This statement is not borne out by Ormerod's pedigree of the Swettenhams, nor by his other notices of the family, although he shows, by Inquisitions from the 2d Henry VIII. to the 41st Elizabeth, that the Manor and Advowson were vested in the Davenports, and were sold by them in 1671, to Thomas Swettenham of Swettenham Esq.

⁵ Kermincham Hall is a large ruinous building of brick, situated within a small Park, enclosed with a brick wall. The estate was purchased by Ralph Mainwaring, third son of Randle Mainwaring of Over Peover Esq. in the time of Henry VI. On the death of Peter Mainwaring M.D. in 1785, the property passed, by settlement, to Sir Henry Mainwaring of Peover, who dying s. p. in 1797, it became vested in the female line, and one of the representatives of the family assumed the name of Mainwaring, in 1809.

Elizabeth Trussell, daughter of Edward, and sister and co-heiress of John Trussell, in the time of Henry VII. married, and conveyed the estates of her family to, John Vere, fifteenth Earl of Oxford, and Chancellor of England, whose grandson, anno 22d Elizabeth, sold them to Sir Christopher Hatton, whose representative re-sold the same to Sir Randolph Crewe. Whitegate was made a Parish, distinct from Over, 33d Henry VIII. The Church stood near the gate of the Monastery of Vale Royal, and had been made parochial by the authority of the Pope's Bull, at an early period, for the convenience of the inhabitants of the demesne of the Abbey. After the Reformation, the Vicar of Over disputed its claim to parochial rights, and on a petition to Parliament by the inhabitants and tenants, Whitegate was constituted a Parish distinct from Over, and freed from all demands of the latter Church and Parish.

Some of the Incumbents have been licensed as Perpetual Curates only, but latterly as Vicars.

The Living is an augmented Vicarage, not in charge.

³ Vale Royal was purchased in 1616 by Mary, (Holford,) Lady Cholmondeley, widow of Sir Hugh Cholmondeley, which, with other very considerable estates, she settled upon her fourth son, Thomas Cholmondeley Esq. the direct ancestor of the present noble owner.

Much of the present house was built by the Holcrofts, in the time of Queen Elizabeth, and owing to the judicious alterations of Lord Delamere, an uniformity of style still prevails. From its extent of front, the house possesses a dignity peculiarly striking, and which amply compensates for the lowness of the elevation. There is a beautiful view of the Hall in Ormerod's History of Cheshire.

⁶ Knight's Grange, granted at the Dissolution to Hugh Starkie of Oulton Esq. and from about the time of James I, the property of the Cholmondeley family.

In the reign of Edward III. Over Alderley was brought by an heiress of the Arderne family to the Weevers, whose heiress, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Weever Knt. married Sir John Stanley, younger brother of the first and renowned Earl of Derby.

Thomas Stanley Esq. the lineal descendant of this Sir John Stanley, was created a Baronet June 25th, 1660, and was the immediate ancestor of the present manerial proprietor, the Right Honourable John Thomas Stanley, F.R.S. F.S.A. created Baron Stanley of Alderley May 9th, 1839.

⁶ Nether Alderley and the Advowson, which had been vested in the Stanleys of Holt, were confiscated on the attainder of Sir William Stanley, in the reign of Henry VII. Henry VIII. granted them to William Brereton Esq. Groom of the Chamber to Queen Anne Boleyn, who was soon after beheaded for supposed criminality with his unhappy Mistress. They were at length sold, with other estates, to Robert Tatton of Withenshaw Esq. and Sir Edward Fitton of Gawsworth Knt. the latter of whom sold the Manor and Advowson for £2000 to Sir Thomas Stanley of Alderley Park, and thus the two Manors became, and continue, united.

⁶ The Parks, or Park House, has been the residence of the Stanley family since 1779, when the antient Hall was destroyed by fire. The Park is celebrated for its extraordinary Beech trees, which were planted in 1640 by Sir Thomas Stanley, the first Baronet. The largest tree contains 192 feet of timber in the boll, and 128 feet

The family became extinct in 1703. The property belongs to Lord Stanley of Alderley.

⁸ Fallows Hall was the antient seat of the Le Falwitz family from the time of King John, until the marriage of William Fallows Esq. with the heiress of the Heywoods above named, when his paternal seat was sold, in 1697, to Thomas Parker of Astle Esq.

⁹ In a letter addressed to Bishop Gastrell by the Rev. Charles Henchman M.A. (Prebendary of Chester, and grandson of the Bishop of London of that name,) dated Chester, January 14th, 1718, he says ;—"I found at Alderley that the Schoolmaster had not given in, at the Visitation, an account of what belongs to that School, and therefore I here send it to your Lordship : viz.—

"£100 given by Mr. Dean, the Interest for ever to the Schoolmaster, who is to teach, without pay, the Children of the owners of that estate of which Mr. Dean was possessed, and the Children of any person within Alderley parish, that is not worth £100 in goods, &c.

"There is a good School-house built of free stone, partly in the Church-yard, and partly in a neighbouring close, the door of it opening into the Church-yard ; it is below a room to teach in, and above a room for the Master to lodge in."

Such was the information relating to the endowed Schools of the Diocese, and such the correct method of obtaining it, on the part of this admirable Prelate, who appears to have given in the Notitia rather the substance than the copious details of his various correspondents.

An.[no] 1 Edw. 3, the Estate of Roger de Chedle³ being divided among his Daughters, as Coheirs, Agnes, (who was married to Rich. de Bulkley,) had y^e cap. messuage, and Advowson of this Church. MS. St.

This Parsonage was let, an.[no] 6. Edw. 6. by Tho. Bulkeley,

² The Advowson is now in the family of Sir John Delves Broughton Bart.

³ The Manor belonged to a family of the local name in the twelfth century. Geoffrey de Dutton having married the heiress assumed the name of Chedle. His grandson, Roger de Chedle, had two daughters and coheirresses, Clemence, who married Ralph Baguley of Clifton, and conveyed to him the moiety of the vill now called CHEADLE HULME, or CHEADLE MOSELEY; and Agnes, who married Richard, second son of Robert Bulkeley of Eaton, a younger brother of the family of Bulkeley of Bulkeley in Broxton Hundred. She brought to her husband the Hall, Advowson, and that moiety of the Manor called CHEADLE BULKELEY. This moiety continued more than three centuries in the Bulkeley family, who were settled at Cheadle and at Whatercroft in Davenham. The elder branch of the house removed to the Isle of Anglesea, about the year 1500, whilst a younger branch continued here a century later. The Manor continued vested in the family of the Lords Viscount Bulkley until the middle of the last century.

His collateral representative, Sir Edward Moseley of Hulme in the county of Lancaster, left issue a sole daughter, Anne, wife of Sir John Bland of Kippax Park in the county of York Knt. who alienated the estate about the middle of the last century to the Davenports of Bramhall, from whom it passed to the Bamfords of Bamford Hall in the county of Lancaster, by marriage, and is now vested in their representative, Lloyd Bamford Hesketh Esq.

² The Manor was possessed in marriage with Isabel, daughter and heiress of Thomas Orreby of Gawsworth, by Thomas Fitton, a younger brother of the house of Bollin, who died 20th Richard II. On the death of his descendant, Sir Edward Fitton, the second Baronet, in 1643, Gawsworth passed to his nephew, Charles Gerard, first Earl of Macclesfield. From the second Earl, of the same name, Gawsworth passed to Lady Mohun, daughter and heiress of his sister, Charlotte, wife of Mr. — Mainwaring. Having been purchased by the Honourable William Stanhope, it has descended to its present proprietor, the Earl of Harrington, who is also Patron of the Living.

³ The old Hall stands West of the Church, and is built of timber and plaster, three sides of the original quadrangle remaining. — See p. 211, Note. The modern Hall, occasionally the residence of Lord Harrington, is a large plain building of brick, erected by Lord Mohun, who having a law suit with James, Duke of Hamilton, respecting the Will of Charles, second Earl of Macclesfield, an unhappy personal quarrel ensued, which terminated in a duel, wherein both lost their lives, 15th November, 1712. — Burke's Dormant and Extinct Peerage, p. 220. Dean Swift, in his History of the Four last Years of Queen Anne, (published in 1758,) gives a more detailed account of this transaction. He says that the Duke of Hamilton was preparing for his journey as Ambassador to France, when he was challenged to a duel by the Lord Mohun, a person of infamous character. He killed his adversary upon the spot, though he himself received a wound; and weakened by the loss of blood, as he was leaning in the arms of his second, was most barbarously stabbed in the breast by Lieutenant General Macartney, who was second to Lord Mohun. He died a few minutes after in the field, and the murderer made his escape. p. 336. Burnet gives a somewhat different version of this disgraceful affair. — Hist. of his Own Times. vol. vi. p. 145. 12mo. 1753. — See, also, Swift's Journal, Nov. 15th, 1712, and Noble's Contin. of Grainger's Biogr. Hist. vol. ii. p. 55.

⁴ Charles, Lord Mohun, son of Warwick, Lord Mohun, by Philippa, daughter of Arthur, Earl of Anglesey. He married the niece of Charles, Earl of Macclesfield, who dying at Hanover, Nov. 4th, 1701, without issue, left him a considerable estate, to the injury of the Duke of Hamilton, who had married the heir-general of the Macclesfield family.

² There is almost a complete series of very valuable charters given by Mr. Ormerod, relating to Mobberley Priory, which were unknown to Sir Peter Leycester, and which have thrown much light upon the origin of this foundation, and the families connected with it.

⁴ In the year 1206, Patrick de Mobberley founded here a small Augustine Priory, and endowed it with half the Rectory, the other half being afterwards granted to the Priory by William de Mobberley. Sir Gilbert de Barton, Lord of Mobberley, granted his entire demesne of Mobberley, and the Advowson of the Priory, to the Canons of St. Mary's Priory at Roucester. This was between 1228 and 1240. ¹ Dedicated to St. Michael. Value in 1834, £219. Registers begin in 1562.

² Bishop Gastrell here styles the Living a Rectory not in charge, and afterwards calls it a Curacy. The Incumbents have been regularly collated as Vicars.

⁴ The family of De Burgh held this Manor at an early period under the Earls of Chester. It was granted 11th Edward II. by Thomas de Burgh to Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, who was attainted and beheaded 15th Edward II. and it is supposed that the Manor was subsequently granted by the Crown, as the price of his treachery to the Earl of Lancaster, to Sir Robert, afterwards Lord Holland. It continued in the Hollands and their representatives, the Lovells, until the attainder of Francis, Lord Lovell, in 1486. It was granted by Henry VII. to Sir William Stanley of Holt, and in 1495 reverted to the Crown, for the third time, by attainder for High Treason.

It was subsequently granted to the Wilbrahams of Woodhey, and passed from that family, by marriage, to its present representative, John Tollemache Esq. M.P.

⁵ In the South Chancel are still remaining the recumbent figures of Ralph Staley of Staley and his wife, on an altar tomb. The man is in a complete suit of plate armour. The Earl of Stamford and Warrington is the Lord of the Manor of Staley, which has descended to his Lordship through the Ashetons of Asheton-under-Lyne, Thomas, son and heir of John de Asheton, having, before 10th Edward IV. married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Ralph Staveley or Staley.

These figures are still called by the country people, “Roe and his wife,” Roe being the local pronunciation of Ralph.

⁶ Hollingworth Hall, a large and handsome mansion in the Tudor style of architecture, was the seat of the Hollingworths from the reign of King John to 1734, when it was sold by Jacob Hollingworth; but has been recently repurchased, and is now occupied by Robert de Hollingworth Esq. the descendant of its Norman proprietors. There is a private Chancel in the Church belonging to this house.

⁷ Newton Hall was sold in 1692, by Alexander Newton to Sir Charles Duckenfield Bart.

⁸ Stayley Hall, called by Webb, in 1621, "a fine old Manor belonging to Sir George Booth," is an ancient stone building, occupied by a farmer. A view of it is given in Dr. Aikin's Manchester. There is a private Chapel in Mottram Church, annexed to this tenement.

⁹ Bottoms Hall, the Manor House of Hattersley, passed by marriage through the Hattersleys, Stockports, and Carringtons, to the Booths, and now belongs to the Earl of Stamford and Warrington. It is a farm house.

¹⁰ Old Hall, (anciently Nether Hall,) for several centuries the seat of a collateral line of the Hollingworths of Hollingworth.

¹² The whole Parish was called, anciently, the Lordship of Tintwisle, the T'engest-visle of Domesday.

¹³ A very faithful description of the country as it exists after the lapse of more than a century, and proves that Gastrell had visited this desolate portion of his vast Diocese. There is now, however, in addition to the "hills and moors," a teeming and uncivilized population, the almost inevitable result of the parish being filled with manufactories. The evils consequent on such a change have been met, as far as human means can meet them, by an increased number of Churches, and the introduction of an improved system of popular education.

Sir Edmund was brother of Dr. Shaa, who preached at Paul's Cross to prove the illegitimacy of the children of Edward IV.

² The Chapel was rebuilt about a century since, and is a very humble and primitive structure, in a sterile neighbourhood, amongst moors "immeasurably long."

It is a Perpetual Curacy in the gift of the Bishop of Chester.

In 1655 the Chapel was returned to the Parliamentary Commissioners as being six miles from the mother Church, and no means belonging to it.—Lamb. MSS. vol. iii.

³ At Domesday Survey, "Norwordine" was divided between Ranulfus and Bigot. Ranulfus gave his moiety to the Barons of Dunham Massy, by whom it was conferred, with the Advowson of the Church, on Chester Abbey, which claimed view of Frank pledge here 33d Edward III.

⁴ At the Dissolution, the Abbey possessions here were granted to the Dean and Chapter of Chester, but were lost through the extortions and treachery of Sir Richard Cotton and the Earl of Leicester, the Advowson alone being retained.

The Manor of Northenden has descended from Robert Tatton Esq. who died in June, 1579, to the present proprietor, Thomas William Tatton of Withenshaw Esq.

⁵ There are numerous monuments in the Withenshaw Chancel, which is separated from the Church by a parclose, to the memory of the Egertons and Tattons.

The Saxon characters here referred to are those commonly called Longobardic.

⁹ Withenshaw Hall has been much improved, altered, and enlarged, of late years, but some of the antient parts remain. In 1643-4 the house stood a long siege, but was eventually taken by the Parliament, Colonel Duckenfield bringing two pieces of ordnance against it, from Manchester.

² Prestbury appears to have been a place of considerable importance in Saxon times, and, probably, the whole of Hameston Hundred was divided into two great parishes, Stockport and Prestbury. The silence of Domesday respecting a Church at the latter place, can only be accounted for by supposing that it had been destroyed by the ravages of the Invaders.

Shortly after the Conquest, the Manor and Church were conveyed by Hugh, Earl of Chester, to Chester Abbey, and were enjoyed by that house to its dissolution. A Vicarage was ordained in this Church in 1274.—Ormerod's Chesh.

Chaplain to perform mass and other divine offices in their presence, in any of their manor houses within his Diocese; whereupon the said Robert and Isabel built a Chapel at Adlington, which is considered domestic, and the Chaplain appointed by Mr. Legh.—Ormerod's Cheshire.

The Chapel was never dedicated, and there is now no Minister. The Hall was rebuilt about 1780.

² "Pretended" is here used in the sense of claimed. It is still considered a private Chapel by the owner, Sir Robert W. Clayton Bart.—Inf. Rev. H. Pearson, Vic. of Prestbury.

Adlington was the seat of the Legh family, in the male line, from the 9th of Edward III. until the death of Charles Lee Esq. in 1781. It was entailed in the year 1336 on John Legh and Ellen his wife, daughter of William de Baguley, and grand-daughter and heiress of Thomas de Corona of Adlington.

This Manor long continued an appendage to the Barony of Montalt, and, passing to the Crown, was granted to the Stanleys, Earls of Derby. It was sold about the year 1597 by James, Earl of Derby, to Sir Edward Fitton of Gawsworth, who died in 1625. It has subsequently passed by the same title with Gawsworth to the Earl of Harrington, the present manorial owner.

² This inscription was formerly (viz. 1604) in a window of the Church, and probably Regge is meant for Leghe, or the mutilated record may have been intended for John Leghe of Regge or Ridge.

The Tower of the Church is very ancient, but the nave was rebuilt in 1777. All the old evidences have been lost or destroyed. — Inf. Rev. W. Sutcliffe, Incumb.

¹ Dedicated to the Holy Trinity. Value in 1834, £76. Registers begin in 1722.

The Wards are descended from John le Warde, living in 1386, who married Sarah, daughter and heiress of Ranulphus de Capusterne. About the time of Queen Elizabeth, John Ward of Capesthorn sold the Manor to his collateral kinsman, John Ward of Monksheath in Alderley, who died in 1623, great grandfather of John Ward Esq. of the Inner Temple, who built and endowed the Chapel here, and died in 1748. He left issue a daughter and heiress, who married Davies Davenport of Woodford Esq.

Of this family, descended from a collateral branch seated in Ireland, about the year 1580, are the Wards, Viscounts Bangor and Barons Bangor, of Castle Ward in the county of Down.

This place is seated high among the hills to the right of the road from Macclesfield to Buxton. The Chapel is a low, long, building of grey stone, fitted up with oak benches. The Earl of Derby is Patron. The Earl is also hereditary Steward and Master Forester of the Forest of Macclesfield, which offices were conferred on his Lordship's ancestor, Thomas, Lord Stanley, in 1461. — Harl. MSS. No. 2115.

¹ Dedicated to St. Michael. Value in 1834, £214. The Registers begin in 1572.

Mr. Ormerod observes that the account in Domesday exhibits an interesting picture of the state of Macclesfield before and after the Conquest. It had been one of the seats of Earl Edwin, where a Court had been kept for the Hundred of Hamestan, and to which the third penny of the Hundred was paid. The mill appropriated to the use of the Court was remaining, with the pasture for kine, which probably stretched along the bank of the Bollin, and there was wood-land six miles in length and four in breadth, contiguous to the Forest hills, and containing six inclosures for taking the deer and wild goats; but the ravages of the Invaders had reduced the value of the Manor from viii^l to xx^s; and in these ravages the ancient Church of "Macclesfield" appears to have perished, and is consequently unnoticed.

Macclesfield was soon restored to its ancient consequence; it was retained in demesne by the Norman Earl, and had its Church rebuilt and the town fortified.

Savage's Chappell.² S^r Pet. Legh's Chappell,³ in w^{ch}, on a brasse

The Manor passed, with the local Earldom, to the Crown, and continues vested in it.

The Church was founded by Eleanor, Queen of King Edward I. about the year 1278, and was decreed by the King to be subject to the Mother Church of Prestbury, which it still continues to be.

The nave, with its aisles and galleries, was rebuilt in the year 1739, which will account for the unprecedented circumstance of the Chancel having been placed at the end of the south aisle, and the north aisle at the end of the central aisle of the nave! These ecclesiastical irregularities were, however, removed in 1819, when the Chancel and east end of the Church were rebuilt.

² This Chapel was built by Thomas Savage, who was consecrated Archbishop of York in 1501, younger Son of Sir John Savage, of Macclesfield Park and Clifton, by Catherine Stanley. He died at Cawood, September 2d, 1507, and his body was buried at York "and his heart at Maxfield, where he built a Chapel at the side of Maxfield Church." In this Chapel, now the property of the Marquess of Cholmondeley, over the sepulchral brass of Roger Leghe, who died in 1506, is a representation in y^e Wall, is an Inscript.[ion] in memory of Perkin à Legh, who had Lyme given him for his services at y^e Battle of Cressy, and of S^r Pears his son, who was killed at y^e Battle of Agencourt.

The Inscript.[ion] was taken from a Stone in y^e Chap.[el] and placed here by S^r Pet. Legh, an.[no] 1620. MS. Hulm. 95. l. 16. f. 12.

of the literal Transubstantiation of the Wafer into the body of Christ, said to have been effected by the prayers of Pope Gregory the Great, in order to remove the disbelief of a Roman Matron in Transubstantiation. A similar design has recently been discovered, painted in fresco, on the wall of Beverstone Church, in the county of Gloucester.—See Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries, London, 1844, No. 3, p. 55.

³ The Lyme Chapel is in the South Chancel of the Church. This common error relative to Perkin à Legh has been clearly disposed of by Mr. Ormerod, who proves that Lyme was granted to Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Danyers of Cheshire Knt. a gallant soldier, who, in the most hazardous part of the Battle of Cressy, rescued the Banner of the Black Prince from Tankerville, Chamberlain of France, and took him prisoner. Sir Piers Legh was her third husband, to whom she was married in 1388, 12th year of Richard II; and "Lands in Hanley, in Macclesfield Forest," now called Lyme, were granted in the 22d year of Richard II. to the said Margaret, daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Danyers, in lieu of a pension of 40 marks per annum, which had been settled on her father. This ancient and distinguished family can well afford to part with the popular tradition, and to receive, through a female, the honour of their ancestor's devoted loyalty and bravery.

⁴ 37 Hen. V. probably an error for 37th Henry VIII.

VIII. it appears that he held in demesne as of fee the Manor and vill of Newton, with the water mill, fulling mill, and CHAPEL therein, from Robert Hyde Esq. of Norbury, as of that Manor in socage, by the tender of one pair of gloves.

The male line of the Newtons terminated early in the 17th century. The Chapel was probably considered domestic, and an appurtenant of the Manor.

No attempts have been made for the restoration of this ancient Chapel.

¹ Patron Saint unknown. Value in 1834, £140. Registers begin in 1813; they were previously entered at Prestbury.

² The Family of Shrigley were seated here at an early period, and gave the additional name to the place by which it is now commonly distinguished. Their estates are supposed to have passed, in marriage, to the Family of Downes, who purchased lands in Pott Shrigley, anno 1313, and who continued here, distinguished by rank and wealth, until the year 1819, when Edward Downes Esq. sold the estate of his Norman ancestors to Mr. William Turner of Mill Hill, near Blackburn in Lancashire.

³ Geoffrey Downes, the Founder of the Chapel, was the second son of Robert de Downes, the eighth in descent from Robert de Dounis, who lived in the time of King John. The Founder died about the 7th Henry VII. as his will is dated in that year; as this was a Chantry Chapel, the Endowments were seized by the Crown, and two Priests ejected, who, in 1566, were living upon the usual miserable

² The original foundation of this Chapel was probably in 1312, when the Abbot of Chester granted to Nicholas de Eton, and Joan his wife, that he would find a Chaplain in the Chapel of Poynton for ever, for the benefit of them and the rest of the inhabitants of Poynton.

³ In the year 1500, John Veysey L.L.D. Vicar General of John, Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, sequestered the Tithes of Poynton belonging to the Abbot of Chester, because the Abbot had not found a Chaplain according to agreement.

This Chapel was rebuilt by Sir George Warren K.B. who died in 1801, aged 67, and is called Parochial by Bishop Gastrell, without, however, possessing the right of sepulture.

In 1299 the Monks of Combermere had a Grange at Winle, which was valued at x^s per annum, the stock upon it being four times the value of the land.

An ancient Corp.[oration,] consisting of Mayor and Alderm.[en,] but no Authority.

On [the] North side of y^e Chancell [is a] Mon.[ument] of Rich. Gerard³, Parson of Stopport, B.D. Rect.[or] above 40 years, [who] died an.[no] 1614, æt. 61.

Although unnoticed in the Domesday Survey, Stockport had been a Military Station of importance from the time of the Romans to the Norman Conquest. The Parish was very considerable, and the Church had, doubtless, been destroyed by the Invaders at that epoch.

In 1173 the Castle of Stockport was held by Geoffry de Costentyn against Henry II. but it does not appear whether the Earl or Geoffry was then the possessor. It was afterwards the property of the Despensers, Earls of Winchester, and under them it was held by the Stockports, Sir Robert de Stockport occurring in a deed of the time of Richard the First, witnessed by John, as Earl of Moreton.

² Sir Richard de Stockport, his grandson, died 20th Edward I. leaving issue, two daughters and co-heiresses, Joan and Maud. Joan the elder, married, first, Sir Nicholas de Eton, and secondly, Sir John de Ardern, who had some of her lands for his life only, and others were settled upon him and his heirs. Hence, Nicholas, son of Sir Nicholas de Eton the younger, released to Sir John Ardern all his right to the Manors of Stockport, &c. and to the Advowsons of the Churches of the said Manors in 1332 and 1335.

Maud, the other co-heiress, married William de Dutton, who forcibly carried her away from the baronial residence of her Guardian, Hamon de Masey, nearly in a state of nudity, and was indicted for the offence in the 35th Edward I.

These monuments exist no longer, but have been preserved in the Harl. MSS. 2151, thus depriving the following just and eloquent remarks of Bishop Horne of some of their terseness: “To save the opulent from oblivion, the sculptor unites his labours with the scholar or the poet, whilst the rustic is indebted for his mite of posthumous renown to the carpenter, the painter, or the mason. The structures of fame are, in both cases, built with materials whose duration is short. It may check the sallies of pride to reflect on the mortality of man; but for its complete humiliation, let it be remembered that epitaphs and monuments decay.”

From this period the Manor descended in the family of Warren of Poynton, in the male line, until the death of Sir Geo. Warren in 1801. See p. 296, Note 4.

The present Church of Stockport, in the gift of Lord Vernon, was rebuilt under an Act of Parliament, passed in the 50th George III. and is a sumptuous fabric in the florid style of architecture, having displaced an ancient building erected about the fourteenth century.

On the next avoidance of the Rectory of Stockport, the Parish will be divided, under an Act passed in the 58th George III. c. 45. s. 16. and two separate Rectories constituted.

A Lending Library was founded here in 1843, by the Associates of the Rev. Dr. Bray.

Nothing appears to be known of the early history of the Church, but a Chantry existed in it at the Dissolution, endowed with lands and tenements, which being wrested from it, led to the evils so vividly stated by Gastrell.

³ About 1746, this long ruined and abandoned Chapel was rebuilt by subscription, and Serjeant Bretland's gift is now paid by Mr. Tatton of Withenshaw, whose ancestor bought the lands so charged. The Rector of Stockport nominates the Curate. Aikin describes the Chapel as being in a most romantic and sequestered situation, surrounded by wood and rich pasture, delightfully varied by the river Mersey.

⁴ About 1660, Mr. Jones "exercised his ministry with good encouragement at Chadkirk near Marple."—Calamy, vol. i. p. 340.

¹ Dedicated to the Virgin Mary. Value in 1834, £117. Registers begin in 1591.

There was an ancient Chantry at "Dystley Deyn," noticed in the General Ecclesiastical Survey, 26th Henry VIII. and endowed with lands and tenements, then worth £4 a year.

In 1548, "one White Chales, and a ringe of iiij. bells at Dysley," were claimed by Sir Piers Leigh Knt. as his own, against the King's Commissioners.—Appendix, No. iii. Ormerod.

² The present Church, rebuilt in 1558, has been greatly beautified and improved during the last few years; and is exceedingly neat and well arranged. Mr. Legh of Lyme nominates the Curate.

About a mile from the village of Disley is Lyme Park, the beautiful seat of Thomas Legh Esq. The hall is a magnificent quadrangular mansion, originally erected in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, although the south and west fronts were designed in 1726, by Giacomo Leoni, in the Palladian style. The exquisite taste of the present Mr. Legh has led him to make great improvements in the architecture, under the direction of Mr. Lewis Wyatt. The fine collection of portraits; the curious and elaborate antient furniture; the admirable carvings by Grinlin Gibbons; and the glorious oriels—"rich with heraldry's bright hues imprest"—all conspire to render this the most interesting antiquarian house in the county. The domestic Chapel is situated in the north east angle of the hall.

Sir Piers Legh, who was beheaded at Chester in 1399, for his adherence to King Richard II. was the younger son of Robert Legh of Adlington, and obtained Lyme with his wife, Margaret, the daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Danyers Knt.

¹ Dukenfield (Ang. Sax. Dokenpelbt) Hall is now divided into two farm tenements. The ancient Chapel forms one of the wings, and in the Chancel was a monument to the memory of Sir Robert Dukenfield Bart. who died in 1729. The "large tombstones," mentioned in Aikin's Manchester as "perfect" in 1795, were, if in existence in 1817, when the hall was visited by Mr. Ormerod, "concealed under litter."

The estates of this ancient family, descended from Norman ancestors, were unjustly settled, by Sir William Dukenfield Daniell Bart. who died about 1759, on his wife, after the death of his idiot daughter, to the exclusion of his own family; and, she re-marrying John Astley Esq. (son of a surgeon at Wem, in Shropshire) a distinguished portrait painter, conveyed to him twenty thousand pounds in money and an estate of five thousand pounds a year in fee. For some very curious particulars of Mr. Astley's life, see Elmes' Arts and Artists, vol. iii. pp. 252-9, 1825; and the Biog. Dict. of the Soc. for Prom. Usef. Knowl. vol. iii. p. 2, 1844.

The Chapel stands detached from the village, and was rebuilt about the year 1810. The bells of the old Church of Stockport were removed to the tower of this Church.

² The Chapel is a plain low building of brick, nearly opposite to the hall, which was built of timber and plaster, though now in ruins.

After the Act of Uniformity had passed, Mr. John Jollie, going to preach in Norbury Chapel, found the doors locked. The people, being unwilling to lose the opportunity, opened them, and he preached as usual. This made a very great noise, and some neighbouring gentlemen were so officious as to acquaint the King and Council with the matter, aggravating the business, as if the Chapel doors had been broken. Whereupon, a pursuivant was sent down, who brought up Mr. Jollie. Being brought before the King and Council, the question was, Whether Norbury Chapel, which was an inconsiderable building, in a field near Norbury hall, was a consecrated place? Mr. Jollie denied that it was, and Sir Peter Leycester's Hist. Antiq. was brought to decide the question. The Earl of Shaftesbury, upon Lord Delamere's Letter, procured him his discharge. The parish of Wilmslow was anciently called "Le Bolyn," and the greater part of it is divided into two districts or manors, called BOLLIN FEE and POWNALL FEE.

² The entire parish was originally held by the Fittons, under the Earl of Chester, but the grant by which it passed to them has escaped the Cheshire collectors, unless we suppose it to have passed under the general designation of "Falingbrome," (which was afterwards a part of the lordship of Bolyn) in the grant of that place from Hugh Kevelioc to Sir Richard Fytun.

The direct line of the Fittons terminated in an heiress, about the 42d Edward III. who married a Venables of Kinderton; and, in the 3d Henry V. Alice and Douce were found co-heiresses of Richard Venables. Between these co-heiresses, who married, respectively, Sir Edmund Trafford of Trafford, and Sir Robert Booth, of the Barton family, the Venables' estates were divided.

The Pownall Fee and Advowson of Wilmslow passed to the Traffords, in whom, after a lapse of more than four centuries, they are now vested.

The Bollin Fee, the other moiety of the original vill of Bolyn, has passed, by an heiress, to the Earl of Stamford and Warrington.

³ Dr. Ormerod says this monument "possesses considerable interest, as being the memorial of the first Cheshire male ancestor of the Booths, and of the heiress of Dunham Massey and the Bollin; and it is the only inscription now remaining in the County relating to any of the warriors who fell at Blore Heath."

⁴ Henry Trafford D.D. third son of Sir Edmund Trafford of Trafford, and his wife, Margaret, daughter of Sir John Savage of Clifton, and relict of Sir John Handford of Handford. Dr. Trafford was Rector of Wilmslow, and of Bolton Percy in the county of York, and Chancellor of York from 1528 to 1537.

² The family of Asheton were the mesne lords of, at least, a moiety of the Manor in the time of Edward III. the other moiety being afterwards vested in the Breretons of Handford, in right of the daughter and heiress of William Handford of Handford Esq. and widow of Sir John Stanley Knt. who died 5th Edward VI. The entire Manor became, subsequently, the property of the Breretons; and was sold by that family, in 1674, to Sir Joshua Allen, ancestor of Lord Viscount Allen, who sold the same to the Earl of Warrington, in 1749. It has descended, from that period, to the present Earl of Stamford, now a minor.

The Advowson of the Rectory was settled in 1684, by Richard Mascie of Sale, on six younger daughters and their issue. In 1689 three parts had passed to Katherine the eldest daughter, by the death of her three younger sisters; and the two other shares passed, by devise, to Robert Malyn of Nottingham M.D. husband of the said Katherine Massey, after her death. Five shares out of six thus became finally vested in the two daughters and co-heiresses of Robert and Katherine Malyn, whose husbands, Walter Noble of Lichfield Esq. and Peter Mainwaring of Manchester M.D. purchased the remaining sixth in 1737, from Thomas Ellison, clerk, of Chorley, son of Amy Massey, the other coheir.

From the Rev. R. P. Johnson, the late Rector, the Advowson passed, by purchase, to the present Incumbent, the Rev. C. B. Sowerby.

⁵ Sale Hall, the residence of the Mascie family from a very early period. Dugdale allowed that this family descended from Robert de Masci, second brother of Hamo de Masci, Baron of Dunham, in the time of King John. In a large collection of deeds in my possession relating to this family, it appears by a deed of partition between Richard de Masci of Sale, William de Boydell, Robert de Masci of Alfurton, and William de , dated at Godelegh in Londendale, on the Wednesday next after the feast of St. Peter and St. Paul the Apostles, the 1st Richard I. (A.D. 1189) that the Manors of Godelegh and Newton are jointly vested in these parties; and it is agreed that Richard de Masci of Sale shall have a moiety of the said lands, woods, and tenements belonging to the said Manors, and that the other moiety shall be divided between the other three individuals named. The deeds prove the descent of these lands in the Masci family from this period to the year 1603, when the post mortem inquisition of Richard Massie of Sale Esq. was taken. A moiety of the Manor of Sale was then held of Peter Warburton of Arley Esq. in socage; a moiety of to the Prior and Convent of Birkenhead. The other moiety had previously passed to a younger branch of the Massey family, and became sub-divided: one-half of it was sold in the reign of Henry III. by Robert de Massey, to the Bowdens of Bowden, who, in the time of Queen Elizabeth, sold lands here to the Booths of Dunham Massey. The other half of this moiety passed, by marriage, about the year 1500, with the heiress of Samuel Massey of Rixton, to the Holcrofts, who sold their interest in the same to the Breretons of Ashley, in the reign of King James I.

The whole Manor is now the property of the Earl of Stamford and Warrington.
The estate which was granted to the See of Chester out of the spoils of Birkenhead Priory, is held on lease, with the Rectory, by the Earl of Stamford, in whose family it has been held, under the see, since the time of James I.

Sir Peter Leycester says, in 1666, "the Vicarage of Bodon is said to be worth £120 per annum. Our common proverb is, 'Every man is not born to be Vicar of Bodon.' The true reason of the proverb I cannot affirm." Without the exercise of much ingenuity, a satisfactory reason might be rendered for the origin of the proverb, which appears to have lost none of its force by the lapse of time.

⁴ Dunham Massey is the seat of the Earl of Stamford and Warrington, descended from the Masseys and Fittons, the Norman Barons of Dunham. The feudal CASTLE held by Hamo de Masci against King Henry II. in 1173, has entirely disappeared.
The house, as it existed at the beginning of the last century, surrounded by a moat, was a large quadrangular pile, finished with gables within and without, but altered at various times. An engraving of the present house is given in Aikin's Manchester.

⁶ Ashley Hall still retains an air of respectable antiquity. In the reign of Henry VIII. the daughter and heiress of George Ashley Esq. brought this inheritance to Richard Brereton, younger son of Sir William Brereton of Brereton, in marriage; and it passed, with the co-heiress of William Brereton Esq. about the middle of the seventeenth century, to Ralph Asheton Esq. of Kirkby, in the county of York, younger son of Sir Richard Asheton of Middleton; and the Manor is now the property of his representative, W. H. Assheton Smith Esq.

So that the School was founded by Janny, and is not a Grammar School. The Robert Vaudray mentioned above, was one of the executors, and this has, probably, led to his being called the Founder, along with the fact of his having made "a suffycient assuraunce."

Janny, the testator, had "an Advowson and lease of y^e Vicarage of Bowden" for a term of years; this he also devised to Robert Vaudrey, which family held it for several years, and one or more of that name became Vicar. This also may have been another reason of the statement concerning the School.

This School was founded by John Dean, Rect.[or] of Great St Bartholomew's, near Westminster.

⁸ Arley Park, the chief residence of the Warburtons for upwards of three centuries, was built by Piers Warburton Esq. who died in 1495. The house was of wood and plaster, surrounded by a moat, and included a domestic Chapel. A new house is now in course of erection, in the Tudor style. The Chapel, dedicated to St. Mary, from the exquisite design of Mr. Salvin, was opened for divine service, by licence from the Bishop of Chester, on Monday, September 8th, 1845, when the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered; and the alms collected at the Offertory were given in aid of the Missonary College established at Canterbury, by his Grace the Lord Primate. The foundation stone of the Chapel was laid by R. E. Egerton Warburton Esq. in 1842. It is in the decorated style, and consists of a spacious Chancel and Nave, the latter communicating with the mansion by means of a cloistral gallery. The whole is singularly correct, costly, and beautiful.—The Ecclesiastical. vol. i. p. 142.

¹⁰ Bradley Hall, formerly the residence of the family of Gregge, in whom the estate became vested about the time of Henry VII. It passed, with an heiress of the Gregges, to William Brock of Upton Esq. in 1677, whose daughter Elizabeth became the wife of John Egerton of Oulton Esq. Sir J. G. Egerton Bart. grandson of Elizabeth Brock, sold the estate to Richard Wilson of Lymme Esq. in 1800, from whom it was bought by his brother in law, William Fox of Statham Lodge Esq. father of the Rev. William Fox of Girsby house, in the county of Lincoln, who died the 2d February, 1845.

The whole of Bradley belongs to the family of Mr. Fox.

² In the Shakerley Aisle, or Hulme Chancel, is the monument of Sir Geoffrey Shakerley of Shakerley and Holme Knt. of Gray's Inn, 1640, M.P. for Wigan, an eminent loyalist, who was frequently imprisoned during the Usurpation, and compounded with the Parliament for his estate for £784. He was appointed by Charles II. Governor of Chester Castle, and died in 1696, aged 78. He left, by will, £10 to the poor of this place, which is now lost; and also £10 to the poor of Middlewich, which has shared a better fate. Mr. Pennant, in his Tour through Wales, (Appendix, vol. i. p. 482. 4to.) relates that so expeditious and zealous was Sir Geoffrey Shakerley in conveying a message from Sir Marmaduke Langdale at Rowton Heath to Charles I. then in Chester, that he ferried himself over the river Dee in a wooden tub, with a batting staff for an oar. And it is added, that he engaged to convey any orders from his Majesty to Sir Marmaduke in a quarter of an hour; but, owing to delays occasioned by some of the King's attendants, several hours passed before the orders were sent; Poyntz rallied his forces, and the disastrous event of Rowton Heath took place.

Calamy records that Mr. John Gartside, in 1669, was pulled out of the pulpit of Borsley Chapel, (see p. 198,) by Sir Geoffrey Shakerley, and the next day carried to Chester and imprisoned. Vol. i. p. 346.

³ Holford Hall appears to have consisted of three parts of a quadrangle only, the fourth having been apparently formed by a part of the moat and the bridge. Two sides of the quadrangle only remain. The materials of which it is built are timber and plaster.

The Holfords were descended from Roger de Holford, son and heir of William Toft, son of Roger de Toft, Lord of Toft. This Roger lived in 1316, and assumed the name of Holford from his place of residence. His descendant, Christopher Holford Esq. died on the 27th of January, 1581, leaving a sole daughter and heiress, who married Sir Hugh Cholmondeley of Cholmondeley ; and after forty years of litigation, the Holford estates were divided between this lady and her uncle, George Holford of Newborough in Dutton, the Lady Cholmondeley having the demesne lands and the Manor house of Holford, which she rebuilt, and where she died in 1625, aged 63. King James termed her THE BOLD LADIE OF CHESHIRE.

The Holford Hall estate is now the property of Mr. Brooke of Mere.

¹ The history of this distinguished family has been written by its most illustrious member, from original evidences, and the most copious and important domestic records; and, probably, few houses had ever greater reason to feel more satisfied with the exact use which has been made of their archives. The Leycesters are descended from Sir Nicholas Leycester, Seneschal of Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln. He married Margaret, daughter of Geoffrey de Dutton, ancestor of Warburton of Arley, about the year 1276, 5th Edward I. with whom he obtained the township of Nether Tabley. Sir Peter Leycester, the historian, was the fourteenth in male descent from this marriage; and the male line of the Leycesters terminated in the third Baronet, in 1742, who left issue, a daughter, married in 1728, to Sir John Byrne of Timogue, in Ireland, Bart. whose eldest son assumed the name of Leicester in 1744, and was grandfather of George Warren, second Baron de Tabley, the present representative of the Leicester family.

Over the door is the date 1675, pointing to the historian of Bucklow Hundred as its rebuilder, who laid the first stone on the 29th June, 1675, although it was not completed until 1679, the year in which he died. MS. at Tabley, quoted in Lysons' Cheshire: See p. 19. note 4. It is supposed that the Chapel was never dedicated to a Patron Saint, and, therefore, not consecrated, being a domestic Chapel, built for the use of the Touchet family, and always considered to be private, until augmented by Queen Anne's Bounty.—*Information of Sir John Chetwode, obtained by Rev. ³ From Domesday the Manor of Witton passed in the Vernon family, as parcel of the Barony of Kinderton, until it was sold in 1757, by Lord Vernon, to Sir Peter Leicester of Tabley Bart. ancestor of the Lord de Tabley.

The Parochial Chapel of Witton consists of a tower, embattled, containing six bells; a nave, chancel, and aisles, with a small chancel at the end of the south aisle.

The roofs of the Church are of oak, richly carved, and bearing the dates 1686–8.

The Church appears to have been nearly rebuilt about the year 1560.

The patronage of the Curacy has been lately sold by Lord de Tabley to the Rev. Richard Greenall M.A. the present Incumbent of Witton, alias Northwich.

Dr. Ducarel confounds this chapelry with Whitley Chapel, in the parish of Great Budworth, but records nothing of interest respecting either.

In the mean time the execut^{rs} of Mr. Fishwyck have found amongst his books a paper, suppos'd to be that on which he was licenced to Northwych, of which I here send your Lordship a copy, which I compar'd with the original, and found it exact. On the outside of the original was written, in Mr. Fishwick's hand, A certificate, &c. as your Lordship will see upon the copy, which I thought proper to be laid before your Lordship, and which the inhabitants of the Chapelrie desir'd me to send to you. I find I was misinformed as to the interest money belonging to the Preacher at Northwych. I sent your lordship word it amounted to sixteen pounds p. ann. and they have had money enough left them to have answered that ; but they have lost so much that now they have but about eight score pounds principal left. I shall wait your Lordship's further orders in relation to Northwych Chapel."

⁶ Sir John Dean, Prebendary of Lincoln, and Rector of St. Bartholomew the Great, in London, founded this School in 1558, (according to Lysons and Ormerod,) and endowed it with lands in the Hundred of Wirral, and houses in Chester, described as late parcel of the possessions of the Monastery of St. Anne, in that city.

He died the 9th Elizabeth, and his niece Alicia, daughter of his brother Richard, was his heir.

The Founder directs in his statutes, "that upon Thursdaies and Saturdaies in the afternoon, and upon holy daies, the schollars do refresh themselves ; and that a weke before Christmas and Easter, (according to the old custome,) they barre and keepe forthe of the schole the schole-master, in soch sorte as other schollars do in great schooles. And that as well in the vacations as the other dayes aforesayd they use their bowes and arrowes onely, and eschewe all bowleinge, cardinge, dyceinge, quiteinge, and all other unlawfull games."—Quoted by Ormerod from *Bibl. I had my bows bought me according to my age and strength: as I increased in them, so my bows were made bigger and bigger; for men shall never shoot well, except they be brought up in it: it is a goodly art, a wholesome kind of exercise, and much commended in physic." ¹ Dedicated to St. Lawrence. Value in 1834, £590. Registers begin in 1558.

² On the extinction of the Earldom of Chester, this Manor became vested in the Crown, and was granted for life by Edward I. as Earl of Chester, to David, brother of Llewellyn, King of Wales in 1279.

It was long held under the Crown by the Frodshams, who resided at Frodsham Castle, at the west end of the town, afterwards at Elton, and became extinct in the male line in 1766. The Manor, however, had been long alienated by this family, and was granted to the Savages of Clifton about the beginning of the seventeenth century. From the family of Earl Rivers this Manor passed, by marriage, to the Earl of Barrymore, and became vested in the Earl of Cholmondeley in 1786.

Hugh Lupus and Ermentrude gave the tithes of Frodsham, before 1093, to St. Werburgh's Abbey, but the Advowson of the Vicarage continued united with the Manor until the building of the Abbey of Vale Royal, when the Rectory and Vicarage were both conferred on that favoured Monastery by the Royal Founder, who gave the Chester Monks four pounds a year as a compensation for releasing their share of the tithes.

⁵ Manley Hall, like its predecessor, has been taken down, and a farm house occupies its site. It was sold by Lord Muskerry to Thomas Lowten Esq. the present proprietor.

The other moiety passed, with the coheirress of Boydell, to the family of Reddish, by partition made of all Thomas Boydell's lands, 5th Henry V. ³ The other moiety, called the Domville moiety, of the Advowson passed, by settlement, to Thomas de Legh of West Hall, from Gilbert de Lymme, his grandfather's nephew and the supposed kinsman of the Barons of Halton; whilst the moiety of the vill passed from the same Gilbert to Robert Domville, husband of Agnes Legh, grand-daughter of the said Thomas.

¹ Dedicated to St. Werburgh. Value in 1834, £249, with the second mediety of Lymme. Registers begin in 1611.

There was originally a Priory here, although Dr. Ormerod states that no account has hitherto been given of it. About the time of Henry II. Adam de Dutton gave a moiety of this township to the Canons of the Premonstratensian Order, then settled at Warburton, whose Chapel was doubtless the origin of the present Church. It is supposed to have merged in the Abbey of Cockersand, in Lancashire, about the year 1190.

The Advowson of the Church of Warburton has been vested in the Warburton family from about the middle of the thirteenth century, and it has long been usual to present to this Church along with that of Lymme, though the two Rectories are totally independent.—Ormerod's Cheshire.

The house was built in 1794, by William Egerton Esq. M.P. who died in 1806, from a design by Mr. Samuel Wyatt. Dr. Ormerod observes, that it would be difficult to name a seat where taste and comfort appear throughout more uniformly combined with chaste magnificence.

The park consists of twenty-five thousand acres of arable and pasture land, being one of the most extensive parks in the kingdom. There is a south view of the house in Dr. Aikin's Manchester.

⁶ Mere is a spacious and handsome brick mansion. The estate was bought in 1652 by Sir Peter Brooke Knt. third son of Thomas Brooke of Norton Abbey Esq. ancestors of the present owner.

⁸ East Hall, the seat of George Cornwall Legh Esq. M.P. descended from Edward de Lege, the supposed kinsman of the feudal Barons of Kinderton. The mansion, built in the time of Queen Elizabeth, was taken down in the latter part of the last century, and a spacious and substantial brick building was substituted.

¹⁴ Bexton Hall is now a farm house. It formerly belonged to the Daniell and Dukenfield families, and was sold by John Astley Esq.

¹⁶ Agden Hall is an ancient building, in a state of dilapidation. It belonged to the family of Venables, descended from Thomas Venables of Horton, in Hartford, near Northwich, a younger son of Hugh, Baron of Kinderton, living the 3d Richard II. The direct line ended in George Venables Esq. whose sole daughter and heiress, Elizabeth, married Sir Philip Touchet Chetwode of Oakley and Agden Bart.

The Manor of Nether Knutsford was held by William de Tabley, Lord of Over Tabley, and Sir Richard Massy of Tatton, in the reign of Edward I. and was divided by agreement. William de Tabley, his son, who was dead in the 14th Edward III. without leaving male issue to inherit his estates, had four daughters, his co-heiresses, amongst whom his moiety of the Manor was divided. From their descendants, this share, as well as Massy's share, was acquired in the early part of the fifteenth century by Sir Hugh Hulse, and was sold by Hugh Hulse Esq. in 1590, to Richard Brereton of Tatton Esq. from whom it passed to his kinsmen, the Egertons, and is now the property of Wilbraham Egerton of Tatton Park Esq.

² It appears, from Bishop Cartwright's journal, that the Patronage was vested in Christ Church, Oxford, as Mr. Samuel Hulme was nominated by the Dean and Chapter, and licensed by Cartwright, the 10th January, 1686-7.

³ In 1741 an Act of Parliament was obtained, constituting Knutsford a distinct parish and vicarage, independent of the mother Church of Rostherne.

The Patronage was vested, under the act, in the Lords of the Manors of Over Knutsford, Nether Knutsford, Ollerton, Toft, and Bexton, who present, alternately. Colonel Egerton, however, being Lord of the Manors of Nether Knutsford and Ollerton, has only one presentation in four.

The Church was rebuilt and consecrated in 1744, a brief having been obtained for the purpose.

In 1780 the Associates of the Rev. Dr. Bray founded here a Lending Library, as they have since done at Woodchurch, Sandbach, Stockport, and Macclesfield. The Lancashire portion of the Diocese has been more favoured by the Associates, as it contains twenty-three Libraries, either Parochial or Lending, for the use of the Clergy and Laity in retired and poor districts. In addition to Dr. Bray's judicious and well-timed Charities, which are extended to the support of Missions, Schools, and Libraries in the British Colonies, Associates are now admitted, on recommendation, and subscriptions received for the purposes of the institution. It is exceedingly desirable that individuals who possess duplicates of useful and religious books should consign them to the Rev. Arthur Trollope, the Secretary of the Associates, 52, Hatton Garden, London, for the benevolent and pious uses contemplated by the excellent Dr. Bray. It is to be regretted that this Diocese, which greatly needs, and has largely benefited by, this Charity, should have done almost nothing for its support.—See the Introd. to the Life and Designs of Thomas Bray D.D. by the Rev. H. J. Todd M.A. (now Archdeacon of Cleveland,) 8vo. 1808, 2d ed.; and also the Report of the Associates, for the year 1844.

Dr. Ormerod observes that West of the Hall is the East Hall Chapel—a venerable building of dark stone, appearing to singular advantage from its situation on the green sward, within the pleasure ground, under the shade of luxuriant timber. His eldest son had the Baronetcy restored in 1804, and was father of the present Sir Harry M. Mainwaring Bart.

Most of the tythes of Runcorn parish are leased to Sir Richard Brook of Norton Bart. The tythe corn of Acton Grange to Mr. Wright of Widnes, in the county of Lanc. by D. and C. of Xt. Ch. Oxon. All tythes whatsoever in Weston belong to the Vic. of Runcorn, as also the tythe of wooll and lambs, of hemp and flax; throughout the whole parish Easter offerings; and tythe calves in Runcorn, Halton, Norton, Stockham and Mosseside, Aston and Aston Grange, and a certain rate formerly." — Rob. The following account of the Tithes of this Parish is taken from Dr. Stratford's papers, and appears to be sufficiently interesting to be inserted here. The first Letter is from Archdeacon Stratford, Canon of Christ Church, to his Cousin, Mr. (afterwards Dr.) William Stratford of Chester, and is dated "Oxford, August 18, 1715."

"Dear Cosin,—The Bishop of Chester and I must beg your assistance in an affair which concerns our College. S^r Thomas Brooks desires to renew his Lease for Runcorne. We have required a Certificate from him, of the Health of the present Lives in the Lease, and a true Terrier of the Estate, before we set a Fine. And he is directed to put the Certificate and Terrier into your hands. And we desire you would be at the trouble of going over to Runcorne, to assist in making of the Terrier, and to be one of the witnesses to it. I must beg, too, somewhat further of you. I received in 1710, as you will perceive, the inclosed Account of Runcorn from Mr. Hughes, then Vicar of Frodsham. I desire you would go over, if you have leisure, alone to Runcorn, and make enquiry if you can, whether all mention'd in this Account were at that time Tenants to S^r Thomas Brooks, and at the rents here specified. I have some reason to think that some tythes mention'd in this Account, tho' they are in the parish of Runcorn, yet were excepted out of S^r Thomas's Lease and granted by the College to other Tenants. Particularly Weston, Newton, Daresbury, and Acton Grange. But I know not whether all the Tythes of these Places, or only part of them, have been granted to other Tenants. Perhaps part of them still belong to S^r Thomas, and were set by him to the Tenants, and for the sums mention'd in this Account. This is what we must desire you to get us as true and particular account of as you can : whether the Tythes of the Places here mention'd were let for so much as is here put down, and whether they who held these tythes were Tenants for them to S^r Tho. Brooks or any one else. Pray too enquire whether the value of the Glebe land be such as is mention'd in this Account, or Greater. My love to my Nieces, and respects to all Friends. I am your affectionate Cosin and humble Servt.

The following Letter is from Mr. Stratford to the Archdeacon, and is dated September 1st, 1715. —

"S^r Your's about Runcorn I received yesterday se'ennight, and have bin twice in those parts to inform myself of matters, and took the best measures I could to y^t purpose, but find p'sons very shy and unwilling to meddle in such an affair, for fear of discovery and disobliging such a powerfull neighbour as S^r Thomas. The inclos'd Acc^t of the Tythes of y^e sev^l Townships in Runcorn Parish I copy'd myself out of S^r Thomas Brookes' Steward's Book, by w^{ch} he collects them; and S^r Thomas assures it is a full and faithful account; but if the College requires it, he says he'll get the respective Ten^{ts} or Farmers of y^e Tythes of each Townsp, together with one or two of the most substantial Inhabitants, to subscribe the same, w^{ch} I think will be as effectual as can well be, for since the whole Estate consists in Tythes, I can't see y^t any other kind of Terrier can be made. I find by y^e s^d Steward's Book y^t some of y^e Farmers take y^e Tythes only from year to year, and others for 2 or 3 years, and their Rents frequently vary according as there is more or less Corn sow'd, and as the price of it is likely to goe. S^r Tho^s is about Marrying his eldest son to one M^{rs} H.¹ a Welsh Heiress, and the motive of his renewing at this time perhaps may be to put in her Life and make it part of her Jointure, tho' S^r Tho. told me he intended to put in his 2nd son's Life,² and if he does, I take S^r Tho. to be the likelier to live of the two. If S^r T. has given in y^e value of his Estate at Runcorn in order for a Settlement as af^d and I can't learn at how much, (w^{ch} I'll endeavour to do) I doubt not but it would be the best Terrier for the College to get a Fine by. I deferr'd writing the last Post in expectation of further information in this matter, but was disappointed, but when I receive any I'll communicate it. S^r if I can be farther serviceable in this business or any thing else, I shall most gladly obey your commands.

"The Vicar of Frodsham stands presented for near 2 years' non-residence. M^r R. and I are going to a Court at S^t M. and afterwards to meet the Bishop."

² Thomas Brooke, the second son, was Rector of St. Mary's in Chester, and Vicar of Walton on the Hill, near Liverpool. He appears to have had a better constitution than the worthy Mr. Stratford supposed.

This Church was given to y^e Priory founded here, and translated to Norton by y^e Founder. v.[ide] Mon. Supra.⁴

The next Letter is from the Archdeacon to Mr. Stratford, and is dated September 6th, 1715.

"Dear Cosin, — I am desired by my Lord of Chester and my Brethren here to thank you for the trouble you have been at on our account. The Dean and Chapter desire S^r Thomas would send us the Account attested by the respective farmers and two or 3 of the most substantial Inhabitants, to be a full Account. When we receive that, we are ready to seal a new Lease to S^r Thomas, upon his paying 300^l for this Fine. The Dean and Chapter hope he will think we use him kindly. For the same Fine was paid when his Father renewed in [16]64, when no Life had dropped before from [16]34. But then there had been only 30 years without any renewal. Now there have been 41. And six years, I believe, at least, are past since the Life dropped. If S^r Thomas would have a new Lease, he must send up the old Lease, and a Surrender along with it. When we hear he accepts the Fine, we shall give him notice what the Fees will be to the Chapter Clerk and Servants, that he may return them and the Fine together. I am

"You will not fail to do your utmost to learn at what value S^r Thomas gives in Runcorn in the Particulars of his Estate."

Mr. Stratford addressed Sir Thomas Brooke on the 13th September, 1715, as follows : —

"S^r, I sent y^e Terrier and Acc^t of the Tythes of Runcorn w^{ch} I rec^d from y^r Steward to Xt Ch. and it is further desir'd by y^e Dean and Ch. there that you wou'd send them y^e like Acc^t and get y^e respective tenants or farmers of y^e Tythes of each Hamlett or Towns^p, together with 2 or 3 of the most substantiall Inhabitants, to subscribe the same as a true and full acc^t of their value, as I told them you was [were] willing to do if they desir'd it ; and after this is done they are ready to renew wth you upon paying £300 for a Fine. Mr. Chesshyre held the Living from 1686 to 1740.

The Church is now being rebuilt, having long been in a dilapidated state, and inconveniently small. 1845.

⁴ William, son of Nigel, Baron of Halton, founded here a house of Canons Regular, anno domini 1133, removed to Norton by his son, about the time of King Stephen. Vide p. 86.

⁶ Sir Peter Leycester, in his Corrigenda, states that he had inferred the Dedication of the Church to be to All Saints, because that was the day of their Wakes, but he adds that he has since discovered, in a deed of Sir Willoughby Aston's of Aston, dated 9th Henry V. that the Patron Saint was St. Bartholomew.

Runcorn is distinguished into Over Runcorn and Nether Runcorn, both w^{ch} comprehend not fully 300 Cheshire acres.

² The Manor, at the Conquest, was retained by Hugh Lupus, and Edward I. when Earl of Chester, gave it to Roger Clifford, who, on his return from the Holy Land in 1272, contracted marriage at St. George, near Beaufort in France, with the Countess Lauretania, whom he enfeoffed, before marriage, with his Manor of Weverham. On his death, in the 14th Edward I. all his goods and chattels were seized for debts due to the King, with the exception of his wife's jewels. Weverham had been previously restored by a voluntary surrender, most probably before the 4th Edward I. in which year it was disafforested by charter, antecedent to its union with the other possessions of the new Monastery of Vale Royal.

In the 37th Henry VIII. four years after the grant of the site of the dissolved Abbey of Vale Royal, the King granted to Sir Thomas Holcroft Knt. an unscrupulous agent of the Court, the Manors of Weverham and Over, in consideration of £464. 10s. 10d. and in exchange for the Manor of Cartmel in Lancashire. Barrymore, bought this Manor under the Earl of Rivers' will, made in 1711, and settled this and other estates on the Hon. Richard Barry, his second son by a third marriage. From that period it has been vested in the family of Barry of Marbury.

There was a Church here at the Conquest, and the tithes were given by Hugh Lupus and Ermentrude his Countess, in 1093, to the Abbey of St. Werburgh.

The Church was afterwards resumed by the Earl, and given by King Edward I. with the Advowson of the Vicarage, to the Abbey of Vale Royal, and in lieu of the tithes, the Abbot and Convent bound themselves to pay six marks yearly to the Abbot of St. Werburgh.

After the Dissolution, the Rectory and Advowson of the Vicarage were granted by patent, January 8th, 1546, to John Bird, Bishop of Chester, and his successors for the time being, and it is not unworthy of remark that after the lapse of three centuries they are again enjoyed, in the Providence of God, by another John Bird, Bishop of Chester; a Prelate, however, in almost all things except learning and zeal, the antipodes of his predecessor in name and office.

In 1789 George Wilbraham of Delamere Lodge Esq. bought the Hall and Royalty of John, first Baron Crewe, and they are now vested in his son and successor, George Wilbraham Esq.

Vide Archæol. vol. iii. art. 19. p. 132. 1775. And the learned and pious Roger Ascham, we are told by Camden, indulged in this barbarous and almost exploded amusement, and even wrote in its defence!

Bishop Cartwright "gave the register (registrar) order to cite a school master who teaches without license, to the prejudice of an honest man already settled in the parish of Weverham." January 27, 1687.—Diary, published by Mr. Hunter, 4to. 1843.

¹"Hatton Church by Waverham." There is no such place as Hatton in the parish of Weaverham; but in the parish of Waverton, near Chester, is the township of Hatton. Matilda, daughter and heiress of John de Hatton, married Ralph Vernon, who, in the 35th Edward I. obtained from John, son of Hugh de Hatton and Maud his wife, the Manor of Hatton and two hundred and sixty seven acres of land in Waverton, &c. The Vernon estates were conveyed, by marriage, to the Dutton family, in the time of Henry V. and continued vested in the male line until 1696.

There are at present no monuments of the Vernons and Hattons in the Church of Waverton, but in 1572 their arms were in the windows of the Church.—Harl. MSS. 2151, 103. quoted by Dr. Ormerod.

There is a high degree of accuracy in the results obtained from the use of the following formulae:

1. The first formula is used to determine the value of the constant k in the equation $y = kx$.

2. The second formula is used to determine the value of the constant k in the equation $y = kx^2$.
